

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4156-Upon seeing his son in such a state, Bernard was filled with heartache. However, he could only step forward and tug at the iron chain helplessly.

He couldn't let Cedric escape, otherwise all the alchemists present would be in deep trouble.

"Cedric, stay calm, stay calm..." Bernard comforted Cedric.

"Father, let me die, let me die, I'm truly in agony..." Cedric was desperately trying to suppress his restlessness as he pleaded.

However, just as he finished speaking, his expression immediately changed, and he began to struggle desperately.

After what seemed like an eternity, Cedric gradually calmed down. He looked exhausted.

Bernard looked at Cedric, his heart aching with a sense of helplessness.

However, there was nothing else he could do.

"Father... I beg you... Please... Let me die, I'm truly in so much pain!" Cedric pleaded to Bernard.

At that point, living was too difficult for him. Death seemed like a better release!

Bernard gazed at his son, tears slowly trickling down his face. Despite being the Emperor of Allardland, a figure revered by countless people, he couldn't save his own son!

This sense of helplessness aged Bernard considerably in an instant.

Bernard cast a glance at Cedric, then slowly approached Jared. Although there was still a hint of anger in his gaze, the intent to kill had already vanished.

"Go ahead, all I wish for is that my son won't suffer any pain when he leaves!" With a sense of resignation, Bernard accepted Cedric's fate.

Cedric's existence was just a torment to Bernard, Cedric himself, and the entire Allardland.

“Your Majesty, don’t be too distressed. Perhaps your son will be all right after taking the poison pill. Perhaps, only by confronting death can one find a way out.” After exchanging a few words with Bernard, Jared made his way toward Cedric.

Bernard stared blankly at Jared, not understanding what he meant. However, there was a glimmer of hope in Bernard’s eyes.

Given the state his son was in, perhaps the poison pill in Jared’s possession could indeed offer a glimmer of hope!

Everyone was looking at Jared, completely clueless about what he was thinking at that moment. They were even more in the dark about what Bernard had on his mind.

After all, no one could bear to witness their own son swallow a poison pill.

“Prince Cedric, I have two pills here. One is the memory loss pill and the other is a poison pill. If you choose to take the memory loss pill, you will forget your past and lose all your memories. Everything will start anew! However, if you choose the poison pill, it will cause your death through poisoning. However, it will allow you to retain a shred of your soul with your previous memories. You will slowly wander through the Ethereal Realm!” Jared offered two pills to Cedric as he spoke.

As Cedric gazed at the black and white pills, he suddenly burst into laughter.

He looked at Jared with a touch of disbelief and said, “After all these years, you’re the only one who truly understood the root of my ailment. You’re the only one who truly saw me...” “What is love in this world that commands one to vow their life and death to another? I believe that girl was quite stunning. You are deeply in love with her...” Jared turned to Cedric and said.

Cedric paused slightly before murmuring Jared’s words to himself, “What is love in this world that commands one to vow their life and death to another? What a profound statement. We truly did devote ourselves to each other. Now that she’s gone, what’s the point of me living?” As Cedric spoke, he suddenly pulled out something that resembled a Luminous Pearl from his pocket.

The Luminous Pearl shimmered with a radiant glow, and within it, a girl clad in white was constantly running, her face beaming with joy!

Meanwhile, Cedric was trailing behind her. Both of them appeared so joyful and content.

“This was the last time I saw her as captured in the Luminous Pearl. Every time I regained my senses, I would take it out and reminisce!”

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4157-“She was a good girl. Although she wasn’t particularly gifted or powerful and she didn’t come from a prominent background, she was kind. Unlike those cultivators in the Ethereal Realm, she didn't have the ambition to ascend into immortals. I've been surrounded by countless women, but only when I'm with her do I truly experience joy and warmth!" The more Cedric said, the gentler his gaze became.

At that moment, Cedric no longer exhibited any signs of frenzy or bloodlust.

After he finished speaking, he picked up the poison pill and tossed it directly into his mouth without hesitation.

"I can face death, but I can't bear to forget her. I have to go find her. Thank you for liberating me. If there's another life, I'll repay you then!" Cedric looked at Jared with deep gratitude.

"There's no need to talk about the next life. You'll have the chance to repay me!" With that, Jared turned around and stepped down, leaving Cedric bewildered and confused about what he just said.

But soon, Cedric felt as if his whole body was being scorched by flames. He felt like he was about to explode!

He knew that the poison pill had taken effect!

Cedric didn't bellow and yell. Instead, he sat cross-legged in the iron cage, silently awaiting death!

Before long, Cedric's consciousness became increasingly hazy. He felt like he could almost see the girl that he cherished so dearly.

Bernard looked at his own son, his heart filled with immense pain.

