

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1581

Chapter 1581

Henry exclaimed.

“The Celestial Sect’s leader. That’s one of the strongest figures to exist in the ancient martial world. I never expected Thea, who still needed to be protected just some time ago, to become so strong in just half a year. I feel so ashamed that I’ve only just cultivated my True Energy. I’m only a first-ranked grandmaster. Thea could kill me instantly with just one move.”

Henry felt ashamed.

He was no match for her at all.

“Huff.”

James sighed.

“What’s the matter, James?”

“Nothing.”

James closed his eyes, putting everything behind his mind.

In the backyard of the Cadens’ mansion.

Maxine was lying on a bed in a room.

Inside the room, Bennett took out a jug of wine and poured a glass for James.

James asked, “How’s Maxine?”

Bennett sighed. “Her condition isn’t looking too good. Every day, I have to use my True Energy to prolong her life.”

“Let me take a look.”

James got up and went to the bedside.

Maxine was wearing white pajamas, lying on the bed. Her eyes were closed, and her face was pale.

James picked up Maxine’s hand and checked her pulse.

After a while, he let go.

Maxine's condition was severe, and her organs showed signs of failure. She needed another person to use True Energy to maintain her vitality.

She might still have a chance of being saved with Crucifier.

However, James had lost Crucifier, and there was nothing he could do to treat Maxine's injuries at that moment.

Bennett walked over.

He asked, "What do you think? Is there anything you can do to save her?"

Jamies replied, "Yes, but I'll need Crucifier. Lucjan stole it from me, and I'm planning to retrieve it from him. By the way, Grand Patriarch, have you heard of Divine Sword Villa?"

"Mhm. I've heard of the place but don't know much about it."

Bennett explained, "They're a very low-key sect and seldomly show themselves in the ancient martial world. They're considered a secret and hidden sect. Why are you suddenly asking about them?"

"I met the Omniscient Deity from the Jade Sect and asked him about Lucjan's whereabouts. He said that a legendary weapon was about to be born from Divine Sword Villa. Lucjan has headed there."

"I've never heard about that. Just be careful over there. I have to take care of Maxine and keep an eye on her condition, so I can't go with you."

James smiled and said, "Don't worry. I can handle it alone. I'll take my leave first."

"Alright."

Bennett stood up and personally sent James off.

James headed back to Thea's house.

Maxine was also seriously injured and needed Crucifier to save her.

He had to retrieve Crucifier as soon as possible.

However, he did not know much about Divine Sword Villa, so he planned to look for Callan to get more information.

As soon as he got home, he brought Thea to see Callan.

Callan was also a doctor, so James wanted him to check Thea's condition to see if there was anything he could do about it.

If even Callan were incapable of doing anything, his only option would be to look for Thomas.

Soon, they arrived at Callan's residence in the Capital.

When James entered, he found that Quincy was also at Callan's house.

During this period, Quincy stayed at Callan's house so she could ask him for advice and learn martial arts from him.

Quincy had taken a break from her busy schedule to secretly practice martial art. Under Callan's guidance, she had met the requirement to cultivate True Every in just two months.

With a little more time, she would definitely be able to cultivate her True Energy.

"Woah! You're here, James! What a rare guest!" Callan greeted with a smile. "James," Quincy also called out sweetly.

Callan invited James and Thea into the room to sit down.

"James, Thea, what would you like to drink?" asked Quincy.

"Anything is fine," Thea replied softly.

Quincy asked again, "What about you, James?"

"Anything for me too."

James was not here for a casual visit but to ask Callan about some things.

Callan sat down and went straight to the point. "James, I know you won't visit for nothing. There must be something up if you're here to see me. You can cut to the chase."

James nodded and said, "Mhm. There is indeed something I need from you. I'd like to inquire about Divine Sword Villa."

“Oh?”

Callan’s curiosity was piqued. He looked at James with curiosity and asked, “Why are you suddenly asking about Divine Sword Villa?”

James did not hide anything and told him about the information he had gotten from the Omniscient Deity. “Is that so?”

After hearing this, Callan fell into thought.

“A legendary sword is about to be born from Divine Sword Villa? Why have I not heard of this?”

Not long ago, Callan had been to Divine Sword Villa, but he was unaware of the legendary sword.

At that moment, Quincy returned with two glasses of water. She served them to Thea and James, then sat aside.

Callan said, “James, I really don’t know about the birth of a legendary sword. However, I do know quite a lot about Divine Sword Villa. What would you like to know about them?”

