

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1727

Chapter 1727

By the time James recollected himself, he had already been swept away by the waves.

He swiftly propelled himself out of the water.

Fwoosh!

Like a waterspout, he shot up into the air and appeared fifty meters in the air. However, the moment he left the water's surface, he could sense the presence of a terrifying Palm Energy.

"Damn it! How is he so fast?"

James silently cursed.

He hurriedly catalyzed the Invincible Body Siddhi. The moment he catalyzed the Invincible Body Siddhi, an illusory Palm Energy came crashing toward him. The bronze halo enveloping the surface of his skin was instantly shattered. James was sent flying once more. As he crashed toward the sea, he vomited a mouthful of blood.

At that moment, Sky arrived.

When he saw James' Invincible Body Siddhi being shattered and him being sent flying by the Palm Energy, Sky cursed, "What did he do to provoke that creature?"

Then, he simply fled. He did not dare remain on this island for a second longer. He swiftly headed toward the place where they landed ashore last night and hopped onto the raft. Then, he untied the rope and catalyzed True Energy to propel the raft forward.

After leaving the island, he stopped temporarily.

A fierce battle raged on.

Terrifying True Energy swept through the waves and created a tidal wave several meters in height.

Though James used all of his strength and performed the sword techniques to the best of his abilities, he could not harm the man at all. The man's strength was simply overwhelming.

"Fourteen Heavenly Swords!"

James had no choice but to use the hidden card up his sleeves.

Thirteen waves of materialized Sword Energy burst forth from within the Primordial Dragon Blade. Then, they merged to form a sword a hundred meters long that was created out of Sword Energy. The terrifying power of the sword distorted even the surrounding space.

James slightly inclined the sword and slashed at the man.

The man simply bent his knees and raised his arms above his head. Then, terrifying True Energy gathered in his palm and formed a defensive barrier.

Boom!

The sword made contact with the defensive barrier.

The waves around the man were instantly blown away, and a crater a thousand meters deep appeared around him. As the powerful ripples swept through the sea, a tidal wave a hundred meters in height was formed.

“F*ck!” James cursed when he saw this. “What the hell is he? How did he manage to block my Fourteen Heavenly Swords with ease?”

At that moment, James’ Fourteen Heavenly Swords were no more. The sword formed using True Energy shattered, and his True

Energy was completely depleted.

However, James did not yield.

Holding the Primordial Dragon Blade in his hand, he charged toward the defensive barrier. At the same time, he forcibly gathered what little remaining True Energy inside his body and imbued his sword with the energy. Powerful Sword Energy burst forth from within the Primordial Dragon Blade, and he struck the defensive barrier once more.

However, the man’s True Energy was overwhelming. Even though James swung the Primordial Dragon Blade with all his remaining strength, he did not even make a dent in the defensive barrier.

His body simply remained frozen in the air.

The man waved, and powerful energy crashed toward James. James was sent flying and collapsed heavily into the sea.

From afar...

Sky’s face paled as he watched this.

“Don’t blame me for this, James. I want to save you, but I’m not strong enough to do so. Good luck out there. I’ll be taking my leave.”

Sky immediately catalyzed True Energy and propelled the raft away from the island.

Once James crashed into the sea, he slipped in and out of consciousness. After some time, he regained consciousness. Fearful, he allowed his body to plummet further into the depths. However, the further he sank, the weaker he grew.

At that moment, he realized he had to leave the water as soon as possible. Otherwise, his life would be in danger. Now that his True Energy was depleted, he was no different from any other ordinary person. If he continued sinking into the depths, he would drown to death.

Chapter 1728

Though James wanted to leave the sea, he did not dare expose himself. The man’s strength was simply overwhelming. Even though he had reached the peak of the Ninth Stair, a stage where his True Energy could no longer increase, and catalyzed the Invincible Body Siddhi, he was defeated almost as soon as the battle began. The man was simply too terrifying.

He was in a bind.

After some time, unable to hold his breath any longer due to a lack of True Energy, he had no choice but to leave the water.

His head slowly emerged from the sea as he scanned his surroundings. Seeing that the man had left, he breathed a sigh of relief and swam ashore.

