

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1761

Chapter 1761

A cruise ship was already docked at Cansington's port before sunrise on Monday.

A group of people approached from a distance.

The person in the lead was a woman dressed in black with long black hair. She had an excellent figure and gorgeous looks. In her hand was a long black sword.

She radiated an extraordinary aura.

It was the Great Grandmaster of the whole martial community, Thea.

Following behind her was Thomas.

Several other masked men with long swords also followed behind Thomas.

The Meranian Psychics were right behind them.

Next were Polaris' Sect's Archbishop, the Blood Race's First Blood Emperor, and the Werewolf King.

Last in line were some powerful martial artists- including Sky, Callan, Simon, Bennet, Tanner Davis, Xavi Lee, Donovan, Spirit Master, and Master Maha.

Almost all the well-known powerful martial artists from Sol were present.

Even eighth-ranked grandmasters who had not shown up before joined to slay the dragon.

The group boarded the cruise ship under Thea's leadership.

A tan-skinned man in a Red Flame robe stood on the ship's deck.

It was Henry.

The military also provided a cruise ship for them.

"Thea."

Henry walked toward Thea and said, "The weapons have been secretly loaded onto the cruise ship. After I brief you about some important things you need to note, I'll get off the cruise ship. My strength is insufficient, and I'll only be walking into my death if I come along."

He had no intention of following them and was only in charge of providing them with transport and weapons.

"Alright." Thea nodded.

Afterward, Henry brought Thea to the armory.

"This is a military cruise ship. Although it's not as good as an aircraft carrier, it's good enough to serve your purpose. Some soldiers specialized in launching missiles, and sailing ships are on board. However, please remember they're soldiers and not sacrifices. I hope you bring them back safely."

"I will." Thea nodded earnestly.

She had also trained in the army for a while.

Moreover, James was also a soldier.

She knew that a soldier's duty was to protect the country.

"Since I'm bringing them with me, I'll make sure they return alive."

Henry was relieved after hearing Thea's guarantee.

After he explained some crucial things Thea had to pay attention to, he got off the cruise ship.

The cruise ship gradually set off.

As the cruise ship departed, a man appeared at the dock. He looked to be about his 30s but had white hair, and his eyes showed a weathered expression.

It was Langston who had come to Cansington.

It was not yet dawn.

When the cruise ship set off, Lanston's body flickered, and he immediately flew toward the ship in the distance. He zoomed toward it extremely fast and then found a place to hide on the cruise ship.

Meanwhile, James was sitting on a rock on the island and was slightly bored.

He had been on the island for a while, but no one else had appeared except the person who came to challenge Wilbur.

“What’s going on? It’s already been so long. Why hasn’t Sky brought people to slaughter the dragon yet?” James was slightly concerned.

In the beginning, he could spend his time studying Lunar and Terra Art and other martial art techniques. However, he no longer had the mood to study martial art techniques. All his thoughts were on Thea and her safety.

He was oblivious to the fact that Thea had become the Great Grandmaster and was leading the world’s most potent powerhouses to the overseas island.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1762

Chapter 1762

James waited on the island for a long time, yet Sky had not shown up with any martial artists.

Now, he was slightly distraught.

He missed Thea, who was far away in Cansington.

He sat on a rock by the seat and looked at the crashing waves with a slightly sorrowful expression. After a while, he sighed and stood up.

“Sky will surely come soon. Even if he doesn’t, Thomas will be coming. I should use this time to check on the dragon.”

James made his way back into the Dragon Abyss.

Wilbur was still inside Dragon Abyss.

James walked inside and saw a pile of weeds inside the cave.

Wilbur was seated in a lotus position among the weeds, and a dazzling light was surrounding his body.

When he saw James approach, he stopped cultivating and stood up.

James stretched out his hand, and a powerful force beamed from his fingertips, scribbling a sentence on the ground. “Do you know where the dragon is? I’d like to have a look for myself.”

Wilbur looked at James and wrote. “Don’t do it. The dragon is very strong. It’s not something you or I am capable of taking down. A disaster will befall us if we disturb the dragon’s slumber.”

“Is it really that scary?”

James was slightly unconvinced.

It was just a creature.

Even if he could not kill it, it should not be a problem to escape using his strength.

