

Chapter 241 Destined

Forrest stopped without looking back and said, "Don't ask any questions. She can do whatever she wants."

He was clear enough. So Camila sighed and said resignedly, "Take care of yourself, Forrest."

Forrest took a deep breath and strode away.

After that, Camila went back to work.

In the Haynes family, Laura was packing up her things to leave, and Rowena came to help her.

As they worked together, Rowena said, "Feel free to come back here whenever you miss Mila, okay? There are more than enough rooms here, and I'll specially prepare one for you."

Laura's heart melted at her words. She was unable to keep the strong facade anymore, and tears welled up in her eyes.

She wiped it and said, "Thank you, Rowena."

"Of course. You're welcome." Rowena held her hand and patted it.

"You are Mila's best friend, and you've helped her a lot. Remember that just like Mila, you are my child, okay?" Rowena said gently.

Laura was so touched that she couldn't say a word.

She choked with sobs, unable to keep it in.

Once they were done, Rowena helped her to the door with her things.

Aldrin had left something at home, and was coming back to get it when he saw Laura with a suitcase at the door.

"Where are you going to?"

"I'm going back to Skystead." Laura squeezed out a smile with difficulty and added, "When I have the chance to, I'll treat you to a delicious meal."

"Don't go!" Aldrin suddenly held her hand.

Laura gave him a gentle look and said, "This is not my home, Aldrin. I won't live here for the rest of my life. Thank you for having me for so long. I'll remember this and if I ever have to repay you in the future, I will."

She smiled teasingly and joked, "Of course, I don't want to hear you run away from home."

"Just stay a few more days," Aldrin said seriously, ignoring her attempt to lighten up the mood.

Laura sighed and replied, "I have been here for too long already, Aldrin. I have work and a life of my own to get back to."

After his attempts at persuading her failed, Aldin realized that she was determined. So he said, "In that case, let me drive you to the station."

"Sure. Thank you."

Aldrin helped her with her luggage and they went on their way.

On the way, Aldrin asked, "So, your breakup with Forrest is final?"

Laura looked at him with a little amusement. "Why does it feel like you couldn't wait to see me break up?"

"Any man who makes you sad doesn't deserve your love," Aldrin said seriously.

With a teasing smile on her face this time, Laura said, "I can't believe this. You're still a child. What do you know about love? You act like you're a master in the subject."

Aldrin retorted with a smug look, "I'm not a child, okay? I'm fit to run the company by myself, and I've had a lot of girlfriends."

"Is that so? Well then, tell me. How many have you had?" Laura asked with great interest.

"Five or six!"

"That's right, brag all you want." Laura couldn't believe him.

It was impossible, right?

Aldrin had just turned eighteen. Did he start dating in school or what?

She listened to him, but chose not to believe a single word.

The car fell silent after that.

No one said a word, but Aldrin stole glances at Laura from time to time.

Laura was so depressed and deep in her thoughts because of what happened with Forrest that she didn't notice Aldrin's glances.

She had only pretended to be open-minded with Forrest.

They had gone through a lot together, and for so long.

But now, this was it. It was all over.

She would be lying if she said she didn't feel sad.

Aldrin sighed and said comfortingly, "If anyone breaks up with you, it's because you are not destined to be together. It's only the people you grow old with, that were fated to be in your life."

Laura smiled. "I guess you're right. That makes a lot of sense."

"Of course I'm right!" Aldrin jutted out his chin proudly.

When they arrived at the high-speed train station, Aldrin couldn't go any further than the check-in gate.

He waved at her and said with a smile, "Get home safely, and call me."

"I will," she replied.

On the other side, Isaac went to check what happened in the club that night, but the surveillance footage had been wiped out.

Someone must have tampered with it.

When Jaylen heard that someone was checking the surveillance footage, he knew it was Isaac, so he rushed there.

Camila was furious, and the last thing he wanted to do was piss her off.

He really wanted to see Camila and Isaac break up, but not at the expense of Camila hating his guts.

He rushed there and met Isaac at the door.

"You came to check the surveillance footage?" Jaylen asked with a smile.

He rarely had the upper hand with Isaac.

Willie had the strong urge to beat him. "What did you do? Why did you destroy the footage? What did you try to hide?" He bared his teeth and asked.

Jaylen's intention had been to explain things for Camila, but when Willie spoke to him so arrogantly, he got angry and said with anger too, "I deliberately destroyed it because I was scared that Isaac will be pissed off when he sees what happened last night."