He only landed ashore after swimming for an hour.

James climbed onto a rock and casually tossed the Primordial Dragon Blade aside. Then, he sprawled across the rock and rested. After resting for approximately half an hour, he climbed down from the rock after regaining some of his strength.

He muttered silently under his breath, “Curse you, Sky! To think you’d abandon me when I was stuck in a dire situation!” James had seen Sky fleeing from the corner of his eye. However, as he was preoccupied back then, he could not do anything about it.

Now, he had to make another raft to leave this place. He sat in a lotus position on the ground and catalyzed his cultivation methods in an effort to regain his depleted True Energy.

At the same time, Sky was already back on the island where their helicopter landed.

“Where’s the Dragon King?”

The moment Sky appeared, the pilot hurriedly asked.

Sky said, “He’s dead. We should leave this place now.”

“What?” Stunned, the pilot asked, “How can this be? With his strength…”

“Oh, shut up already. Why can’t you trust me? Hurry up and leave this place already, or else you might get both of us killed,” Sky said in annoyance.

The pilot fell silent. After being urged by Sky to leave, he had no choice but to ignite the engine and leave.

A day later, Sky returned to Cansington.

Immediately, Thomas came looking for him. Thomas knew that James had left overseas. As such, he had been observing the sea intently.

“Where’s James?” Thomas stopped Sky and asked, “You two went together. Why are you the only one who has returned?”

In truth, Sky did not wish to entertain Thomas. To him, he was simply a nobody. However, he was feeling guilty for leaving James behind, so he took a deep breath before saying, “We met an insanely powerful man at Dragon Abyss. While I was searching for clues of the dragon’s whereabouts, James, for some unknown reason, managed to provoke the man. By the time I arrived, the two were already in the midst of a battle.”

He paused momentarily before sighing, “James did not stand a chance against the man. His prospects of surviving are bleak. I saw that something wasn’t quite right, so I immediately fled.”

“What?” Thomas exclaimed and questioned him, “Repeat what you said.”

Sky uttered word by word, “James is dead.”

Although he did not see James die with his own eyes, he witnessed the scene of the battle. The man’s strength was overwhelming.

There was no way James could have survived that.

Upon hearing this, Thomas staggered backward. "Impossible! James is powerful, and the Primordial Dragon Blade is unparalleled. How could he have died?" Thomas said in disbelief.

"Hmph! What do you know?" Sky grunted and said, "There will always be someone greater than you out there. Some things are simply beyond our wildest imagination. Based on our speculation, the man inside Dragon Abyss could be someone from 1300 years ago. Can you imagine how powerful he would be after living for a millennium?"

Then, Sky turned to leave.

Meanwhile, Thomas was lost in thought.

At that same time...

In the Jade Sect at Mount Jade...

The Omniscient Deity was sitting on a rock while nibbling on a strand of grass.

At that moment, a pigeon came flying toward him.

He extended his arm, and the pigeon landed in his palm.

The Omniscient Deity retrieved the tiny piece of paper tied to the pigeon's feet and began reading.

Then, he stood up and exclaimed, "What? James is dead?"

He was taken aback.

James was a martial artist who had reached the peak of the Ninth Stair. He was the one closest to crossing into the ninth rank in a millennium. Now, he was dead.

"Gloom!" he cried out.

Fwoosh!

A figure swiftly entered the room and knelt before Omniscient Deity. The man who was dressed in a black robe spoke in a hoarse voice, "Your orders, Master?"

"I just received news that James is dead. Find Sky immediately. I want to know about the specifics."

“Understood.” The man nodded and hurriedly left.

Sky was the one who spread the news of James’ demise. In just a short amount of time, news had spread all across the ancient martial world of Sol and even beyond. Some foreign forces had also learned of the news.

“Hahaha! James is dead!”

“The Dragon King in Sol is dead.”

“This is the perfect opportunity to create disturbances. On my command, launch an armed assault along the Solean border.”

Upon hearing of James’ death, all foreign nations erupted into cheers.

At the same time, in Cansington...

At the Callahans...

Thea was sitting on a swing in the villa’s courtyard in boredom.

As she swung up and down, her white dress and black hair flowed in the air.

