

Fled With CEO's Twin Babies Chapter 41 - 50

Chapter 41 It Was Okay, Mom

Joe didn't notice Wendy's mood at all and just said to her lightly, "You're pregnant and would better have a good rest."

Wendy was truly panicking now, grabbed Joe by the arm, and said, "Joe, you don't like me being in contact with Miss White, do you? If that's the case, I won't see her again, okay?"

Only then did Joe look down at Wendy. His deep eyes seemed to be able to see through her heart. After a while, Wendy looked away uneasily.

He said in a deep voice, "If you want to be Mrs. Smith, I will satisfy you. But don't do anything else, especially with Mia. Do you understand?"

Wendy stiffened, opened her mouth, and wanted to explain. But when she met Joe's sharp gaze, she said nothing.

Joe turned to look in the direction that Mia had left. What was she doing in the hospital? Especially...

He glanced at the door plate of the obstetrics and gynecology department and his eyes gradually darkened.

At this time, Mia had walked around outside the hospital, found a small door, and went upstairs again.

As soon as she arrived at the stairs, David came out and said,

"The children are here."

Mia quickly followed him and came to the door of the VIP ward. From a distance, she saw Ben and Anna, who looked tired and had rashes all over their faces.

"Mommy!"

Mia quickly stepped forward and held the two children in her arms. Her eyes were slightly red. "You scared me to death."

Smelling the fragrance of them, Mia finally relaxed and refused to let them go for a long time.

It was until this moment that Mrs. Lucky Johnson stepped forward with an apologetic look on her face and said, “I’m sorry, Mia. I didn’t pay attention to the food for a moment...”

“It’s my fault.”

Goergie who was sitting in the corner also came over and apologized to Mia solemnly, “When I gave the children biscuits, I didn’t find that there was a small amount of peanut sauce in them, which led to their allergy.”

Mia was a little surprised. She had always thought that Goergie would not welcome the two children but didn’t expect that he would take the initiative to feed them snacks.

When she was about to speak, Anna hugged her neck softly. “Grandpa Johnson also likes me and Ben, so he bought snacks for us. You can’t blame him.”

Ben nodded and held Mia’s hand silently. “It’s not his fault.”

Goergie was a little surprised. He saw with his own eyes how uncomfortable the two children were when their allergy broke out and didn’t expect that they would forgive him so easily.

Mia touched their heads and smiled at Goergie. “Since they have chosen to forgive you, I have no right to say that I don’t forgive you. As the children said, your intention is good, and they are willing to accept your kindness.”

Goergie raised his eyebrows slightly and slowly squatted down to look at Ben and Anna. He said, “I made a mistake this time. Will you come back to my house as guests when you recover? I promise that nothing like today will happen again.”

Ben and Anna looked at each other and said loudly, “Okay! You will play with us next time.”

Goergie squeezed their hands and nodded with a smile.

Seeing this scene, Mrs. Lucky Johnson also smiled with relief. Although Goergie seemed to be indifferent to them every time, in fact, every time the twins came, he would deliberately sit in the living room, wait for the children to take the initiative to greet him, and then pretend to be very reluctant to play with them.

Men were hard-mouth but soft-hearted.

After the Johnson couple left together, David looked at Mia apologetically and said, "I'm sorry. If I hadn't taken them home..."

Mia frowned and said, "The person who should apologize has already said so. Are you going to apologize again and again every time you see me, Ben, and Anna?"

Chapter 42 They Had Formal Identities

David had to stop talking and turned to look at Ben and Anna. "You two are going to stay in the hospital tonight. Is there anything I can bring to you?"

Anna said to him in a childish voice, "I want my doll."

Ben said coolly, "I want my iPad."

David held the two children in his arms and nodded. "I'll get them for you now."

Mia reminded the two of them to stay in bed obediently and followed David out of the door. "I just bumped into Joe and I am worried..."

David understood and suddenly took out three Citizenship Certificates from his pocket. "I knew such a day would come, so I prepared those."

Mia took them out to have a look and was stunned.

In the Citizenship Certificates, the age of the two children had been changed to one year younger. Her name had also changed from Mia White to Charlotte Clinton.

