

Mistaken Marriage, Unexpected Love

Chapter 94

Chapter 94 Don't You Want Me

The voice was, as always, angelic and soft, which never failed to calm him. But perhaps because it had been a long time that Forrest hadn't heard her voice, his heart was unusually beating so fast that it almost jumped out of his chest. Unable to reply right away, he closed his eyes and took a deep breath.

In fact, Forrest had many things to say. No! He had many questions to ask. But it seemed his throat went dry, and no words came out.

On the other end of the line, Laura only heard the breathing sound but no response. Thinking that Camila didn't hear her well, she said, "Mila, are you there?"

This time, Forrest was somehow able to get out of his daze. He adjusted his breathing, swallowed his saliva, and said in his deep voice, "I'm not Camila."

Hearing his voice, Laura instinctively hung up the call. Her eyes widened, and her heart started beating like a drum. It was as if adrenaline had taken over her entire body.

She stayed still with the phone in her hands. Her thoughts were wandering from here to there, almost causing her to lose her mind. Rowena was sitting beside Laura. She had seen Laura hanging up the phone not long after the call was connected. Besides, Laura's expression right now was one of a strange one, so Rowena couldn't help but ask, "What's wrong? Is Mila having some problems?"

Rowena didn't know that Camila had been taken back to Heinz by Isaac. She thought Camila was still under the control of Jaylen.

Laura shook her head but didn't say anything, Bewildered, Rowena kept asking, "Then, what's wrong..."

Before Rowena could finish her words, Laura's phone rang again.

Laura didn't answer the phone this time. She just looked at the caller ID, as if she was waiting for the call to end automatically.

Rowena glanced at the phone and then at Laura. Curious, she asked, "Why don't you answer the phone?"

"It's not Mila," said Laura. Then, she stood up and walked out of the room. Laura walked through the living room and headed to the balcony.

Both her heart and brain were in a mess. It was as if the brain and heart were closely connected. Because the heart was in pain, the brain couldn't function properly.

The phone was still ringing. On the other side, Forrest didn't stop calling. It seemed like he could continue doing so the entire day. He wouldn't mind to call 100 times or more than that. But he would really get upset if she kept avoiding him like that. After thinking for a long time, Laura finally answered the phone.

As soon as the call was connected, Forrest said, with anger lingering in his tone, "Don't hang up the phone like that."

The call went silent for a moment before Laura finally asked, "How's Mila?"

"I don't want to talk about her. I'm asking about you. Tell me honestly, where are you?" asked Forrest. He sounded anxious and annoyed at the same time. He was annoyed because the woman was playing with his heart. He was anxious because he was afraid he wouldn't get the answer. As expected, Laura didn't respond.

Forrest couldn't stay calm anymore and said, "You left and disappeared without saying goodbye to me. I've been looking for you everywhere Shouldn't you give me an explanation considering our relationship?"

Laura lowered her eyes and replied in a soft voice, "We are not right for each other..."

"Don't talk nonsense with me. I want to see you. Tell me where you are!" Forrest's voice was getting louder as he spoke.

Laura continued quietly, "Forrest, the moment I decided to leave you, our relationship was over. Let's just live our own lives. Okay?"

"No!" Forrest roared. His voice was conveying his emotions as he said, "Love is a matter of two people, not you alone!"

Laura didn't want to argue with him about this topic, so she deliberately changed the topic and said, "Mila is weak now. Since you can see her, take care of her more..."

"Someone is taking care of her so well. She doesn't need me. Tell me your location. Otherwise, I'll locate you with the phone number."

Seeing that she was unwilling to say anything about her location, Forrest had no choice but to threaten her. He said in a rather upset voice,

"If you dare to run away again, I will hate you for a lifetime!"

Laura took a deep breath at that. Thinking that she should make an 'm in Skystead."

explanation for their past relationship, she replied, Forrest smiled at that. His tone changed immediately as he said happily, "I'm going to ask for leave now."

Laura didn't say anything back and just agreed with him. After that, Forrest saved Laura's number in his phone and returned the phone to Isaac. Then, he rushed out of the hospital as if his life depended on it.

Laura put down the phone and walked into the room. Her eyes were not focused, and she looked like a lifeless body.

In the room, Rowena was changing the diaper for the baby. She didn't use paper diapers because she thought they were stuffy. Although it took her a lot of time and caused trouble to wash the cloth diaper, Camila was supporting her in every way she could, especially financially.

So, she should take good care of the baby.

He was also her only grandson, so she would do her best to make him become a well-brought-up young man.

Laura called, "Mrs. Haynes."

Rowena asked with a smile, "What's wrong? Did something happen?" "Yes." Laura got straight to the point and said, "I had a boyfriend before. I want to break up with him, but he keeps pestering me, which is quite annoying. Can you do me a favor? I want to say that I am married and that Joe is my child. This way, I can deceive him and make him stay away from me. Will you help me?"

