Chapter 451

This scent felt rather familiar to him...

It was the scent he smelled that time when Zoe took off her clothes to seduce him, as much as it triggered his rhinitis.

But it was as mesmerizing as it was before, and it almost made him throw all caution to the wind and just go ahead with her...

The final line of defense in his heart eventually made him push her away.

He was already trying his hardest to forget her tears, sorrow, and misery from that time, but her scent alone was still fresh in his memory no matter how much time had passed.

It never failed to send his heart racing.

And right now, she was wearing her favorite perfume for another man.

Had she really let things go, and was that why she was using the perfume?

At least, he had not smelled that scent on her for a very long time.

Jay's lips lifted in a smile, but tears blurred his vision.

He blew his hair dry before leaving the bathroom.

There was no one in the living room, for Zoe was probably keeping Bob company in the bedroom.

Looking at Bob's flushed face and furrowed brows and thinking back on Sam's dog, which was the reason why Bob got himself so drunk, Zoe became rather frustrated.

Sam had better avoid her the next time he saw her if he knew what was good for himself.

Otherwise, she would not hesitate to make him down gallons of alcohol!

"Drink..." Bob squirmed in discomfort.

"Do you need water?" Zoe leaned in closer to him.

"Drink water..." Bob repeated himself.

"Hang on," Zoe did not expect Bob to still be thirsty, which was why she did not prepare more tea for him.

She immediately left the bedroom.

When she walked out, she saw that the living room was empty and that Jay was not around.

Had he left?

Jay thought that his voice was so soft that it was almost indiscernible.

Yet, Zoe heard it.

She looked at him. “What’s the matter?”

“Things look very good between you and Bob,” Jay said with a smile.

“Aren’t you very glad about that?” Zoe said as she looked straight at him.

“No...”

“It’s all thanks to you,” Zoe said forthrightly, “If it weren’t for your rejection, I wouldn’t have known how good Bob is. I didn’t even know I could like someone so much.”

Jay swallowed past his constricted throat.

He dared not reveal his inner emotions, for he was afraid that he might lose control over himself.

“You’re probably very surprised that Bob and I even got together in the first place, I suppose?” Zoe looked at Jay as she went on, “Bob has been carrying a torch for me for many years, but because he knew that I liked you, he kept his feelings to himself, for fear that he might lose the friendship should he confess. It was only until I faced difficulties and he helped me overcome them without question that he finally confessed to me that he liked me.”

The door was unlocked and it opened the moment Jay pulled on the handle.

He saw Bob lying on top of Zoe on the floor in the room.

Their posture was...very suggestive.

Jay turned around in his shock.

He had thought in fact, he had no idea what he thought had happened. He simply thought that something bad might have occurred, which was why he rushed in without further thought.

He really did not think that he might stumble upon such a scene.

“Jay!” Zoe suddenly called out.

She called out to him when he was about to stride off in a hurry.

Jay stopped in his tracks. “I wasn’t trying to interrupt both of you...”

“Please come and help me out. Bob needs the washroom.” Zoe panted.

Zoe handed Jay a glass of water. “Have a drink.”

Jay looked up at Zoe and took it over. “Thanks.”

Whenever the both of them were alone with each other, things always felt somewhat unnatural.

“It’s getting late. Go back earlier. I’ll take care of Bob. Thank you for tonight,” Zoe said with sincerity.

She was truly thankful that Jay sent Bob back and helped him to the washroom, wiped him clean, and got him changed.

“Don’t mention it. Bob is my friend too.”

“Anyway, it’s really getting late.” Zoe did not want to exchange any more pleasantries with Jay.

She was clearly chasing him away.

Jay walked out of Zoe’s bedroom toward the living room, and Zoe walked alongside him to the door out of courtesy.

When Jay stepped out of the door, he turned around, wanting to tell her to rest early and show some concern.

But before he could utter a word, the door shut in his face.

She really did not want to see him anymore.