"Since Ben and Anna are back, you can't hide them forever. It's better to make preparations in advance." David looked at Mia seriously. She saw his sincerity for the children in his eyes, which moved her a lot.

After David left, Mia returned to the ward and seriously apologized to Ben and Anna, “I have been too busy to take care of you these days and also asked you to play at someone else’s house. I’m sorry.”

Anna tilted her head and asked, “Mom, don’t you do it on purpose?”

“Of course not!” Mia denied it repeatedly. “You are the babies that I begged for a long time to get into my arms. How could I not want you?!”

Anna pretended to be serious and said, “Since you work hard to fill Ben and me with food and clothing, why should we blame you? Your adults just like to guess other people’s mind!”

She nudged Ben, who was next to her. “Am I right?”

Ben glanced at her helplessly. “It’s that adults like to guess other people’s minds.”

“It’s not your fault.” He stole a glance at Mia and quickly added.

Looking at the two considerate children, Mia was moved and amused. She asked softly, “Do you want to go to kindergarten?”

When she was in Albania, Ben and Anna learned knowledge from the family teachers. Although it was safe, they rarely had contact with other children. Now that they had returned back and had official identities, maybe it was time for them to go to kindergarten.

“What’s kindergarten?” Anna was confused. “Is there a lion and a tiger in it?”

Mia didn’t know whether to laugh or cry. She patiently explained the meaning of kindergarten to the two children and said, “You can meet a lot of other children in kindergarten. You can play with them.”

“Then I’ll go!” Anna jumped up happily, completely forgetting that there were rashes on her body.

Ben also agreed. Although the knowledge in kindergarten was too childish, he still had to take care of Anna. After all, he was the only man in the family.

Seeing that both of them had no intention of resisting, Mia sent a message to Frank and asked him to collect some information about kindergarten.

After receiving the news, Frank was confused. Was their Horizon Group going to develop the kindergarten business?

Chapter 43 Changed Their Father

“Mr. Smith, according to my investigation, Miss White didn’t get registered in the hospital. Instead, the Johnson couple took the two children to get registered. Mia and David went to see the two children together...”

Jack looked at Joe, whose face was getting darker, and shut his mouth wisely.

“Children? Where did the children come from?” Joe looked up at Jack, who shook his head. “I only know that the two children’s surname is Clinton, and they seem to have entered the hospital because of an allergy.”

Joe leaned back on the sofa and unconsciously rubbed his fingers against the cool lighter. “I asked you to investigate the Johnson Group last time. How’s it going?”

Jack knew that he would not ask about the children again. He breathed a sigh of relief, took out a stack of documents, and handed them over. “The Johnson Group is currently operating well, and several major projects are also advancing in an orderly manner. If we want to destroy them... I’m afraid it will be a little difficult.”

Looking at the information on the table, Joe casually lit a cigarette. In the dense smoke, he sneered, “Difficult?”

Since he was forced to take over the Smith Group at the age of 14, he faced difficulties every day.

As long as he wanted, there was nothing he couldn’t get.

At this time, Mia was looking helplessly at the two cute little guys in front of her.

“You just arrived at the hospital yesterday, so you can’t leave today.” Mia tapped Anna’s forehead and knew that Ben would not leave without Anna’s instigation.

Anna pouted and complained, “But our faces are already fine!”

As she spoke, she raised her fair and tender face and moved closer to Mia.

It had to be said that the recovery ability of the two little guys was really strong. In just one day, the rashes on their faces and bodies had disappeared completely. No wonder they were not used to staying in the hospital.

Seeing that Mia was not moved, Anna sat on the sofa aside in low spirits. “I knew it. Mom said that she would not abandon us! But she just believe what her promise!”

She seemed to feel that something was wrong and looked at Ben anxiously. As expected, Ben showed a helpless expression. “It’s that she breaks her promise.”

Mia didn’t know whether to laugh or cry.

She suddenly remembered what David had said yesterday. Since Ben and Anna had returned to Zyphoria, she could not send them back. It was only a matter of time before they appeared in front of people.

She was silent for a moment, then squatted down to look at the two children and said, “If you go to the company with me, you can’t reveal your identities, okay?”

