Chapter 196

After Haze left, Renee was left alone once more in the huge villa.

Like she had done for many nights, she stood at the window, gazing out at the moon.

The moon tonight was round and bright, hanging like a luminous pearl in the dark night sky. ‘The bright moon sends a message of love...’

For some reason, Renee suddenly recalled the stranger she chatted with the other night. His profile picture was also a moon.

The only message he sent her was also a picture of a moon.

Renee subconsciously took out her phone, clicked on the picture of the moon, and zoomed in to take a closer look. Based on the angle, the picture should have been taken through the french window of a certain office.

Perhaps the guy was a salaryman that had to work overtime until late at night, getting his value squeezed dry by his capitalist company?

Renee smiled, casually took a picture of the moon and sent it to him.

It’s weird. Although she had not chatted with the guy much, and most of the time it was just her complaining about her problems, she had a feeling that the guy was definitely reading attentively no matter what she typed.

Even if he did not offer any word of comfort, he could definitely understand her feeling. This made her feel warm inside...

After a few minutes, she received a WeChat notification on her phone. “Can’t sleep?”

Two simple words. She could not help but feel like the person on the other end should be a calm, quiet and reliable man. “Yeah, lots of stuff going on.”

“For example?”

“For example, there’s a very annoying man who’s always messing with my mood. For example, my only relative in this world. was framed and imprisoned. For example, I want to leave this place, but I can’t. Everything’s going terribly!”

Renee typed this message with a gloomy face, pouring out her grievances. The guy must be so annoyed with her constant complaining by now.

So she quickly sent another message. ‘I’m sorry, I shouldn’t treat you as an emotional trash can, but I haven’t had anyone to talk to for a long time. Talking about it makes me feel better. You can just ignore what I said.”

The guy remained silent for a while before sending out a few concise words. “Why do you want to leave?” “For personal reasons.”

She was currently pregnant with twins and it would show soon. She must leave Beach City to give birth to the babies in secret.

Before leaving, however, she needed to lay out the necessary plans for her business empire as soon as possible so that her babies and her could live without any worries in the future, free of anyone’s control.

Renee did not tell the guy what her “personal reasons” were. The guy was also very polite and did not ask. After a long time, he finally replied.

“It’s late. Go to bed. Maybe when you wake up tomorrow, your problems will no longer be problems.” “I hope so.”

Renee exhaled. She felt much better.

In this fast-moving world, was there a warmer thing than someone urging you to go to bed? The stranger’s concern gave her strength in this lonely night.

She believed that everything would gradually get better.

Renee put away her phone and fell asleep peacefully.

The next day, she woke up early, washed herself a bit, took the USB flash drive containing the surveillance footage, and headed out to meet Zack to discuss tomorrow’s trial.

But the moment she opened the door, she bumped into

Margaret head-on! “Margaret, is it... really you?”

Renee rubbed her eyes. Her first thought was that she’s still not fully awake yet and she’s seeing things. “Of course it’s me, Miss Ren.”

Margaret held Renee’s hand excitedly and said, “You’re amazing, Miss Ren. You told me you’re gonna get me out, but I didn’t expect you to be able to do it so quickly. If your parents in heaven knew that you’re this capable, they would be so very pleased!

“But...”

Renee was even more confused now.

She was trying to get Margaret out, but she had not made a move yet!

“Miss Ren, what did you do? The prison guard said a scared-looking Briar Desrosiers withdrew her charges early this morning. and that’s why I was released!”

Margaret asked curiously.

Renee was stunned. She did not know what to say.

Based on her understanding of Briar Desrosiers, there was no way the wicked woman would withdraw the charges due to her conscience.

Then, it was most probably Stefan’s order. But the heartless man was supposed to use Margaret to threaten Renee. Why would he back out of the war first?

Did he find out that Haze hacked into the hospital’s cloud storage system last night? Thinking of that, Renee quickly gave Haze a call.

Haze answered the phone lazily. He was obviously still sleeping. “You miss me already. Bonnie?”

“Cut the crap. Tell me, did anyone find out about you hacking into the cloud storage system last night?” “What’s the matter? Why do you sound so anxious?”

“Cut the crap and answer me!” “No one found out.”

Haze said confidently. “I coded the encryption. As long as I don’t tell anyone, no one would know.” Renee fell silent. She frowned and thought for a while, then said. “Okay, got it.”

“What’s the matter? You...”