Jared walked up to Bernard and said softly, "Your Majesty, as I've mentioned before, only by confronting death can one find a way out. Although it's a poison pill, it's also a pill that can untangle his inner turmoil. Actually, Prince Cedric isn't ill at all. It is simply that his longing has grown so intense that it has led to an alteration in his consciousness and resulted in a split of his personality. To put it precisely, he has dissociative identity disorder, which is considered a form of mental illness!" "Mental illness?" Bernard slightly furrowed his brows. "Love sickness?" "Does your son have a girl he's particularly fond of?" Jared inquired.

Bernard nodded and explained, "Yes, he was very fond of a girl. However, this girl comes from an ordinary family, with no power or influence. Besides, her cultivation level is also not up to par. Since she can't offer any assistance to Cedric, I didn't approve of them being together. In order to get Cedric to give up, I told him that the girl had already passed away so that he wouldn't keep pining for her." "So, the girl isn't dead?" Jared asked.

“Yes, she isn’t dead. She has been living in Epea all along,” Bernard replied.

“That’s fantastic! My poison pill only temporarily prevents him from losing his mind. If the girl isn’t dead, the only one who can fix the problem is the one who created it. If you want your son to fully recover, only that girl can make it happen!” Jared said.

“So, it turns out my son’s illness was all because of that girl. I never realized he was so deeply in love with her. Ah, it was all due to my foolishness. Why did I try to interfere? I almost caused his death. Now that Cedric has eaten the poison pill, isn’t he going to die?” At that moment, Bernard began to develop some trust toward Jared.

“Of course not. Even though the poison pill has the power to end a life, everything in this world has its counterbalance. My poison pill was designed specifically to counteract mental fragmentation. Given Prince Cedric’s abilities, the poison pill will undoubtedly cause him some harm, but it certainly won’t be fatal,” Jared reassured Bernard.

As soon as Jared finished speaking, Cedric suddenly spat out a mouthful of fresh blood. Immediately after, he was tormented by an agonizing headache, his eyes turning an intense, fiery red.

Stunned, everyone looked at Jared. Given Cedric’s current condition, it seemed like the poison pill had taken effect. They doubted he would survive!

After violently spewing a few mouthfuls of fresh blood, Cedric suddenly collapsed!

In a rush, Bernard quickly moved forward to unlock the iron cage and carry Cedric out of it.

After around thirty minutes, Cedric came to his senses surprisingly. Although his aura had noticeably weakened, the violent and restless energy was gone!

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4158-Upon seeing that Cedric was not only alive but also awake, everyone’s faces were filled with astonishment.

They couldn’t believe that he survived the poison pill. Judging from the recent situation, Cedric was undoubtedly doomed!

Could it really be possible that the poison pill could cure illness?

Everyone present were alchemists, so they obviously knew that poison pills couldn’t cure diseases. Yet, when Jared gave Cedric the poison pill, Cedric didn’t die. Instead, the wild energy that had been emanating from him disappeared!

As a matter of fact, this poison pill had been inspected by many and was indeed confirmed to be poisonous.

“How could that be possible?” Finding it hard to believe, Thaddeus darted forward and released a surge of spiritual energy into Cedric’s body.

Moments later, Thaddeus stepped back looking dumbfounded.

“Is he... Is he really cured?” Thaddeus appeared somewhat dazed.

Wyatt, Hartwin, Maxence... A crowd of alchemists gathered around and began to examine Cedric’s health!

They were eager to know if Cedric had been successfully treated.

If Jared had truly managed to find a cure, they could certainly learn a thing or two from him.

After all, the purpose of the Alchemist Fair was to provide a platform for numerous alchemists to come together and learn from each other.

Bernard was standing at the side and observing his own son, who was being scrutinized by everyone around him as if he was an exhibit.

“It’s strange, truly strange. How can a poison pill possibly cure an illness?” Hartwin looked at Jared incredulously and asked respectfully, “Mr. Chance, can you possibly enlighten me on how you managed to accomplish this? Of course, every alchemist has their own ultimate skill. It’s okay if you don’t want to share yours...” Hartwin knew that every alchemist had their own ultimate skill. Even at the Alchemist Fair, where everyone shared and learned from each other, no one would reveal their ultimate skills.

“Mr. Bellamy, to be honest, it isn’t any ultimate skill. It’s just that I’ve encountered this type of illness before, while you all haven’t!” Jared said with a faint smile.

In the mundane world, there was no shortage of mental illnesses. They came in every shape and form!

There were plenty of people with dissociative identity disorders like Cedric.

There were even people who would be a man one moment and a woman the next. It was not at all unusual.

However, this type of illness was quite rare in the Ethereal Realm, which was why many physicians had never encountered it and did not know how to treat it!