“It’s very, very strong.” After Wilbur wrote these words, he ignored James’ request.

James was even more disheartened.

Since Wilbur was unwilling to lead the way, he did not bother looking for it. It would be troublesome if he provoked the dragon and had to face it alone.

James also sat down in a lotus position and began to cultivate.

Meanwhile, an enormous cruise ship was advancing rapidly across the ocean.

Thea, who was in a black dress, sat in a lotus position on the bed inside one of the cruise ship’s rooms. A black light radiated from her body, and intense energy began to flow out from her.

She made use of her free time to absorb the energy within her blood.

Now, she had the qilin’s blood, dragon’s blood, and phoenix’s blood in her body. Her blood had completely mutated and contained a terrifying amount of energy.

While absorbing it, she felt slightly restless.

In her mind, the picture of James’ death and his voice calling for help plagued her.

At that moment, her hair was disheveled, and she was sweating profusely. Beads of sweat trickled down her cheeks. Thea knew she could suffer an Energy Deviation and go berserk if she continued.

So, she abruptly stopped cultivating.

Thea used Ataraxia, and the jumbled thoughts in her mind slowly disappeared.

She stood up, wiped the sweat off her face, and walked outside to the cruise ship’s deck with the Malevolent Sword.

Standing on the deck, she looked at the horizon worriedly. “James, are you alive or dead? You promised me that you’d come back with the dragon’s blood. You better not die on me.”

Click-Clack! Click-Clack! Click-Clack!

She heard the sound of someone in high heels approaching her.

Thea turned around and looked at the person.

It was a tall, fair-skinned woman with long, chestnut hair and an extraordinary air slowly walking toward her.

Her eyebrows were fine, and her eyes were clear and transparent. She oozed charisma.

Her facial features were delicate, like a carefully sculpted work of art, and she looked almost flawless. The woman walked over and stopped in front of Thea.

Thea looked at her with visible dissatisfaction and asked, “What’s wrong? What do you want?”

The woman was none other than Maxine.

Although Thea had announced that only eighth-ranked grandmasters were eligible to follow them on this journey, Maxine still insisted on coming because she was worried about James.

“Nothing. I was just bored in my room. I came out for a walk and didn’t expect to bump into you here too,” Maxine replied softly.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1763

Chapter 1763

Her breathy voice was pleasant to the ears, making one feel at ease.

She stood beside Thea, and the sea breeze tousled her long hair.

Maxine stretched out her slender fingers to tidy up her long chestnut-colored hair that was blown by the wind. She looked into the distance and sighed. “I hope you don’t resent me.”

“I don’t resent you.”

Thea was expressionless and replied very calmly.

Although she did not show any emotion, her tone was very cold and sounded very distant.

“Haah.”

Maxine sighed.

She knew Thea was angry with her.

After all, her interference caused so many unexpected situations.

“I didn’t expect James’ love for you to be so deep. After searching a year for you and learning you were alive without your memories, he traveled this vast ocean to investigate the dragon’s whereabouts. I, too, – hope that James is still alive.”

“I’m a little tired. I’ll head back inside to rest.”

Thea turned around and left.

Maxine’s words about hoping James was alive had struck a nerve.

Thea could not resist the sadness welling up in her chest.

As she turned around, crystal-clear teardrops fell from her eyes.

Maxine stood at the ship deck and remorsefully watched Thea leave.

The cruise ship continued chugging on rapidly.

In the blink of an eye, three days had passed.

They finally reached their destination.

Although it would only take one day by air, it took them three whole days to travel via a cruise ship.

At that moment, many people gathered on the cruise ship’s deck.

Standing in the front was Sky.

He glanced at the many islands before them and said excitedly, “It’s over there! It’s that island over there! James and I got off the plane on that island. The plane landed there, and we chose to head to the island where the Dragon’s Abyss was located by boat.”

The cruise ship slowly docked and stopped at one of the island’s coastlines.

The crowd gathered together and began to discuss their plan.

Thea said, "The cruise ship will be docked here. Unless absolutely necessary, it's forbidden to get anywhere close to the Dragon's Abyss, nor are we to use lethal high-tech weapons.

"We'll take the boats available on the cruise ship to the Dragon's Abyss.

"Any objections?"