Haze still wanted to ask Renee something but Renee had already hung up. “So heartless?”

Haze lay on the large bed. His arm that was showing outside the blanket had perfect muscle lines, more defined than that of international male supermodels.

“The wild kitten has quite the personality,” he said with a smirk.

Meanwhile, Renee was biting her nails as she carefully analyzed what happened.

Since her theft of the surveillance footage had not been found out, there should be no reason for Stefan to let Margaret off the hook. What was he planning?

“Miss Ren, I’m sorry I made you worry. I knew I was gonna be alright, so you didn’t have to worry about me...” Margaret’s consoling words suddenly reminded Renee of the stranger’s words last night.

“Maybe when you wake up tomorrow, your problems will no longer be problems.”

This statement was so timely that she had to wonder if the guy could predict the future. Or, perhaps, this stranger was actually Stefan in disguise?

Based on the picture of the moon, it did look suspiciously like the picture was taken from the French window in Stefan’s office! Thinking of that, Renee rushed upstairs and turned on the computer to track the stranger’s IP address.

After typing a long string of code, the IP address quickly locked on to a location, and the person’s information was obtained.

According to the information, this guy was just an ordinary working man in his twenties in a neighboring city. All the information showed that he had nothing to do with Stefan.

It was both expected and logical.

Renee heaved a sigh of relief, but also felt a bit disappointed.

“Renee, oh Renee, you think too highly of yourself. Who do you think you are? Why would he waste his time chatting with you. on a burner account?” She chuckled to herself.

In any case. Stefan’s sudden “truce” could only mean that he was planning something big!

“Margaret, don’t go anywhere in the next couple of days. Just stay at home. I’m worried Stefan might play dirty!” Renee told Margaret.

“Miss Ren, I don’t think Mr. Hunt is as bad as you think. Maybe he simply doesn’t want to hurt you. After all, he can see how close we are. If we really go to court, there might be no way back for you two...”

Margaret persuaded, “Miss Ren, don’t be so angry. I think you should withdraw the charges against Miss Desrosiers too so that your relationship with Mr. Hunt doesn’t become irreconcilable!”

Renee sneered. “Hah... so he’s playing mind games in order to make me withdraw charges willingly.

Unfortunately, he doesn’t understand what kind of person I am!”

After she said that, she headed straight for H Group, bringing the solid evidence with her.

Chapter 198

Renee arrived at H Group.

As usual, she was not stopped by anyone and was warmly welcomed by all the employees.

Rachel Stefan’s secretary, was the biggest stan of the Renee–Stefan ship. Her eyes filled with excitement, she received Renee enthusiastically.

“Mrs. Hunt, Mr. Hunt is in a meeting right now. Do you want to wait for him in his office, or should I go urge him?” “I’ll wait in his office!”

“Okay, I’ll take you there.” Rachel nodded repeatedly.

Generally, one could not go to the CEO’s office without permission. But this woman was the CEO's wife. The rules did not apply to her.

Renee entered Stefan's office and sat down in his chair. She turned left and right in the chair, feeling very comfortable. Her eyes suddenly fell on a crystal ashtray on the desk. She thought it looked kind of familiar.

"Rachel, could this ashtray be... the one I gave him a while ago?"

Rachel's eyes instantly brightened. She quickly replied. "Yes, Mrs. Hunt, you sure have a good memory. This ashtray was the Christmas gift you gave Mr. Hunt a year ago. Mr. Hunt likes it very much!"

"And this succulent. Mr. Hunt also likes it very much. He takes care of it every day. Sometimes he would even take pictures of it..."

"And this mechanical keyboard. Mr. Hunt loves using it. One of the key's broken, but he still refuses to replace the keyboard!" "No way."

Rachel's words shocked Renee. "How could a picky guy like Stefan Hunt possibly like the presents I gave him? These presents look so childish to me now. Even I feel embarrassed by them!"

"He didn't like them before, but recently, he kept asking us to bring out the things you gave him, especially the coffee... He would only drink the brand that you once bought for him. We're so troubled by it. Maybe he loves you, so he loves the things.

you gave him too!"

*Cough!"

Renee almost choked on her own saliva.

These fangirls sure are delusional. Stefan and her were almost mortal enemies now. There was no love to speak of between them!

After Rachel left, Renee could do nothing but wait.

Out of boredom, she looked out of the french window. Be it the window's material, angle, or the scenery outside, it really did look like the window in the picture the stranger sent her.