“Okay!” Anna glanced at Ben and agreed without hesitation.

Mia was a little surprised. “Are you sure? You can’t say that I am your mother when you arrive at the company! Are you willing?”

Anna nodded heavily. “I know! Ben said that there are bad people who want to hurt us now, so we must keep a low profile and not let others find out that we are your children.”

“Ben?” Mia looked at Ben in shock and did not expect him to say this to Anna in private.

Ben pursed his lips and showed the news related to the White Family and Wendy on his mobile phone. There were even discussions about the marriage between Joe and Mia.

Mia almost stopped breathing. She looked at Ben in shock and her hands were trembling. “Ben, you...”

She didn't know how to ask when the words were on the tip of her tongue.

"I know. Joe might be my father." Before Mia could sort out her thoughts, Ben threw another shocking bomb, which shocked her

Chapter 44 The Painful Past

Mia blinked her eyes. After a long time, she found her voice. "How... how did you know?" "Isn't it very simple?"

Ben blinked innocently. "Isn't him your former husband?"

Mia only felt that there was a breath stuck in her chest and didn't know if she should spit it out.

Children's logic was indeed very simple, and it was sharp enough.

After a long silence, she finally nodded and said, "Yes, he is your father."

Anna finally understood what they meant. She looked at Mia and Ben in confusion.

"Father? Where did this father come from?"

"That bad guy." Ben told Anna concisely.

Anna widened her eyes and said, "Then we don't want this father, let's change."

The depression in Mia's chest suddenly dissipated. She covered her eyes and took a deep breath. "You..."

She knew that the two children had fantasized about their father when they were young, but because she avoided talking about him, they gradually stopped asking about this person.

Ben walked up to Mia and took her hand. His dark eyes were filled with determination as he said, "Joe made you unhappy. We don't want him."

Mia smiled at them with red eyes.

She couldn't possibly pretend to be magnanimous and tell the children that Joe was their father, and that they should let go of the grudges and reconcile with him. She couldn't possibly give Joe the slightest chance to snatch them away from her.

Five years ago, she went abroad in low spirits, only to find herself pregnant after being retrieved by her family.

Mia almost didn't hesitate to keep the children.

At that time, she had not yet gained a firm foothold in the Clinton Family and was just informed all kinds of things about her mother. It could be said that every step was difficult for her. In addition, her premature pregnancy reaction was extremely serious. She could only rely on Nutrients to maintain her life. In less than three months, she had lost a third of her weight.

Fortunately, some of her relatives took good care of her, so she gradually came out of that terrible state.

The most dangerous thing was that she had a hemorrhage when she gave birth to the babies.

At that time, she was almost injected with the amount of blood that an adult should have before she was barely rescued. What followed was a long-term recovery and recuperation. She had been lying in the hospital for three months.

She even remembered that when she was discharged from the hospital, the two children had already shed their jaundice and looked white and tender. When they saw her for the first time, they smiled sweetly at her.

Coming back to her senses, Mia held the two children in her arms and said nothing.

Anna whispered to Mia, "Will David be our father?"

Mia was stunned and replied in a gentle voice, "He is not yet. Do you like him?"

Anna nodded heavily. "He has a lot of delicious food. If he is my father, I can eat delicious food every day!!"

Even David himself would not have thought that one day he would win in this respect.

“If you don’t like him, I can help you find other men secretly!” Anna nodded heavily and said seriously, “Don’t worry, a man who is good to children must be a good man!”

Mia didn’t know whether to laugh or cry. She couldn’t persuade them, so she finally decided to take them to the company.

Chapter 45 Let’s Go to the Horizon Group to Have a Look

When they arrived at the company, Frank was already waiting at the entrance.

After receiving the news that Miss Clinton had brought someone to visit the company, he asked someone to make all the preparations and came to the door to welcome them in person.

The guest that Miss Clinton had personally instructed must not be an ordinary guest.

As Frank watched Mia stop the car slowly at the door, his expression became serious until two children jumped out of the car.

Frank was stunned.

As the most professional assistant, Frank quickly calmed down and asked the secretary to add two more lollipops to the reception room.