Thea scanned the crowd.

"No." Everyone spoke in unison.

"Good."

Thea continued. "I hope everyone will work together to slay the dragon when the time comes. After it's dead, everyone will get an equal share of the spoils. I hope it doesn't end up similar to the fight that ensued when everyone was trying to snatch the Spirit Turtle's core."

No one objected, as splitting the spoils equally was the best outcome.

Ultimately, they would each have to rely on their own strength to make off with their own share of the spoils that were not divided equally.

After a brief discussion, everyone boarded the boats loaded on the cruise ship, and headed to the island where the Dragon's Abyss was located.

The boats were relatively small, and each could only accommodate three to four people.

Thea and Thomas were in the same boat.

On the way to the Dragon's Abyss, Thomas chided her, "Thea you're too naive. Although they seem to be listening to you right now, it'll all change the moment the dragon is dead. Everyone will inevitably get into an intense battle over the spoils."

Thea was well aware of that.

However, as their leader, she must ensure their safe return no matter what.

She looked at Thomas and said pleadingly, "Grandpa, I won't be able to control the others, but I hope you don't harm anyone over the dragon's spoils."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1764

Chapter 1764

Thea knew these martial artists that came to the island with her had their own motives and were eyeing the dragon's spoils.

She did not want to see a fight break out.

She planned to bring everyone back home safely.

However, there was nothing she could do if things went beyond her ability to handle them.

Thomas looked at Thea. Seeing her pitiful appearance, he felt sympathy for her.

He sighed. "Thea, you're still too naive. Putting everyone else aside, Sky and the Thunder King aren't going to defer to you. They're obeying your commands right now just to slay the dragon.

"Once the dragon is dead, they will take action."

Hearing this, Thea went silent.

Right now, she could not care less about the ancient martial world's affairs.

She only cared to ensure the soldiers on the cruise ship got to return home alive and in one piece.

As for these ancient martial artists who decided to quarrel for the dragon blood, it had nothing to do with her.

She did not say anything more.

The boat continued its rapid pace.

Meanwhile, James sat by a rock near the coast on the island with a piece of straw in his mouth as he watched the crashing waves.

Soon, a few boats appeared in the distance. He stood up excitedly and exclaimed, "They're coming! They're finally coming!"

After rejoicing for a moment, he eventually calmed down.

He had no idea who the people on the boat were.

There was no telling whether they would actually be able to take down the dragon, and no one could predict whether a fight would break out over the dragon's spoils.

James quickly turned around and met up with Wilbur.

He wrote on the ground. "People are coming, many of them. They're likely here to slay the dragon. Let's hide first."

Seeing the words written by James, Wilbur stood up instantly and began writing on the ground. "Are you sure?"

"I'm certain."

Wilbur did not waste any time and quickly left the area.

James followed behind him.

The two hid in advance before the boats could reach the island.

Soon, the boats docked.

The martial artists got off the boat one after another.

Thea got off the boat and scanned her surroundings. They were at the location where Sky filmed the video of James falling into the sea.

She turned around and looked at Sky behind her, asking, "Where did you meet the strange, hairy man?"

"In the Dragon Abyss at that mountain up ahead." Sky pointed in front of them.

Thea turned around and was about to leave in the direction Sky pointed.

Thomas quickly stepped in front of her and blocked her path, saying, "What're you doing, Thea? Are you trying to get everyone killed?"

"I'm going to find James! I'll find that hairy man and question him!" Thea shouted.

She did not come to the island to slay the dragon but to find James.

Thomas persuaded. "Thea, you need to calm down first. Since we're already here, we should check out the place first. If you recklessly take action, you'll only alert him. Even James wasn't able to stand up to him, so this person must be a ninth-ranked grandmaster. We'll have to proceed with a plan."

"I'm not afraid," Thea replied loudly.

She refused to be reasoned with.

Only James occupied her mind.

Holding the Malevolent Sword, she quickly rushed forward.

"This girl." Thomas followed with a helpless expression.

The group of martial artists was not afraid of the ninth-ranked grandmaster.

What was a mere ninth-rank martial artist against dozens of them?

No matter how strong, the party with the larger number would come out triumphant.

The world's top powerhouses were gathered here. Together, they could even defeat two ninth-ranked grandmasters.