So, she took out her phone, enlarged the picture of the moon again, and compared it to the french window in front of her... "What are you doing?"

Renee suddenly heard Stefan's cold voice.

She was startled. Her phone dropped to the ground with a thud.

She quickly picked it up and replied with a straight face, "Isn't it obvious? I'm waiting for you." "Who gave you permission to come into my office?!"

Stefan's handsome face was very unhappy. He slowly walked towards Renee and said with a frown. "You even dare to sit in my chair? Do you want to die?"

He had had a strong sense of boundaries from an early age and disliked others touching his things. "So what if I sit in your chair for a moment? You're so stingy.

See, I even gave you all these things!"

Renee casually glanced around and saw about seven or eight old presents he gave Stefan. "You wanted to give me those things yourself. I don't even like them."

Stefan's face was cold and his voice was haughty. "You don't like them?"

Renee raised her eyebrows. "In that case, I'll take them all back right now so that I can give them to my future boyfriend. It's called recycling!"

Stefan glared daggers at her and said, "Don't you dare!"

Renee's pursed her lips and murmured, "You don't like them, but you still want to take possession of them. What a tyrant!"

Stefan made no reply to that. He simply picked Renee up from his chair and said coldly, "Why do you want to see me? Get to the point!"

Renee's expression turned serious. She asked, "Why did you suddenly let Margaret go? Did you do it out of conscience?"

Stefan looked up with his cold eyes and stared at Renee for a long time before he flatly said, "If I say it's because I don't want to make you sad, would you believe me?"

Chapter 199

"Pfft!"

Renee burst out laughing despite herself.

If anyone else had said that, she would not have felt that there was anything wrong with those words, but coming from the giant iceberg, it felt like a big fat joke.

"Hahahaha! Mr. CEO, did a ghost possess you or something? How could those words come out of your mouth? Oh, that's a good joke!"

Stefan's handsome face grew colder and colder.

He pursed his thin lips, looked expressionlessly at the woman who had bent over with laughter, and said slowly. "Is it really that funny?"

"Damn right it is."

Renee tried to contain her laughter and looked at Stefan mockingly. "You really are trying everything in the book to get me to withdraw charges, aren't you? Unfortunately, even though we've been married for four years, you still don't understand what kind of person I am..."

"You think if you say something nice to me, I'll do anything you say, just like old times?" Renee shook her head and laughed at Stefan's arrogance.

"Before, you were my husband. I listened to what you said because I cared about you. But now, you're just my ex-husband. Your requests are nothing to me now. Why should I do what you want me to?"

Renee's words pierced into Stefan's heart like a sharp knife.

Although it did not make a big wound, the empty feeling it left behind was still unpleasant. He only realized now that he seemed to have lost a very good woman...

Stefan smiled self-deprecatingly. His voice was clear and chilly as he asked, "Am I really that kind of person in your eyes?" Renee shrugged, "Obviously?"

"Hahaha! You're too full of yourself!"

Stefan's eyes became even colder and more aloof. His voice was cold and sharp. "If I want to save Briar, I have a hundred ways to save her. The reason I spent so much time negotiating with you is because I hope you can quell your anger. But now... I'm running out of patience. I'm done with this!"

Renee felt that there were other meaning behind those words, so she said, "I knew it, you really are planning something big in secret. Face me head on if you're a man!"

Stefan did not answer. He opened the document before him and said coldly, "You can leave now!" "Stefan Hunt, I warn you, you better not play any dirty tricks. I'll make you pay if you do!"

Renee's fist smashed onto the desk in front of Stefan to emphasize her fierce warning.

Stefan did not say anything else to her. He simply picked up the phone and told the security to come escort her out. Renee was fuming. She left reluctantly.

She had come all this way but did not get any useful information at all. What a waste of time!

She desperately needed to vent all the negative emotions, so she opened the chat with the stranger again and sent a row of 5 angry emojis.

As if that wasn't enough, she also sent another wall of text.

"I'm so mad! SO MAD! My ex-husband is so annoying!"

"He's already your ex-husband but he still makes you mad. Maybe you're still in love with him?" "Nonsense!"

Renee gritted his teeth and typed a new message. "My hate for him just hasn't subsided yet. If I could, I really wanted to chop him into pieces and feed him to the fish."

"Good idea. I'll buy you a knife if you need it."

