Married at First Sight Chapter 2478-She didn't care about her image, and with a gust of wind, she swept away all the food on the table.

Mrs. Janzen only moved her chopsticks slightly.

Mrs. Janzen kept smiling as she watched Carrie devour the food.

When Carrie put down her chopsticks and took out a tissue to wipe her mouth with satisfaction, Mrs. Janzen asked her, "Should you go back by yourself or should I have someone take you back?"

Carrie: "I'll go back by taxi. Could you please help me pay the fare?"

Mrs. Janzen hummed, "Okay, then you can take a taxi back."

After saying that, Mrs. Janzen took out another thousand dollars in cash and put it in front of Carrie and said to Carrie, "This is for you to pay the fare."

Carrie put away the thousand dollars and did not sit still for a long time. She stood up and said to Mrs. Janzen, "Thank you, Mrs. Janzen, for inviting me to dinner. I hope we can have happy cooperation in the future."

Mrs. Janzen smiled, nodded, and said, "We will definitely be able to work together happily."

Carrie left.

Mrs. Janzen was still sitting at the table. When she saw Carrie getting into a taxi, she paid the bill, got up, and walked out of the fast food restaurant.

Her people were waiting for her.

After getting in the car, she said to the person in the passenger seat, "Send someone to follow Carrie's every move in the Newman family. Look for opportunities to help her. Don't let that blind woman from the Newman family keep controlling the Newman family."

"Okay."

The well-maintained old man in the passenger seat responded respectfully.

At the same time, the Newman family villa.

In the hall, Camryn was sitting on the sofa. Lilian was checking her eyes and then taking her pulse.

Callum, who was standing aside, watched nervously but did not dare to say anything for fear of disturbing Lilian.

When Lilian started writing the prescription, Callum asked with concern, "Dr. Carden, how are Camryn's eyes? Are they recovered now?"

Lilian said while writing the prescription, "It's not complete recovery yet. If she does not continue treatment, she can only recover to this extent. She can see, but she cannot see far away, and she cannot see clearly, just like a person with high myopia. After a period of treatment, her vision will return to normal. Then I will prescribe some medicine for her to recuperate her body."

After listening to Lilian's words, Callum was relieved, but when he heard that Camryn was going to be prescribed medicine to recover her body, he suddenly became nervous again. He quickly asked, "What's wrong with Camryn's health?"

Lilian looked up at him, then looked at Camryn, and said, "Miss Camryn looks healthy on the surface, but in fact she's in serious trouble because she doesn't help you take care of yourself. It will be difficult for her to have children in the future."

After Camryn and Callum exchanged glances, Camryn said, "Dr. Carden, please help me. After my eyes are cured, I have to trouble you to prescribe some medicine for me to take care of my body."

It was more difficult for her to live under the hands of her biological mother than under the hands of her stepmother, and it was normal for her to suffer from physical problems.

She could survive until now because her father's spirit in heaven protected her.

As for her own mother, she wanted to cut her into pieces. Her own mother said that she had thought about strangling her to death, but the nanny took good care of her so that her own mother had no chance.

“Well, don’t worry, I promise to help you adjust your body so that you can have a normal child after marriage, but you may need to take medicine for a longer period of time.”

Camryn said, “No defense; I’m not afraid, as long as you can regulate it well.”

Thankfully, Callum invited Dr. Carden to meet her. Dr. Carden had excellent medical skills and could help her heal her eyes and regulate her body.