Thea quickly sped forward and soon appeared in the Dragon's Abyss.

Sky followed her and pointed out the way for her.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1765

Chapter 1765

They entered the abyss, but it was empty.

After searching around in the abyss, they could not find anyone.

Meanwhile, James and Wilbur stood on a rock on a cliff, watching them search the abyss.

"Thea?"

James saw Thea.

Seeing Thea leading the team, James was confused. He murmured, "What's going on? Why is Thea here? Didn't she lose her memories and cultivation base? Why did she get herself involved in this mess?"

After spotting Thea, James could not himself back anymore.

In a flash, he quickly jumped off the cliff and landed at the bottom of the abyss.

Meanwhile, Thea was still looking around the abyss. She searched everywhere in the Dragon's Abyss but could not find the strange, hairy man or James. Feeling anxious, she shouted, "James, where are you? Come out! Please... come to me! Sobs..."

She shouted and burst into tears.

"Thea."

At that moment, a voice came from behind her.

Thea was stunned to hear the familiar yet unfamiliar voice.

She turned around.

A familiar figure was standing in front of her. Afraid she was hallucinating, Thea repeatedly rubbed her eyes. The figure walked closer to her.

"Thea, is it really you?"

"James?"

Thea choked up, and more tears rolled down her eyes.

She could not be bothered with how she looked to others and dashed into James' arms.

"Sobs, it's really you, James! It's really you! Thank god you're still alive."

James also embraced Thea.

He was surprised but also confused. He asked, "What's going on? Didn't you lose your memories? How did you recover? Also, why are you here with them?"

Thea wept for a while before she let go of James. With so many people watching, she felt a little embarrassed and lowered her head shyly.

At that moment, many people's eyes turned to Sky.

Feeling like he had been put on the spot, Sky said, "Why're you all looking at me? How would I know he's still alive? I saw him getting struck into the sea with my own eyes and thought he was dead."

Thea, on the other hand, explained everything that happened after James had left.

"What?" James was shocked.

“You’ve taken qilin, dragon, and phoenix blood?”

“Yeah.”

Thea smiled and said playfully, “According to the theories, I’m now an immortal with an endless lifespan.”

“The Prince of Orchid Mountain gave you phoenix blood, and the Omniscient Deity gave you qilin blood?”

James was stunned.

He never expected so much to happen after he left.

The others were also stunned after hearing Thea’s summary of the events that happened.

“The Omniscient Deity is an immortal?”

“No way.”

“He’s been hiding it extremely well if that’s true.”

“The Prince of Orchid Mountain being alive is unbelievable.”

Everyone was shocked by the revelation.

The information was beyond their imagination and knowledge.

“Mhm.”

Thea nodded her head and said earnestly, “It’s true. I’ve fully recovered now. My blood has mutated, and I’ve regained my blood’s regeneration ability. I’m pretty strong right now and have become the Great Grandmaster of the whole martial community.”

Thea flaunted her achievements to James.

James gently rubbed her little head and said with a smile, “I’m glad you’ve recovered. When we return, we’ll find a place hidden away from the outside world and leave all worldly affairs behind us.”

“Okay.”

Thea gave him a bright grin.

“James.”

Callan came over, patted James' shoulder, and beamed at him. "I knew you wouldn't kick the bucket so easily. I'm relieved to see you alive and well."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1766

Chapter 1766

After Callan stepped forward to greet James, those who knew him and even those unfamiliar with him followed suit.

James had displayed his terrifying strength abroad when he went to the Blood Race's territory.

Additionally, Thea had recovered her strength.

These two together were invincible.

No one would get away with antagonizing them.

It would not hurt to greet James and get acquainted with him. If anything, it would be extremely beneficial in the future.

"Grandpa."

James noticed Thomas and called out to him.

"Mhm."

Thomas nodded gently and replied with a smile, "I'm glad you're alive. Keeping yourself alive is more important than anything else."

James looked at Thea and asked, "You guys are here to slay the dragon, right?"

Thea nodded and said, "Yeah, we're here to slay the dragon. Its blood can make one immortal. Martial artists from all over the world have gathered together with this purpose in mind. This time, we're well prepared and have high-tech weapons with us. We'll bring out the weapons if our strength alone isn't enough to slay the dragon."