“Mr. Bellamy, has my son truly recovered?” Bernard asked Hartwin in disbelief.

After all, Bernard could trust Hartwin’s reputation.

“Your Majesty, it is indeed true that Prince Cedric has recovered under my examination. He no longer carries the aura of bloodlust. Although his internal energy has weakened slightly, this is not a significant issue!” Hartwin said, Bernard looked at Jared and expressed his gratitude agitatedly. “Young lad, thank you. I will always remember what you’ve done today!” After Bernard finished speaking, he quickly helped the confused Cedric to his feet.

Upon opening his eyes, Cedric found himself surrounded by a crowd. Various auras were circulating within his body and thoroughly examining his physical condition.

Up until then, Cedric was still utterly confused, unsure whether he was dead or alive.

Bewildered, Cedric looked at Bernard and asked, “Father, am... am I still alive?” “Son, you’re alive. You’ve recovered. Everything is all right now. It was all my fault. I shouldn’t have forcibly separated you and Scarlett. I lied to you. Miss Scarlett isn’t dead, she has been living in Epea all along.” Recalling Jared’s advice, Bernard hurriedly told Cedric the truth.

Upon hearing this, Cedric was completely taken aback. After a long moment, tears welled up in his eyes. “Father, please don’t lie to me. Is it true that Scarlett isn’t dead?” “She isn’t dead, she really isn’t. Once we get back, I’ll let you marry Ms. Scarlett. After all these years, I’ve come to understand that all this talk about matching social status and prominent families are all nonsense. As long as you’re doing well, nothing else matters. I promise I won’t interfere with your love life anymore.” Bernard was filled with regret. Had it not been for Jared’s successful treatment of his son, he would have been consumed by self-loathing!

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4159-

Bernard had selfishly sacrificed his son’s feelings all for the sake of his own ambitions.

Cedric was overwhelmed with emotion. Suddenly, he turned to Jared and knelt down!

After all, Cedric was a noble prince. It was inconceivable for him to kneel before someone so easily!

However, at that moment, Cedric knelt down before Jared!

He didn’t kneel down because Jared had saved his life. To him, his own life didn’t matter!

The reason he knelt before Jared was because Jared had facilitated his union, enabling him to be with the woman he loved.

“Prince Cedric, you mustn’t...”

Upon seeing the situation, Jared quickly rushed forward to help Cedric up.

Everyone around was filled with immense envy when they saw Cedric kneeling before Jared. If Jared made a small request at that moment, there was no doubt that Bernard would agree without hesitation!

In the future, he was destined to be an honored guest of Allardland too.

“Young lad, you saved my son. You deserve his respect. Starting from today, you are the honored guest of Allardland. Whenever you choose to visit Allardland, you are free to come and go from the palace as you please.”

Once Bernard finished speaking, he presented Jared with a dazzling golden token.

When everyone saw the token, they were green with envy. Possessing such a token meant that Jared could freely move in and out of Allardland. Besides, it meant that he had immense power!

However, Jared did not immediately reach for the token. This was because what Jared truly desired was not the token, but the immortal’s bone.

What if I take the token and they decide not to give me the immortal’s bone?

Bernard saw through Jared’s apprehensions and chuckled. “Young lad, hold onto this token. The reward listed on the Doctor-Searching List will still be yours. It’s just that I don’t have the immortal’s bone with me now. I’ll have to fetch it for you!”

Upon hearing Bernard’s words, Jared awkwardly chuckled as he accepted the token.

“I have faith in Your Majesty’s character!” Jared said with a laugh.

“Young lad, I’m still unaware of who you are. Do you mind letting me know?” Bernard asked.

“My name is Jared Chance...” Jared revealed his own name.

“Jared Chance?”

Bernard was taken aback.

Many alchemists were taken aback too, as the name was all too familiar to many!

After all, many people were aware of the person who had a hundred-year offering bounty on his head by the Demon Seal Alliance.

“So, you’re the same Jared who is being hunted down by the Demon Seal Alliance with a hundred-year offering?” Bernard questioned.

“Your Majesty, how do you know about that?” Jared asked back, but this also meant admitting his own identity.

Seeing Jared admit it, many had a greedy look in their eyes. How they wished they could rush up right then and there to apprehend Jared!

The hundred-year offering from the Demon Seal Alliance was an unimaginable wealth of resources!

Jared could also sense the greedy gazes amidst the crowd.

However, Jared was not afraid. Since he had the courage to reveal his identity and admit it, he had nothing to fear!

“I believe this matter has become common knowledge in the Ethereal Realm. How will I possibly not know about it? Yet, you had the audacity to publicly admit your own identity. That took some guts. Aren’t you afraid?”