Then, the sound of hurried footsteps could be heard.

David hurriedly ran over to Thea and said anxiously, “Thea, something terrible has happened!”

Thea stopped swinging the swing and glanced at him before saying, “What’s wrong? Calm down.”

David said, “Everyone’s saying that James is dead.”

“What?” Thea stood up and exclaimed, “Did you say that James is dead?”

“Yes.”

“What’s going on?”

“How would I know?”

“Alright, I understand.” Thea waved her hand slightly and took her seat.

She was puzzled. James told her that it would be a short and safe trip and that he would only be investigating the dragon’s whereabouts. How did he die just like that? Thea could not figure this out.

Then, she pulled her phone out and called a number.

It was Callan's number, which James gave to her before his departure. Back then, James told her to call this number if she was in trouble whenever he was not around in Cansington.

Soon, the call went through.

Thea asked anxiously, "Is this Mr. Callan Maverick I'm speaking to?"

Callan's voice came from the phone, "Yes, Thea, it's me."

"Mr. Maverick, I hear that James is dead. Is that true?"

"I'm currently investigating the matter myself. Don't wander around outside. I'll be there soon."

Beep...

Just as Thea wanted to ask more, Callan hung up the phone.

She took a deep breath and silently prayed, 'Please be safe and sound. You promised me you would save me using the dragon's blood.'

Chapter 1730

Thea waited patiently at home after giving Callan a call.

She waited for an hour, during which every second felt like a year. She did not know how she managed to endure the excruciating wait.

An hour later...

As Thea was sitting on the swing, a figure suddenly leaped from outside the villa and appeared before her. Taken by surprise, she jumped in fright and stared at the unannounced arrival of the guest.

It was Callan.

He looked at Thea, who was startled, and said, "How do you do, Thea? I'm Callan Maverick."

As soon as she heard this, Thea breathed a sigh of relief and asked anxiously, "Hello, Mr. Maverick. Well, I expected you to be older than you look... In any case, how's James at the moment?"

Callan's expression turned grim. He had just learned of James' demise as well. He even went searching for Sky to learn about the specifics. Sky narrated to him the chain of events that unfolded on the island-from the discovery of Dragon Abyss to provoking the man who had lived for a millennium.

"Thea, James..."

"What happened to him? Tell me, quick!"

Thea was filled with consternation.

Although she no longer remembered James, everyone has been telling her that he was her husband. So, subconsciously, she had begun treating him as one.

Callan took a deep breath and said, "H-He might be dead."

"D-Dead?"

Thea staggered backward.

Callan hurriedly said, "However, no one saw his body. The authenticity of this news still remains to be seen."

"I-I understand."

Thea turned and entered the house.

Callan simply watched her retreating figure as she entered the house. He planned to head overseas and investigate the matter thoroughly.

After returning to her room, Thea sat on the bed.

At that moment, she was holding the blood given to her by the Omniscient Deity. Though she did not know what kind of blood this was, Lord Omniscient told her that it would allow her to regain both her strength and her memory. At that moment, she had to suppress the urge to consume the blood.

She had no idea whether James was still alive. Since she was unsure, she wanted to investigate the matter herself. However, she was only an ordinary person.

After thinking for a moment, she swallowed the blood whole.

Meanwhile, overseas...

James was sitting in a lotus position on a rock by the shore doing everything he could to restore his strength. Though a day had passed and his True Energy had recovered somewhat, it was completely depleted after he performed the Fourteen Heavenly Swords. Returning to peak form would require a few more days.

Pensive, he stared into the distance and murmured, "Has Sky returned to Sol by himself, or is he still waiting for my return?"

James was unsure.

He headed deep into the jungle in the distance and used the Primordial Dragon Blade to chop down trees to gather materials for the construction of a raft.

After the raft's construction, he hopped on the boat and left.

A few hours later, he arrived at the island where their helicopter landed. However, the helicopter was no longer there.

"F*ck!" James cursed. "Curse you, Sky! How am I supposed to return now?"

James waved the Primordial Dragon Blade and waves of materialized Sword Energy burst forward and destroyed the surroundings.

After some time of letting off steam, James stopped.