Since James was still alive, Thea had a change of heart and now was set on slaying the dragon.

She was already immortal and would live thousands of years at the very least.

Meanwhile, James was still just a mortal martial artist..

Although martial artists had longer lifespans, the longest they could live was up to two hundred years. Despite the ninth rank being regarded as Immortality, very few could reach this rank. Those who had done so were only successful when they used the Four Holy Beasts' blood.

Thus, no one could be certain whether immortality was granted by the Four Holy Beasts' blood or the ninth rank itself.

To be with James forever, Thea decided to slay the dragon and help James also become immortal. James glanced at the martial artists.

Many were familiar faces, and only a few were strangers to him. However, he could see that those who dared to slaughter the dragon were strong and stood at least at the eighth rank.

"Honey, do you know where the dragon is?" asked Thea.

"I only know the dragon is indeed on this island. I have yet to uncover its precise location." James shook his head and scanned the surroundings to check if Wilbur had followed him. However, Wilbur was nowhere to be seen.

"Although I don't know where it is, I know someone who does. Wait a minute. I'll go look for him."

James left.

He found Wilbur on a cliff above the Dragon's Abyss.

Wilbur sat on a rock sullenly.

James walked over and wrote on the ground. "What's wrong?"

Wilbur regained his senses and replied, "It's nothing. I'm just a little overwhelmed right now. I've lived here for so many years and am slightly uncomfortable with so many people on this island. I don't want to meet these outsiders."

At that moment, Wilbur felt conflicted about the situation.

With the arrival of these outsiders, he knew he could finally leave.

But what would happen after he leaves?

He was unsure of his future.

James wrote on the ground. "They're here to slay the dragon. They have come prepared and will surely be able to take it down. You can reveal the dragon's whereabouts to me."

Wilbur naturally knew these people had come for the dragon.

In the past, he also came to the island for the dragon.

However, his whole squad was wiped out.

"Mhm. I'll take you there."

Wilbur wrote a few words on the ground, and then he stood up.

James led the way and reunited with Thea and the other martial artists.

Seeing the strange, hairy man, everyone was on guard.

Sky was especially wary of him and took a few steps backward.

He had seen the terrifying strength of this person that could overpower even James. If this strange person were to take action, they would probably suffer severe casualties.

James promptly reassured them. "You don't have to be on guard. Wilbur is a very kind person. He absorbed some dragon blood, so he can't let his emotions overcome him. Otherwise, he'll suffer an Energy Deviation. He can lead the way to the dragon."

As soon as the dragon was mentioned, everybody's faces lit up with enthusiasm.

Wilbur remained silent.

He did not speak Solean. So even if he were to speak, no one would understand him.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1767

Chapter 1767

Wilbur turned around and began leading the way.

However, no one dared to follow him.

James quickly said, "Let's go. We'll find the dragon if we follow him."

With James' reassurance, the martial artists began to follow him.

Wilbur led the martial artists into the depths of the Dragon's Abyss. It did not take long before they reached the coast near a strait.

He pointed to the strait ahead and wrote in ancient script on the ground.

"The dragon dwells in the strait ahead of us."

There were quite a few people present who could read ancient scripts from thousands of years ago.

Seeing the words written by Wilbur, they became excited.

The Thunder King said, "Since we already know the dragon's location, what are we still waiting for? I'll go lure the dragon out, and everyone can attack together. I'm sure this beast can't take us all on at once."

After speaking, the Thunder King was about to rush into the strait.

However, Thomas dashed in front of him and blocked his path, saying coldly, "If you want to die, don't drag everyone else down with you."

The Thunder King glared at Thomas and shouted, "What do you mean by this? Who are you to speak to me with such impudence?"

The atmosphere immediately tensed up and became uneasy.

Thea quickly came between them and diffused the tension. "Don't act recklessly. We should discuss this first."

The Thunder King replied, "I'll let this go because of the Great Grandmaster. You better pay more attention to how you speak to me in the future or I'll tear you apart in just minutes."

Thomas smiled faintly and did not respond.

Everyone gathered together and began discussing how to lure and kill the dragon.

Standing behind, Linna whispered, "Captain, you're not a reckless person. What's wrong?"

"Ha."