“Miss Clinton, they are...” Frank greeted them and asked curiously.

Mia didn’t reveal their identities. “They will play in the company for a day today. Just take them to my office.”

Frank quickly responded and smiled gently at Ben and Anna. “Hello, I am Uncle Wilson. If you need anything today, you can come to me!”

Seeing this, Mia couldn’t help laughing.

Her assistant with an annual salary of one million dollars was forced to become a kindergarten teacher. Should she give Frank a bonus this month?

Anna grabbed Mia's hand and was about to rush in excitedly, "Let's go in quickly."

Anna and Ben had been back for so long, but they had never been to her company.

Mia nodded dotingly and did not forget to turn back to take the cool Ben's hand. "Let's go in together."

Mia hadn't been in the Horizon Group for a long time, and everyone was curious about her. Now, when they saw Frank appear with beautiful twins in the Horizon Group, they were shocked and guessed the identities of the twins.

But because of Mia's identity, no one dared to ask her face-to-face.

From the hall to the top floor, Frank had been quietly observing the two children.

He thought that it would be a day full of wrong things but didn't expect that although the two children were very curious about everything around them, they had always been well-educated and restrained themselves from making trouble for others.

The two children did not fully demonstrate their nature until they entered Mia's office.

Anna rushed to the huge French window, looking at the scenery outside the window and exclaiming. Ben sat down at the desk of Mia with a serious face and fiddled with her computer.

Seeing this, Frank wanted to stop them, but he was stopped by Mia. "They are both children with a sense of propriety. You just need to pay attention to their safety."

She glanced at her watch and said to the two children, "I'm going to the meeting first. Can you play here for a while?"

The two children answered obediently. Mia told Frank with concern, "If they are bored, you can take them to various departments of the company, but don't let them come into contact with other people's food, especially peanuts."

Seeing that she was serious, Frank also agreed seriously.

At this time, in the Smith Group.

Jack scolded the secretary in front of him with a sullen face. “How many times have I told you not to let people in the boss’ office at will? Do you turn a deaf ear to my words?”

The new secretary felt very wronged. “He is the Chamber of Commerce President. I can’t offend him.”

“He’s not the Chamber of Commerce President now.” Jack sneered. After being dealt with by the Smith Family and the Johnson Family together, Zack was now like a stray dog. He was no longer the Chamber of Commerce President.

He waved his hand at the new secretary and said, “Go to the finance department to settle the bill and resign.”

The new secretary was shocked and quickly begged for mercy. “I really didn’t mean to...”

Jack shook his head. “You have violated the rules of the boss. There is no other way.”

After that, his eyes fell on the door of the chairman’s office.

In the office, Zack knelt on the ground and cried bitterly to Joe, “Mr. Smith, I really know I was wrong! I shouldn’t have been so blind and rude to Miss White, and I shouldn’t have thought that she had a dirty background just because she is the representative of the Horizon Group. Please let me go!”

Chapter 46 Joe Was Here

Zack was now very regretful. If he had known that Mia had the support of the Smith Group and the Johnson Group, he would not have dared to make any movements to her.

Joe looked coldly at the man kneeling on the ground. “You said that Mia is the representative of the Horizon Group, right?”

Zack was stunned. Did Mia have an affair with the boss of the Horizon Group behind Joe’s back? If that was the case, wouldn’t he be saved?

He quickly nodded and said, “That day, Miss White came as the person in charge of the Horizon Group. As you know, the chairman of the Horizon Group has always been mysterious. I thought she relied on...”

Seeing that Joe was angry, Zack quickly shut his mouth and did not dare to say anything else.

“Disappear from the Capital City. If I hear any more news about you...” Joe glanced at him indifferently, but it was enough to scare him out of his wits.

After Zack left in disgrace, Joe called Jack in and asked, “How’s our project with the Horizon Group going?”

Jack was stunned. Didn’t he meet Zack? Why was the Horizon Group suddenly involved?

However, as a professional assistant, Jack quickly replied, “The progress of both sides is smooth. Recently, we are discussing the details of the contract.”

Joe pondered for a moment and suddenly said, “Let’s go to the Horizon Group to have a look.”

