

A WARRIOR UNDEFEATABLE/

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4186-Underestimated Him “President Surrey, Emmanuel and his group found us. but they were all killed,” Felipe said.

“What? Killed?” Thaddeus frowned. “Kai is merely a Sixth Level Tribulator, and the men and women around him are even weaker. How could they possibly have killed Emmanuel and the others? Did you all lend a hand? Or perhaps someone assisted Kai?”

“President Surrey, we didn’t lend a hand, and no one assisted Kai either. It was all Kai’s own doing. As soon as Emmanuel and his gang approached Kai, they were instantly engulfed by his demonic fire, causing them to scream in agony. If Felipe and I hadn’t acted swiftly, they probably would have sold us all out, including you,” Freya said.

Listening to Freya’s words, Thaddeus remained unsettled for quite some time.

Emmanuel and his group consisted of Seventh and Eighth Level Tribulators. While this might not be particularly remarkable in the Ethereal Realm, they were considered experts among alchemists. Yet, they couldn’t even handle Kai, who was only a Sixth Level Tribulator.

“It seems I’ve underestimated him,” said Thaddeus, his face dark.

At that moment, Kai had already approached the light curtain, slowly reaching out.

“Mr. Chance, be careful,” Sigurd quickly said.

“Kai, don’t be reckless...” Viola stepped forward and grabbed Kai.

With so many cultivators getting hurt within the light curtain, who knows what could happen if Kai were to enter it?

“Don’t worry. I know what I’m doing. This so-called light curtain is nothing more than a test.”

Kai gave a slight smile, then gently broke free from Viola.

He stepped into the light curtain, and his figure vanished in an instant.

When Thaddeus saw Kai entering the light curtain, he immediately rushed over.

Vincent and Ernesto went over as well.

They couldn't comprehend why Kai decided to step into the light curtain.

As Kai stepped into the light curtain, he felt a strange force tearing his body apart.

He wanted to control his body, but he simply couldn't manage it.

Sharp waves of energy constantly sent his body flying in all directions.

Even with his Golem Body activated, the immense force caused Kai to feel a surge of energy, making his internal organs churn continuously.

"What is this energy? It's so peculiar. It's not spiritual energy, not celestial energy, or demonic energy. What on earth could it be?" Kai was somewhat at a loss.

The energy within this light curtain was something he had never encountered before.

"It's indeed quite strange. What the hell is this energy? Although it seems extremely fierce, its power isn't really that great. Otherwise, you would have been long gone. And those alchemists who barged in all left injured. None of them died."

Vermilion Demon Lord also found it peculiar, wondering from where this energy had originated.

While Kai was being tossed around like a ragdoll by this mysterious force, a sudden humming sound erupted.

An object flew out from Kai's Storage Ring, shimmering with light.

"Divine Cauldron?"

Kai was utterly stunned.

The markings on the Divine Cauldron were constantly radiating light.

Inside the light curtain, waves of peculiar energies were visible.

Two streams of energy flew past the front of the Divine Cauldron and were unexpectedly drawn directly into it.

Noticing the situation, the other energies moved away from the Divine Cauldron and relentlessly attacked Kai.

Kai hovered directly above the Divine Cauldron. The peculiar energies around him behaved as if they were mice that had spotted a cat, all circling him but no longer daring to attack him.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4187-Things Kept Changing Kai lowered his gaze, noticing the two strands of energy within the Divine Cauldron. They were constantly writhing and shifting, seemingly attempting to break free from the confinement of the cauldron. "Kid, what do you think would happen if you channel all these energies into the Divine Cauldron?" Vermilion Demon Lord asked.

Kai scrutinized the two streams of energy within the Divine Cauldron, utterly clueless about the consequences of these energies being trapped inside. He had no idea what would happen next. However, now that he possessed the Divine Cauldron, he knew that these peculiar energies feared it. Hence, he was no longer afraid.

"I'll give it a try..." Kai said, taking the initiative to head toward those peculiar energies.

After he detached himself from the Divine Cauldron, those peculiar energies began to assault him once again.

As he deftly dodged, he simultaneously lured those energies toward the Divine Cauldron.

Without warning, a surge of energy was forced into the Divine Cauldron. The immense suction power of the cauldron then took control of it.