The Thunder King sneered and whispered, "It was all just an act."

As he spoke, his face darkened.

“Don’t go all out later. Save as much strength as possible. After the dragon is slaughtered, kill everyone here. The dragon’s blood will be ours, and we’ll become immortals. In the future, we’ll be the ones that dictate the rules in this world.”

“Understood.”

Linna and the other psychics nodded.

Meanwhile, James and the others were forming a plan.

Everyone suggested Thea should be the one to lure out the dragon since she was the Great Grandmaster.

Thea was about to agree, but James pulled her behind him and stepped forward, saying, “I’ll go it instead.”

“That’ll work too.”

“We can rest assured if you’re going since you’re stronger than Thea.”

Everyone nodded in agreement.

Callan reminded. “Be careful out there, James.”

Polaris Sect’s Archbishop also said, “Do be careful. We’re facing a dragon. Even with our collective strength, we might not successfully kill it.”-

Thomas also advised. “If you face any problems, you don’t have to force it.”

James nodded. “Alright. I’ll be careful.”

With that said, he left and headed to the strait before them.

He walked to the center of the strait. Standing on the water’s surface, he suddenly dived into the sea and disappeared from everyone’s sight.

He kept descending into the bottomless strait. After advancing for more than a thousand meters, he still had yet to reach the bottom.

Thus, he continued to go deeper.

When he reached about 3000 meters into the sea, he spotted some massive rocks and started looking around. Soon, he found a cave.

The cave was enormous and was about tens of meters wide and hundreds of meters high.

He began to ponder.

According to Wilbur, the dragon has most likely hidden in the cave within this strait. He approached the cave entrance carefully. Then, he pulled out the Primordial Dragon Sword and lightly flicked it.

A terrifying Sword Energy burst out into the deep waters and caused a tsunami.

Roar!

Suddenly, there seemed to be a loud cry from the dragon.

Seeing the disturbance in the cave before him, James knew that the dragon had awoken.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1768

Chapter 1768

As the turbulence within the water became more intense, a strong current swept toward him. Despite ascending the Skyward Stairway's Ninth Rank, he could not withstand the force and was blasted away, swirling around in the water.

He quickly backed away and retreated to a safe distance.

Although he was at the bottom of the sea, the water was crystal clear, and he could see everything before him.

A head protruded from the massive stone cave before him.

It was an enormous camel-like head with slanted horns on top.

The dragon also had a long beard and large eyes that emitted a red light like a pair of lanterns.

It opened its mouth and revealed two rows of sharp teeth. As it opened its mouth, a terrifying force swept across the water, causing another tempest in the sea. James quickly backed away, but the pressure crashed into him, and he felt pain wrack his body.

James swung the Primordial Dragon Blade in his hand.

A Sword Energy burst out.

It charged forward rapidly at the dragon's head.

After one attack, James quickly turned and fled without hesitating.

His purpose was merely to lure out the dragon.

At that moment, everyone stood at the coast and stared at the strait.

Suddenly, the calm waters began to churn.

Someone exclaimed.

Everyone stared at the sea surface. Under the countless gazes, the calm sea began to roil violently, and huge waves tens of meters high began to form, crashing into the two cliffs near the strait.

Some rocks fell because of the huge waves, and they tumbled into the sea.

“It’s...It’s coming!”

“Is it really the dragon?”

“We’re about to have an intense battle with the dragon!”

“I’m so nervous!”

Everyone held their breath.

Swoosh!

At that moment, a figure surfaced from the bottom of the sea and quickly appeared before everyone.

“Are you okay?” Thea quickly approached.

James casually wiped away the sea water on his face and said, “I’m alright. I saw the dragon.”

With that, he turned around and looked at the sea.

The sea was churning violently, and waves crashed everywhere. Soon, a massive head surfaced from the water.

Roar!

As soon as the dragon's head emerged, it let out a furious growl. The sound was deafening, and even the eighth-ranked grandmasters present felt discomfort in their ears.

The snarling dragon shot up from the water.

James finally could see its appearance clearly.

The dragon was more than 30 meters long, and its body was about seven to eight meters thick.

It had horns like a deer, a head like a camel, eyes like a rabbit, a neck like a snake, scales like a fish, claws like an eagle, palms like a tiger, and ears like an ox.