“The approximate location and history of Divine Sword Villa,” said James.

Callan replied, “I’m not clear about Divine Sword Villa’s history. However, I know that they’re a low-key sect that has existed for many years, and they’ve got a glorious historical period. As for their location, they’re in the northwest of Sol.”

While speaking, Callan took out his phone. He opened up a map, marked a location, and sent it to James. “It’s roughly around this area.”

“I don’t know about the other people in Divine Sword Villa, but I fought with the owner when I went there. He’s pretty strong, and his cultivation base is at the peak of the eighth rank. If not for my trip to Divine Sword Villa, I wouldn’t have known that such a strong martial artist was hidden in Sol.”

Callan told James all the information he had on Divine Sword Villa.

Afterward, he looked at James and asked, “By the way, when are you planning to leave?”

James replied, “Right away.”

“You’re in such a rush?”

“Yeah.” James sighed.

“Lucjan has already headed there. He took my Blade of Justice and Crucifier. I have to rush there as soon as possible to get them back because of Thea’s condition. By the way, Callan, you’re also a doctor, so could you help check Thea’s condition?”

Callan glanced at Thea and asked, “What’s wrong with her?”

“You should take a look first.”

“Mhm, alright. Could you hold out your hand for me?”

Hearing this, Thea rolled up her sleeves, stretched her hand, and put it on the table.

Callan quickly checked her pulse.

About five minutes passed.

Callan’s expression grew increasingly solemn.

“What happened? How did she end up in such a bad condition?”

Thea withdrew her hand and smiled at Callan, saying, “It’s from when I was cultivating.”

She briefly explained her condition.

James asked, “Since you’ve seen a lot, Callan, what can we do about Thea’s situation?”

Quincy sat aside, but she did not speak as she could not get in on the topic James and Callan were talking about.

Callan was lost in thought.

Chapter 1583

After thinking for a while, he said solemnly, “The situation is very complicated. She has a problem with her blood. Not only has she absorbed the Spirit Turtle’s blood, but her blood has also mutated. This would’ve been difficult enough to treat even if her blood had not mutated. I’m afraid that even modern medicine can’t get the job done.”

James asked, “Is there no other way?”

“She can only go through an exchange transfusion.”

Callan thought for a while and said, "She'll have to replace her current blood with new blood. Her organs have already adapted to the Spirit Turtle's blood, and they're depending on it. Ordinary blood won't be good enough for her.

"Only blood stronger than the Spirit Turtle's will work. Even so, there's no guarantee that this'll succeed. After she goes through an exchange transfusion, she might face complications like her blood being unable to regenerate or it being incompatible with her body's organs, which will lead to death."

Callan explained his understanding of Thea's condition and his suggestions on how to treat it.

James knew how serious her situation was.

Even so, he had thought that Callan would have a solution.

"What's wrong with Thea?" Quincy finally asked.

Thea gently shook her head and said, "Nothing's wrong."

Quincy looked at James.

However, James did not explain.

James stood up and said, "If that's the case, I'll head back first and prepare to set off to Divine Sword Villa to retrieve Crucifier. I might be able to use it to stimulate Thea's blood and restore her blood's regenerative function.

"Maxine's also seriously injured. I'll need Crucifier to treat her injuries as well."

Callan stood up and said, "I don't have any plans at the moment. Let me go with you. After all, Lucjan is a traitor to the Gu Sect and is my enemy."

"Alright." James nodded gently.

He would be more at ease with Callan accompanying him.

Callan looked at Quincy and instructed, "I noticed many people have been targeting you during this time. You should be more careful when I'm not around. If you feel unsafe, you may stay at the Cadens' mansion for now. Since Bennett is in charge of the Cadens, regular martial artists wouldn't dare bring their troubles there."

Quincy nodded. "Mhm, alright."

She cast a glance at James.

She wanted to say something, but James was already pulling Thea toward the door. He spoke once more as he was leaving.

“Callan, I’ll head back to get ready first. I’ll call you when I leave.”

“Alright.” Callan escorted James out and sent him off.

After a while, he returned to the house.

“Sir, What’s wrong with Thea?”

As soon as he came back into the house, Quincy pulled him aside and asked, “What’s wrong with Thea? Did something happen?”

Callan glanced at Quincy. After contemplating for a while, he told her the truth.

“What?”

After hearing Callan’s description of Thea’s situation, Quincy exclaimed, “Is it that serious?”