After a considerable amount of time had passed, there was no longer any sign of energy within the light curtain. Every trace of existence had been absorbed by the Divine Cauldron.

These energies were chaotically twisting and turning, seemingly filled with immense fear.

Kai gently rested his hand on the Divine Cauldron. As he did so, the intricate markings on its surface began to emit a golden glow, and the energies within the cauldron gradually became calm. Quickly, these energies began to merge, and streams of white mist steadily emerged from the Divine Cauldron.

At that moment, beyond the light curtain, both Viola and Sigurd had already been consumed by anxiety.

Kai had been within the light curtain for quite a while now, yet there was no sign of anything. They couldn't even hear a sound.

On numerous occasions, Viola had attempted to enter the light curtain to find Kai, but each time, Sigurd had stood in her way.

Even Thaddeus and the others were extremely curious. They couldn't comprehend why there was no sign of activity from Kai inside the light curtain for such a long period of time.

“President Surrey, we only lasted a few minutes before getting injured and thrown out. This guy has been in there for over an hour. Why hasn’t there been any movement yet?” Ernesto asked in a puzzled manner.

“Could he be dead inside?” Vincent wondered.

Thaddeus looked at the light curtain before him. He had personally experienced the peculiar energy domineering. They had been fort within. It was incredibly to retreat within just a few minutes, with many sustaining injuries.

Kai had been inside for quite some time now. He might have already met his end in there.

“He’s probably already dead in there. None of us could hold on for even a few minutes, and now it’s been an entire hour. If he died, our plans would have to change again.”

Things kept changing, giving Thaddeus quite a headache.

“If he died, then those two couldn’t be spared either.”

Ernesto, with a murderous look in his eyes, turned his gaze toward Viola and Sigurd.

Viola and Sigurd were deeply engrossed in the light curtain before them. However, a sudden surge of murderous intent caught them off guard, prompting both of them to turn around at the same time.

Ernesto’s deadly stare sent chills down their spines.

“Let’s not jump the gun. We’ll wait a bit longer. If Kai doesn’t show up within the next fifteen minutes, we’ll take them out, then take a detour up the mountain.” Thaddeus decided to wait a bit longer.

Upon hearing Thaddeus’ words, Ernesto finally repressed his murderous intent.

“Ms. Viola, why do I get the feeling that these guys are up to no good? They looked as if they wanted to devour us with the way they looked at us just now,” Sigurd said in a hushed voice.

“I felt it too. They probably wanted to kill us,” Viola said with a serious expression.

“Weren’t they just having a pleasant conversation with Mr. Chance? Besides, we have no grudges or disputes with them, so why would they want to kill us?” Sigurd was utterly puzzled.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4188-Did You See That Cauldron “You can never judge a book by its cover. Who knows what they’re truly thinking? We should tread carefully,” Viola warned.

She stared at the light curtain before her anxiously, hoping for Kai to appear.

At that moment, Kai was completely engrossed in everything within the Divine Cauldron.

The surroundings were already shrouded in mist. Within the Divine Cauldron, a crystalline pill materialized, encased in a layer of white mist.

“What kind of pill is this?” Kai pulled the pill out from the Divine Cauldron.

After tinkering with it for a while, Kai couldn’t figure out what this pill was, or what it was used for.

“No wonder I didn’t recognize those energies earlier. They were the result of this pill. The fact that it can transform into streams of energy shows that this pill is of no low grade. Could this be the pill crafted by the legendary Medicine God? After the Medicine God’s demise, the pill gradually transformed into a potent energy here,” Vermilion Demon Lord asked.

“I’m not sure, but the energy we just felt was actually the transformation of this pill. If it weren’t for the Divine Cauldron gathering these energies and refining them back into a pill, I would never have imagined that a pill could turn into energy, let alone possess some form of consciousness,” Kai said with a heavy sense of emotion.

He was an accomplished alchemist, highly skilled in medicine, and could even be considered a senior alchemist.

However, he could never have imagined that an inanimate object like a pill could transform into energy and even possess a certain level of consciousness.

Otherwise, those energies wouldn’t have known to evade upon encountering the Divine Cauldron. The fact that they did evade proved they possessed a certain level of consciousness.

Kai tucked away the pill. Since he had no idea what it was or what it could do, he dared not consume it carelessly.