The dragon was a combination of many animals.

Thus, various animal features could be seen on it.

The dragon lacked a tail, which made it look slightly strange.

The 30-meter-long dragon leaped tens of meters into the air.

Everyone quickly retreated several hundred meters away upon seeing this scene.

Seeing the colossal dragon, many people gasped.

Thea suddenly stepped forward and said, "Everyone, I'm afraid we can't kill the dragon. The dragon is Sol's patron animal. As descendants of the dragon, we must not kill it."

At that moment, Thea felt slight regret over her choice.

She no longer wanted to kill the dragon because it was similar to what she had seen in the picture.

However, the one she saw in the picture was golden yellow in color, and the one in front of her was cyan-colored.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1769

Chapter 1769

A powerful aura emanated from the dragon. Despite standing a distance away, Thea still felt suffocated by it, as if a boulder was crushing her. It made it difficult for her to breathe.

"Charge!!!"

Thomas pulled out his weapon.

Swoosh!

As Thomas drew his sword, a dazzling Sword Light shot up into the sky.

The Sword Light dispersed the clouds, and the sky was cleared instantly.

“This...?”

Many people looked on in awe as they noticed the sword Thomas was holding.

“The Malignant Sword?”

“It’s the infamous Malignant Sword!”

“I never expected Thomas to have the sword.”

“Is that really the Malignant Sword recorded in history?” Simon exclaimed.

The Malignant Sword was a famous and highly reputable sword recorded in history.

It was the sword of a wretched king of 1,800 years ago. After his death, there were no more records of it in history.

Thomas pulled out the Malignant Sword and pointed it at the cyan dragon in the distance. Then, he shouted, “My fellow martial artists, do you remember why we came here? We’re here to kill the dragon! Now that the dragon is right in front of us, brandish your weapons and slaughter the dragon! We’ll split the dragon’s blood equally, and everyone shall gain immortality together!”

Thomas’ voice rang out.

“Attack!!!” Sky also shouted.

Sky followed suit and drew his sword.

Although his sword was not as famed as Thomas, it was still far from ordinary and shined brightly. Swoosh!

One after another, everyone began to draw their swords.

At that moment, the cyan dragon in the distant sky opened its mouth and spewed out its dragon’s breath. Immediately, the powerful breath swept forward, causing enormous waves to crash and the wind to howl.

However, the crowd was not cowed by the display. They held their weapons and moved against the opposing force.

Thomas charged at the very front, swinging his Malignant Sword to form Sword Energies to resist the strong wind. The others spread out and surrounded the dragon.

Thea walked toward James and tugged him, saying anxiously, "Honey, we mustn't kill the dragon." James also did not want to kill the dragon.

As a Solean, he naturally knew the dragon's legend, and how there was a traditional saying that they were descendants of the dragon.

The dragon was Solean's spiritual symbol.

However, there was nothing he could do to stop it since things had already come to this.

"Thea, I'm afraid there's no stopping it this time. Killing the dragon is of the utmost importance. What we have to do next is to reap the benefits after the dragon is slain. After the dragon is killed, there's no saying how many powerful martial artists will be born.

"These people have their own motives, and to subdue them, we'll have to be stronger than them."

Thea's face was full of reluctance.

The moment she saw the dragon, she had a change of heart.

It felt like she saw her own relative.

At that moment, she felt saddened.

She knew there was no stopping it from happening.

What was left for her to do was just as James' mentioned-reap the benefits.

Thea looked at James and said, "Honey, I heard from Sir Caden that the dragon's spoils are all extraordinary. However, the most valuable part isn't its blood but the Dragon Essence."

James was taken aback and asked, "What's Dragon Essence?"

Thea explained, "It's like the Spirit Turtle's core, but the Dragon Essence is much more remarkable than the Spirit Turtle's core. The effect also differs. The Dragon Essence can enhance one's cultivation base and True Energy. After the dragon is slaughtered, we must join forces to snatch the Dragon's Essence. We can't let it fall into other people's hands."

Boom!

At that moment, an intense battle had broken out in the sky.

Many people besieged the dragon, and people swung their swords wildly to unleash fearsome Sword Energies on the dragon.

The Sword Energy attacks slashed against the dragon's body.