Bernard was rather curious, wondering why Jared dared to reveal his own identity.

Among the many people present, quite a few were after the hundred-year offering from the Demon Seal Alliance.

“There’s nothing to fear. Different situations call for different action.” Jared appeared extremely composed.

“You’ve got spirit! Since you saved my son today, let me present you with another gift!”

After finishing his statement, Bernard leapt up. Hovering mid-air, he looked down at everyone and declared, “Since everyone is here today, I want to announce publicly that Jared Chance will be under the protection of Allardland. From here on, Jared will be an honored guest of Allardland.

I don’t care if you’re from the Demon Seal Alliance or anyone else. If you dare lay a hand on Jared, don’t blame me for turning hostile! I advise you all not to lose your lives for the sake of an unreal hundred-year offering. If you’re dead, no amount of resources will be of any use!”

After he finished speaking, Bernard slowly descended.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4160-Bernard’s words left the alchemists in shock. After all, Bernard’s words were worth more than gold.

The Demon Seal Alliance sought to kill Jared, but now, Allardland was going to protect him.

The strength of Allardland was in no way inferior to that of the Demon Seal Alliance.

It was just that their spheres of influence differed.

Allardland was situated in Epea, occupying vast tracts of land and controlling dozens of cities, while the Demon Seal Alliance had expanded its influence throughout the Ethereal Realm.

Their power was everywhere!

Considering the extent of influence, the reach of the Demon Seal Alliance was significantly larger!

However, Allardland was an autocracy, with Bernard wielding absolute control and authority.

On the other hand, the Demon Seal Alliance was merely a coalition formed by various forces from different places.

When it came to loyalty and unity, the Demon Seal Alliance couldn't compare to Allardland.

Since both parties had their strengths and weaknesses, they were pretty evenly matched.

The two parties who had no conflict previously now found themselves in direct confrontation due to Jared.

The Demon Seal Alliance sought to execute Jared, while Allardland stood in defense of Jared.

Now, anyone contemplating the idea of killing Jared to obtain the hundred-year offering from the Demon Seal Alliance would have to think twice.

Many alchemists present who harbored this idea had to suppress their thoughts because they knew they couldn't afford to provoke Allardland.

They didn't want to end up dead after earning the hundred-year offering!

Bernard was well aware that many people present were plotting against Jared, which was why he made such a statement.

The aim was to intimidate everyone present.

Upon hearing Bernard's words, a sense of relief washed over Wyatt.

He was aware of Jared's identity, but he wouldn't do anything to him just for the sake of the hundred-year offering from the Demon Seal Alliance.

However, with so many people present, he couldn't guarantee that others wouldn't be tempted by the hundred-year offering from the Demon Seal Alliance!

Now that Bernard had released his statement, many people would have likely dismissed their ideas.

Having achieved his goal, Bernard gave Jared his address and departed with Cedric.

He gave Jared the time to collect the immortal's bone as per the address.

"His Majesty is indeed magnanimous. With this move, Jared has the entire Allardland backing him up."

"Let's see who will dare to mess with Jared now..."

"What a stroke of great fortune for him to be recognized by His Majesty and to successfully cure Prince Cedric's illness at such a young age!"

"That means he's capable. Despite Prince Cedric's years of seeking medical help, there hasn't been a cure until today."

People were engaged in animated discussions about Jared, their conversations filled with nothing but envy!

"Jared, I didn't realize you are the one the Demon Seal Alliance has been plotting to kill with a hundred-year offering. You must be extraordinary enough to cause the Demon Seal Alliance to make such a decision. I wanted to ask you, what exactly was the cause of Prince Cedric's illness? I also tried to investigate his condition, but I was at a loss," Hartwin said to Jared.

Even if Jared was unwilling to disclose his treatment methods, he could at least discuss the cause of Cedric's illness, right?

Jared explained, "Mr. Bellamy, Prince Cedric wasn't sick at all. His illness was entirely due to lovesickness. He was deeply in love with a girl, but they couldn't be together. Moreover, he learned that the girl had already passed away. Thus, this longing built up over time, causing his consciousness to become disoriented!"

After pausing for a while, Jared continued, "He is a kind-hearted man and never one to resort to senseless violence. However, the anguish of yearning in his heart had no outlet for expression. And so, over time, two distinct personalities emerged. One was normal, while the other was wildly aggressive and bloodthirsty, finding release through acts of violence.

In other words, there existed another completely different version of himself in his consciousness. He had become frenzied and bloodthirsty, yet that was still him, not the influence of some other demonic soul. The poison pill I made was meant to annihilate the other self residing within Cedric's sea of consciousness. It was precisely because this other self was eliminated that his internal energy weakened."