At that moment, Viola’s face had turned an alarming shade of pale.

Sigurd gripped his longsword, ready to strike at any moment as the murderous intent once again filled the air.

“That kid must be dead by now. Let’s not waste any more time. I’ll take care of these two, then we’ll take a detour and get moving.”

Seeing that time was running out and there was still no sign of Kai, Ernesto decided to make his move against Viola and Sigurd.

Viola and Sigurd could feel the murderous intent emanating from behind them, which made them extremely tense. They braced themselves, ready to fight.

However, they were simply too weak. They knew they were no match for these people.

Yet, they couldn’t just sit around waiting for disaster to strike.

As Ernesto was gradually closing in on Viola and Sigurd, suddenly, there was a loud bang.

The light curtain, which hung from the peak, shattered like broken glass, then gradually disintegrated into nothingness.

Everyone was momentarily stunned.

The scene unfolding behind the light curtain was visible to the crowd as well.

Beyond the light curtain, a faint mist lingered. Not far from them stood Kai, with a cauldron placed on the ground in front of him.

The markings on the cauldron were unusual, each radiating an aura of antiquity.

Kai was also startled by the sudden disappearance of the light curtain. He hastily stowed away the Divine Cauldron.

The Divine Cauldron was an ancient divine artifact, a favorite amongst alchemists.

If the alchemists discovered that Kai possessed a treasure like the Divine Cauldron, it would be even more enticing to them than the hundred-year offering from the Demon Seal Alliance.

After all, for these alchemists, the Divine Cauldron was an invaluable treasure.

“President Surrey, did you see that cauldron just now?” Ernesto, who was the closest, asked Thaddeus, his body trembling slightly.

“I did...” Thaddeus’ eyes were wide open in surprise.

“That’s an ancient cauldron, truly the treasure among treasures. I can’t believe he actually has this kind of cauldron in his possession.” Desire glinted in Vincent’s eyes.

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4189-Take Them Down All At Once At that moment, Kai had already emerged from the mist. It seemed as if something had obstructed the mist, preventing it from drifting toward the spot where the light curtain had just been. Upon seeing Kai emerge, Viola hurriedly approached. "Kai, are you all right?"

"Yeah." Kai nodded.

Thaddeus and his companions approached as well. They turned to Kai with a jovial expression and asked, "Mr. Chance, how did you manage to stay in the light curtain for so long? And how did you make it disappear so suddenly?"

"It was merely an arcane array. I have a bit of knowledge about it. I managed to break the arcane array from within, so the light curtain disappeared," Kai said with a slight smile.

He didn't mention the part about using the Divine Cauldron to refine those strange energies.

With a glint of greed in his eyes, Vincent asked, "Mr. Chance, could we have a look at the cauldron you just put away? I think it's quite unique."

"Yeah, let us take a good look. I didn't expect there to be such an excellent cauldron in the Ethereal Realm," Ernesto quickly chimed in.

Kai hadn't anticipated that his Divine Cauldron would be spotted by these people. However, if they wished to look, he didn't mind letting them. It would serve as a good opportunity for them to broaden their horizons.

Just as Kai was about to agree, ready to bring out the Divine Cauldron, Viola tugged at him. Her face was pale as she said, "Kai, I'm not feeling well. Can you check on me..."

"Viola, what's wrong?"

Kai hurriedly stepped forward to support Viola, channeling a surge of spiritual energy into her body.

Viola said telepathically, "Whatever you do, don't reveal your cauldron. These guys are no good. They were just about to harm us earlier, but luckily the light curtain disappeared and you showed up. Otherwise, they would've attacked."

Kai furrowed his brows.

He wondered what Thaddeus and his group aimed to achieve by targeting Viola and Sigurd.

They had no grudges or grievances.

Moreover, with Viola's and Sigurd's capabilities, they posed no threat to them at all.

However, since Viola had given her warning, there was no way Kai would bring out the Divine Cauldron again.

"It's just an ordinary cauldron, nothing interesting to see.

the light curtain has disappeared, we should hurry up the mountain.4 must be on my way too," Kai said while supporting Viola.

Thaddeus gave a nod. "Mr. Chance, it seems this is where we part ways..."

Kai and his group departed, heading into the mist.