However, the dragon's scales were tough, and their vital Sword Energies could not even leave a slight scratch on it.

In a short moment, at least thousands of Sword Energy had struck the dragon's body, but the dragon remained unscathed.

Being besieged by the martial artists, the cyan dragon grew enraged.

The dragon suddenly rushed forward and darted through the sky in James' direction. Then, it swung its claw at Thomas.

Thomas quickly evaded it.

The dragon's claw missed its mark.

A terrifying power was left by the strike.

The force destroyed a stone wall in the strait below. In an instant, the mountain collapsed, and boulders rolled into the sea.

Chapter 1770

The dragon was a force to be reckoned with.

A single blow was enough to cause such destructive damage.

Thomas was covered in a cold sweat after he dodged. If he had been struck, he would have been shredded to pieces.

At that moment, Zekiel held onto the Hellfire Sword. His sword was like a ball of flame, blazing with a fiery, red Sword Light. He charged at the dragon incredibly fast and thrust the sword at the dragon's side.

However, before he could get close to the dragon, it turned around, creating a huge gust. Zekiel was swept away by the strong wind and could not find his balance. He quickly circulated his True Energy and retreated.

The intense battle continued to play out in the sky.

None of the martial artists used their signature martial art technique and seemed to be testing the waters, hardly putting any effort into the fight.

Everyone had the same idea-to preserve their strength as much as possible.

They knew there would be a fierce battle after the dragon was slaughtered.

Thus, they were all trying to save their strength to vie for the spoils later.

Thea and James stood in the distance and had yet to join the battle.

The two were watching the battle take place.

Wilbur also did not partake in the battle.

James knew these martial artists alone were insufficient to kill the dragon.

He walked toward Wilbur and wrote a few words on the ground. "Are you not going to participate?"

Wilbur wrote. "I don't intend to. I'm not interested in the dragon's blood or its essence. My only wish is for you guys to leave as soon as possible after killing the dragon. I don't want my quiet life to be interrupted." For thousands of years, Wilbur had lived alone on this island.

He was already accustomed to the quiet and peaceful days.

The sudden appearance of so many people made him uncomfortable.

After replying to James, he turned and left.

James frowned.

Among this group of people, Wilbur was the strongest. It would be hard to kill the dragon without him. While James was watching Wilbur leave, the battle had already drawn closer to them.

“Honey, be careful!”

Thea shouted and quickly appeared in front of James, pulling him aside.

Boom!

After the two got out of the way, a terrifying and destructive force instantly collided with their previous location.

James, who had already escaped a few hundred meters away, looked at Thea and scratched his head. Then, he said with a smile, “Thanks, Thea. If I got hit, I would’ve been severely injured in the event I didn’t get killed immediately.”

Thea looked at the battle solemnly and said, “That’s enough about this. Let’s join the battle.”

Although Thea felt sympathy and did not want the others to kill the dragon, there was nothing she could do to stop it since things had already progressed so far. All she could now was to kill the dragon together and partake of its spoils to bolster her strength.

“Alright.” James nodded.

The two quickly dashed over.

The Malevolent Sword in Thea’s hand emitted a 100-meter-long black Sword Light.

Bzzt!

The Sword Light swept across the sky with devastating strength.

Despite being strong, the dragon was assailed by many people and was at a loss on how to react.

Thea’s attack was too fast, and the 100-meter-long Sword Energy struck the dragon.

It dealt a massive blow to the dragon, causing a few scales on the dragon to fall off.

Some blood spilled out from the wound.

“Haha! The dragon is injured!”

“As expected from our Great Grandmaster! Her attacks are much more potent than ours!” Everyone saw a glimpse of hope after seeing that the dragon had sustained some damage.

The Thunder King floated 10 meters in the air in the distance. Countless sparks of white lightning danced around him. The lightning struck the dragon. Each time the dragon was struck, the force would blast it in one direction and then the other.

Roar!

The dragon was furious.

It opened its bloody mouth and spat out a cyan energy ball.

The energy ball charged at the Thunder King with intense force.

“Captain! Careful!”

The other psychics yelled out.

The Thunder King attacked from a distance so he could dodge before the cyan energy ball shot toward him.

Boom!

As soon as he dodged, the surrounding area exploded instantly.