The guy's reply made Renee laugh out loud. "You're the best, Mr. Moon."

Looking at the his profile picture of the moon on the sea, she could almost feel the breeze blowing against her hair. She instantly felt less angry. She strode out of the H Group building with light steps.

What Renee did not realize was that Stefan was currently staring at her petite, nimble figure. He leaned in front of the shiny French window, his deep eyes locked onto Renee...

She seemed so small, just a tiny black dot in his vision, but he felt like he could not deal with her at all!

The reason why he released her nanny was really because he simply did not want to make her sad. Why wouldn't she believe him?

At that moment, Stefan's phone rang.

With a slight frown, he said, "Okay, do it!"

Chapter 200

Under the night sky, a white private jet was parked in a private hangar a distance away from the city center. Briar, escorted by several strong-looking men, boarded the plane with trepidation.

"Stefan, I knew you would save me!"

At the sight of the dignified man sitting inside the jet, the originally uneasy Briar excitedly threw herself at him. However, Stefan's expression was cold, maybe even slightly annoyed.

"Tonight, the jet will send you to Cyseal City, where you'll stay for the rest of your pregnancy. You will not make any contact with the outside world until the baby is born."

His voice that was devoid of emotion flustered Briar.

"What's the meaning of this, Stefan? Are you trying to hide me away? How's that any different from going to jail?"

Stefan's handsome face was expressionless as he coldly snorted, "You can choose to go back and go to jail if you want!" "No!"

Briar was very emotional. She immediately transformed into a weak, helpless girl with tears streaming down her cheeks. She said pitifully, "Stefan, what's wrong with you? Why are you being so cold to me?"

"You know I'm innocent! Shouldn't you help me clear my name? Instead, you're hiding me out of sight like I'm some kind of embarrassment! Don't you think this is really unfair to me?"

"Unfair?"

Stefan coldly said, "You want to talk about fairness in front of Renee Everheart? Don't you think that's the biggest unfairness of all?"

Briar was shocked by his cold attitude. She swallowed hard and said cautiously. "I... I don't understand what you mean." She could clearly feel that the man was no longer as easily fooled as before.

"You're pregnant with my brother's child. That's his only descendant. For the sake of his bloodline, Renee could only compromise unconditionally.”

Stefan’s eyes were sharp and piercing. “You use this to usurp Renee from the position that rightfully belonged to her. You think this is fair?”

“... ..”

Briar lowered her head and had no reply.

“If you had simply kept to yourself, I wouldn’t have said anything, and you could get everything that you want. Unfortunately... you’re too greedy, too malicious. I won’t let you do as you please anymore!”

Stefan was utterly disappointed with Briar.

He could not figure out how his excellent and upright elder brother could have fallen for a woman like her and even had a child with her. Even before he died, his last words to Stefan was to take care of Briar and their child...

“Enough talking. Just go!”

Stefan finished speaking and got up to leave.

Briar cried and blocked his path. “You misunderstood me, Stefan! I’m not greedy! I just want to give birth to Tristan’s baby safely and give him a legitimate identity! It was your idea to divorce Miss Renee and marry me! How come in the end, it’s all my Briar’s words made Stefan fall silent.

He suddenly wondered, if there was no Briar and no baby, would he have divorced Renee?

He probably would have. After all, the marriage between him and Renee was only a contractual marriage. There was no love between them. A divorce was probably only a matter of time.

“Stefan, I know I’ve made a mistake. I promise you I’ll behave myself from now on. I’ll stay far away from Miss Renee. All I want is to be with you and raise Tristan’s only child well. Please, give me another chance.”

Briar grabbed Stefan’s arm and begged hard.

“The baby will be born in a few months. Do you really want him to come into this world in hiding as an illegitimate child? Do you want him to have no father, no legal identity?”

Briar’s round of questioning made Stefan frown.

His looked coldly at Briar’s slightly bulging stomach. In the end, he relented. “We’ll talk again after the baby is born!” “Okay. I trust you, Stefan. I’ll do whatever you ask of me!”

Briar knew when to push her advantage and when to compromise. She said pitifully, “I’ll wait for you, wherever I am. The baby and I will be waiting for you!”

The private jet roared into the sky.

Sitting inside his limousine, Stefan stared with a gloomy expression at the plane that gradually turned into a tiny dot. ‘Brother, you won’t blame me for doing this, will you?’

The next day.

Before the trial, Renee received news that Briar had committed suicide...