Jay simply stared at the door before finally snapping into the elevator.

“But I do!” Bob declared aloud.

“What?” Yulia was shocked to hear that.

“I’ll tell you the truth. I spent the night at my girlfriend’s house.”

“Who is she?”

“Things aren’t stable between us yet. I’ll bring her back home to see you once things are more settled,” Bob knew clearly that now was not a good time.

If his mom were to find out that he rejected Cora because of Zoe, she would probably burst out in anger.

“Don’t you dare pull my leg on this.”

“I can handle my personal affairs. Leave me alone,” Bob said with a tinge of frustration in his voice.

The two of them stared at each other for a while.

Yulia was the first to open her mouth. "It's you, Zoe York."

She surveyed Zoe from head to toe.

It felt as if she noticed a difference from when she last saw her.

"Are you looking for me?" Zoe remained calm and asked her.

"Who else, if not you? Or should I be looking for Bob?" Yulia said sarcastically.

The fact that Yulia appeared here meant that she knew about her relationship with Bob.

"Come in," Zoe said, inviting Yulia in. "No need to take off your shoes. I don't have extra slippers.”

Yulia entered her apartment and looked around. It was neither huge nor luxurious, but it was very warm and inviting.

She sat on the couch as Zoe poured her a glass of water.

She did not expect Zoe to be in an even better shape after what happened to her family.

Chapter 458

She knew very clearly how obsessed people of high society were about appropriate marriages.

“If the incident didn’t happen to you, I would have been glad to approve of you and Bob together. I used to like you from the bottom of my heart, not just because of your family background back then, but because of your personality which I really appreciated. I’ll be honest with you-Nancy Levine has been trying to matchmake Cora with my son. I’ve seen Cora before and truly, she’s no match for you in every sense of the word.”

Zoe’s eyes flickered.

She was shocked to know that Nancy would bother matchmaking Cora and Bob.

In fact, Bob was not too bad himself.

He might seem like he usually goofed around too much, but his family background was impressive.

Nancy probably thought that since Cora had just come, it would be better for Cora to have someone else aside from her own mother watching over and protecting her.

Nancy was indeed thoughtful and considerate in all things for Cora’s sake.

Zoe looked at Yulia.

She had heard from Nancy that Yulia was a strong-headed woman.

Yulia looked gentle and magnanimous, but when she was forced to a corner, she was the kind that would hack people into pieces in retaliation.

“Zoe, I don’t know how receptive you are to the many things I’ve said, but I hope you can think about it. Is it worth it for Bob to lose everything, even at my expense, for the sake of your so-called love?”

“Why, why must you force my hand like this?” Zoe’s eyes turned red. She looked at Yulia and questioned her, “Have you ever loved anyone in your life?”

“I have, but so what?” Yulia smiled but tears glimmered in her eyes as she said, “He could always betray me and be with another woman. Tell me, how long can a romance stay fresh and exciting for? When I first started dating Charles back then, he could stay up for three days and three nights straight just to prepare a surprise for me. Even such fervent love was unable to withstand the test of time. Of course, I’m not doubting the love between you and Bob. I just want to remind you that if your romance is eventually doomed to fizzle, do you really think Bob wouldn’t regret choosing you? Choosing you and giving up everything he has?”

Zoe bit her lip.

Tears fell uncontrollably from Zoe’s eyes as she stared at the credit card.

She recalled how expectantly Bob looked this morning when he left her place.

Who would have thought that the hasty goodbye they bade to each other would be for forever?

Her phone screen lit up.

Zoe glanced at it and saw a message from Bob. [I’ll reach the latest by 8 PM tonight.

I’ll wash my chubby self squeaky clean and make sure I smell nice before going over.]

Tears blurred her vision so badly that she could hardly make out what Bob texted her.

She could only think about how excited and expectant Bob was when typing out this message... and how hurt he would be when he knew what she was about to do!

Zoe wiped her tears away, picked up her phone, and ignored all of Bob’s messages.