Callan frowned and said, “Her situation is much more serious than what I could’ve imagined.”

“Then, how long more does she have to live?”

Callan thought for a while and said, “That depends on whether James’ Crucifier can treat her condition. If not, with her current cultivation, she should be able to live for a few more years.”

“Fortunately, she still has a few more years. I’m sure James will find a way to treat her.”

Quincy sat down and sighed. Then, she said, “Speaking of which, Thea sure has a pitiful life. Ever since she was a teenager, she’s never had a single day of peace.”

“Mhm.”

Callan sighed. “Who would’ve thought that Thea is the Celestial Sect’s leader? If I hadn’t seen it with my own eyes, I wouldn’t have believed her to be the infamous leader. It’s almost impossible to associate the two.”

Meanwhile, James and Thea were going home from Callan’s residence.

Thea remained silent in the car.

James held her hand tightly and reassured her, "It's okay. We still have a few years left. I'll definitely find a way to cure you by then."

Chapter 1584

To be honest, James was not confident in his abilities to cure Thea either.

There were no records in the medical book about conditions similar to Thea's.

His only hope was for Crucifier to perform a miracle.

The two returned home together.

At home, James accompanied Thea for the rest of the day.

He initially planned to leave for Divine Sword Villa the next morning.

He remembered the information he had obtained from the Omniscient Deity. He would have to look for the King if he wanted to know about Xavion's whereabouts.

James pondered for a while and decided that he should settle this matter before heading to Divine Sword Villa.

Early in the morning, he bid farewell to Thea and left the house. He headed to Peace Mansion and met with the King.

The King had had his power stripped from him. Apart from his nominal title, he had no absolute authority, nor was he needed in any meetings. All matters, regardless of their importance, were handled by the candidates running for the title of King.

The King was also happy that he got to enjoy leisure time.

"King, James has arrived."

The King was reading a newspaper in the study when Gloom came over and reported respectfully.

"He's finally here."

The King put his newspaper down and walked out.

James was waiting for the King in the living room.

Before he could see the King, laughter came from outside the room.

“You’re finally here, James.”

James looked at the approaching King.

While on his way to Peace Mansion, James thought about what the King was trying to achieve.

Why was he hiding Xavion?

The King sat opposite him and asked with a smile, “I thought you’d really died in Malgudi. You sure are a lucky one. What brings you here today?”

James did not beat around the bush and went straight to the point. “Do you know about the Yada Sect?”

Hearing this, the King’s expression grew serious.

He looked at James and asked solemnly, “How did you find out about the sect?”

James could tell from the King’s expression that the Yada Sect existed.

The person behind the Yada Sect was the King.

“Naturally, I have my ways. Why have you been hiding Xavion? What exactly are your motives?”

James could not figure the King out.

The information Xavion carried concerned many people.

The King was among these many benefactors.

However, the King still chose to keep Xavion hidden.

It was no wonder that no one could find Xavion, since the King was the one hiding him.

The King’s face softened, and he smiled at James. “You sure are capable, James. You were even able to find out about the sect. I’m curious. How did you find out?”

“You don’t have to know.”

“Fine, I’ll tell you the truth.”

Since James had brought it up, the King did not hide the truth from him. He answered honestly, "I'm indeed keeping Xavion hidden. I tipped him off before Halvor could take action. With my help, he fled and took cover before things could strike. No matter what was happening in the outside world, he stayed hidden and never exposed himself."

"Are you hiding him because you want his information?" asked James.

The King shook his head and said, "No. I'm hiding him because he holds crucial information about the Z technology. Not only will this information affect Sol's development, but it'll also involve the worldwide popularization and reach of the technology. Although I seemed to have allied with Halvor, I only did it for show. The Z technology must remain within our country. I wanted to wait until the election was over and a new King took office before releasing it in our country. That way, we could continue our research and complete the Z technology as soon as possible. Then, Sol would be able to popularize the Z network and make it the forefront of our world's technology."

The King stated his goal and plan.

"I've had everything planned out since the beginning. During the Mount Thunder Conference, I wanted to kill all the ancient martial artists to prevent things from spiraling into what it is right now. However, you stepped in and stopped me. This wouldn't have happened had you not interfered in the beginning." "Huff."

The King sighed and said, "James, I really shouldn't have listened to you back then. I should've been more ruthless and used even more powerful missiles to blow the Mount Thunder Sect to the ground."

James listened carefully.

He understood that the King was faulting him for what had happened.

"I'll take care of it."