Felipe and Freya followed closely behind.

"President Surrey, what should we do? Do we just let him leave?"

Anxiety washed over Vincent's face.

He had his eyes set on Kai's Divine Cauldron. He really wanted to get his hands on it.

"Let him go for now. Once he reunites with the Zorn and Zeever families, we'll take them down all at BUT once... If the Zorn and Zeever families joined forces with other Alchemist Guilds, we'd be in a tough spot," Thaddeus said.

Vincent sighed, but there was simply nothing he could do.

The group ventured into the mist, beginning their ascent up the mountain.

"Mr. Chance, why does this mist feel strange to me?"

As they were moving forward, Sigurd suddenly spoke out.

"What do you mean?"

Kai's face was filled with surprise.

"I feel it too. This mist appears to be poisonous, though its toxicity is weak and erodes slowly. We've only been walking for a short while, yet I already feel somewhat fatigued. And I can't seem to summon the spiritual energy within me," Viola said.

Felipe and Freya also chimed in, "There's definitely something off about this mist. We're also feeling uneasy and short of breath. It's really uncomfortable..."

A Man Like None Other Chapter 4190-You Guys Go Ahead In their group of five, four were now feeling unwell. Only Kai was without a hint of discomfort.

“Why don’t I feel anything?”

Is it because of my own constitution?

“There’s definitely something off about this mist. If you take out that pill you’re carrying, you’ll probably be able to sense what’s wrong with it,” Vermilion Demon Lord said.

Kai promptly took out the pill and handed it over to Viola.

Viola looked at the pill curiously. “Kai, what kind of pill is this? It’s so peculiar...”

“I don’t know either. I found it.” Kai slowly took in the surrounding mist.

He discovered that there was indeed something off about the mist. It had the ability to slowly erode the human body.

By the time the issue was identified, the body would already be heavily burdened with poison.

“Quick, look, why is there black mist coming out of me?” Viola suddenly cried out.

From the palm of her hand, wisps of black mist slowly emerged, which was then absorbed by the pill. Following this, it was purified, transforming into a white mist.

Only then did Kai realize that the pill had the ability to purify the poison in the mist.

Although the toxicity in the mist wasn’t very strong, prolonged exposure would certainly start to take its toll.

“Viola, give that pill to Sigurd...” Kai said.

Sigurd took the pill, and the poison within his body began to be rapidly absorbed.

Felipe and Freya followed suit, using the pill to absorb the poison within their bodies.

After detoxifying, everyone felt much more at ease, and then they continued on their journey.

Even though they knew the mist was poisonous, they weren’t afraid, thanks to the presence of the pill.

After a while of walking, Kai suddenly came to a halt.

“Mr. Chance, what’s wrong?” Sigurd asked.

Kai sensed that someone was approaching them. “Someone’s coming. You guys go ahead...”

“How could that be possible? Aside from the fact that no one knows our location, this place is completely filled with poisonous mist. Who could possibly find us here?”

A frown creased Viola’s forehead. She was utterly perplexed. How was it that people always managed to locate them with such precision?

“These people are really powerful. You guys should leave first. I’ll catch up with you later.”

Kai’s brows also furrowed slightly.

He realized that the other party was incredibly strong, possibly even an expert of Ultimate Realm. Their target was clear. They were heading straight for them.

Kai could manage if he was alone.

However, with Viola and the others present, the need to split his attention to protect them made the situation quite troublesome.

“All right, take good care of yourself.” Viola was aware of her own abilities. Staying by Kai’s side would only hinder him, so it was better for her to leave first.

“I will. Take this pill. Without it, it will be quite challenging for you all to get out of here.”

Kai handed over the pill to Viola.

“What about you?” asked Viola, full of concern.

“Don’t worry. This level of poison can’t cause me any harm,” Kai said with a slight smile.

Indeed, poison caused significantly less damage to Kai’s robust body compared to others.

He was immune to all ordinary poisons.

However, it was clear that this poison was left by the Medicine God. It was not just any ordinary poison, which made it impossible for Kai to fully ward off. After accepting the pill, Viola swiftly led Sigurd and the others away.

Not long after they left, Kai spotted a group of people emerging from the surrounding mist.

There were at least a dozen of these people, most of whom were Seventh and Eighth Level Tribulators.