Rowena was naturally a kind woman, so she said without questioning anything, "Of course."

For Rowena, Laura was quite close to Camila and had been taking care of both the mother and the child. So, Rowena thought Laura should at least receive this favor from them.

Laura smiled weakly. "Thank you, Mrs. Haynes."

"Oh, don't mention it. It should be me who have to thank you. Without you, I don't know how to live in this strange city," Rowena replied politely.

"Well, we don't have to be so polite to each other." Laura then added, "I have to go out later. It's about work. What do you want to eat? I'll buy you some..."

"No, no, You go ahead and do your work. I can cook myself." Rowena knew Laura was a nice person, but she didn't want to bother Laura too much. If it was something she could do, she would do it herself and not ask for anyone's help.

Laura said with a smile, "Well, you don't have to be too restrained with me. Just treat me like you treat Mila."

Holding the baby in her arms, Rowena gently shook him and lulled him to sleep. Then, she looked at Laura and said, "Mila has already given birth to a baby. It's time for you to find someone to get married. I mean a real marriage, not a fake one."

Tears welled up in Laura's eyes. She didn't feel Rowena was meddling in her private affair. Instead, Laura was moved by her words.

When her mother was alive, she had said something like that to Laura. But now, she couldn't hear her mother's nagging anymore.

Laura's response to Rowena was only a weak smile with no words. Forrest rushed to Skystead as fast as he could.

When he arrived, it was very early in the morning. He immediately came to the place where he had agreed to meet with Laura. Seeing that he came early, he ordered a cup of coffee while waiting for Laura.

It was not until quite a while later that Laura showed up with Joe in her arms. Laura felt tight in her chest upon seeing Forrest. He usually looked neat and organized. But at that moment, he had a long face with dark circles under his eyes.

Forrest saw Laura enter with the baby in her arms. But he didn't think too much and shrugged it off. After all, he was sure that the baby was not hers

His attention was solely on Laura, not the baby.

She had lost weight. The flesh she had in her cheeks, chest, and hips were not as thick as before. Still, Forrest thought she looked beautiful nonetheless.

He stood up from the chair and called her name. "Laura." His voice was soft while his eyes explored her face with affection. Laura took a seat opposite him.

Forrest grinned. He was overjoyed to see her after a very long time. "Laura, do you know that I've been missing you since you left me?"

Laura looked up at him. Her round eyes under thick eyelashes were filled with mixed emotions. She couldn't bear to see him even if it was only a short time. But she didn't allow herself to be softhearted. She couldn't. So, she said coldly, "I'm married. This is my child."

Her words hit Forrest hard! They were like sharp knives piercing the flesh of his heart.

Only after she said those words did Forrest look at the baby carefully. Sadness flashed in his eyes as his smile dropped. He stuttered, "What...

What did you say? Did you say that you are married?"

Not hearing her reply, Forrest lost it and stood up abruptly. He said, "I don't believe it!"

He knew Laura loved him, and so much at that.

It was impossible for her to marry another man and have a child with him. Even if she left him, he believed it was because Laura had her own reasons. But it was definitely not because she loved another man! "Don't try to make me give up in this way. I won't believe you!"

Laura reminded him, "Don't be so loud. You will frighten Joe."

At first, Forrest didn't realize what she meant and furrowed his brows. Later, he looked into her arms and asked, "Is his name Joe?"

Laura nodded her head. Persistent to make him stop following her, she said, "This is my child. That is the reason why I didn't say goodbye to you when I left. It is my fault. I want to apologize to you. I'm sorry!

Please forgive me. I don't love you anymore. I eloped with another man and betrayed you. Please forgive me." @

Laura was saying so seriously. With that, Forrest started losing control of his emotions, making his expression change dramatically.

"Are you really... You don't want me anymore?"

Laura heard his voice. He sounded heartbroken, which almost made her comfort him. But she refrained herself and looked down at Joe.

Pretending like she was coaxing the baby, she said, "That's true." Forrest's fists clenched tightly without her knowing. He pursed his lips as if he was swallowing back all the words he wanted to say to her.

He finally said, "If you fall in love with someone else, why did you leave without saying goodbye? You have kept me waiting." His tone was no longer soft or affectionate. In fact, he sounded like he was forcing out the words from his mouth.

"I'm sorry..."

"I don't want to hear your apology!" Forrest then stormed out of the cafe. The moment he left, Laura could no longer disguise herself. Her calm expression changed into a sad one as she went into a daze.

Everything was over. The relationship she shared with Forrest had come to an end. She had wanted it. But she didn't feel happy at all.

She was sad, and extremely at that.

But she couldn't help it. She had to break his heart and hers as well in order to save themselves from more severe heartbreak.

Laura took some time to calm herself before she finally left with Joe. @ In the hospital, there was an invitation. Her brows furrowed as she read the contents of it.