“Okay.” Jack reacted quickly and asked Mr. Lee to go with him.

Mia had just finished an important meeting. When she returned to the office, she saw Ben and Anna together reading a picture book. She couldn’t help laughing. “Don’t you feel bored? Do you want Uncle Wilson to take you out for a walk?”

The two kids looked at each other and shook their heads in unison. “Since we’re here to visit your company, we have to stay here and watch until we leave.”

Seeing that they were enjoying themselves, Mia didn’t say anything more. When she was about to speak, she saw Frank rushing in. “Miss Clinton, Mr. Smith is here.”

“What?!” Mia panicked and stood up with great force. She even knocked over the coffee that had just been poured on the table.

“Miss Clinton!” Frank was about to help but was stopped by Mia. “I’m fine. Take the children to various departments of the company now. Mr. Smith is here to inspect. Don’t let him see the children in the company, so as not to arouse his suspicion of our professionalism.”

Anna ran over and said, “Mom... Charlotte, are you okay?”

Mia suppressed the panic in her heart and touched her head calmly. “I’m fine. I just have something to discuss with someone now. Can you go around with Uncle Wilson?”

Anna pouted and was about to refuse when Ben stopped her. “Okay.”

After the two children and Frank left, Mia quickly went to the lounge behind her to change her clothes and took a deep breath.

What awaited her next was a tough battle.

Chapter 47 Please Call Me Miss Clinton

In the reception room.

Mr. Lee was afraid that Joe would not see his efforts, so he carefully introduced the project progress to Joe, but Joe stopped him. “Who has been in touch with you during this period of time?”

“Mr. Lake of the Horizon Group.” Mr. Lee was confused. “The chairman of the Horizon Group has never returned to Zyphoria before, and it was Mr. Lake who contacted us. Recently, I heard that their chairman has come back, but I have never seen him.”

Joe raised his eyebrows. The chairman was quite mysterious.

The three of them stayed in the reception room for less than five minutes before Mr. Lake hurried in. “Excuse me for not welcoming you, Mr. Smith.”

Joe glanced at Mr. Lake indifferently and said, “I heard that your chairman is in the company. I’ve invited him several times but failed to meet him. You’re too insincere.”

“Well...” Mr. Lake was in a dilemma. There was nothing wrong with Joe’s request, but the relationship between Mia and Joe was really complicated. If they met...

“What’s wrong?” Joe sneered. “Is the chairman of the Horizon Group not visible? I’m worried about the sincerity of your company to such a big project because of his absence.”

“Mr. Smith, you may have misunderstood.”

Just as Mr. Lake was at a loss for what to do, a familiar female voice rang out. Joe immediately turned sullen.

Mia was wearing a beige suit. Her makeup was simple and exquisite, and there was a professional smile on her face. “I paid a lot of attention to this project from the beginning. Our Horizon Group is absolutely sincere.”

When Mr. Lake saw Mia, he couldn’t help but let out a sigh of relief.

Joe thought that Mia came with the mysterious chairman, so his tone became colder.

“What’s wrong? He’s relieved to let you come to see me?”

At this time, Mia only had two children in her mind. She was not in the mood to figure out what Joe was thinking at all and said directly, “Mr. Smith, if you have any doubts about the project, I can answer all of them for you.”

“You?” Joe sized Mia up from head to toe. “He trusts you so much that he even told you the company’s secret.”

Mia’s previously bad mood was now even worse. She walked up to Joe, took out a business card, and put it in front of him. “Unfortunately, I know all the secrets of the Horizon Group because this company is mine.”

Joc suddenly looked at Mia. “What did you say?”

Mia sneered. “If you don’t understand, Mr. Smith, you can go back to school for two more years. I still have something to do, so I won’t accompany you.”

She turned to leave, but Joe stopped her. “Wait.”

Joe skimmed through the business card in his hand and sneered. “I really don’t know when the dignified Miss White changed her surname to Clinton.”

He casually flicked the business card aside, and the sarcasm in his eyes became stronger.

Their tense atmosphere made everyone in the conference room look at each other at a loss. In the end, the oldest Mr. Lake came out to smooth things over. “Mr. Smith, you don’t that something did happen in Miss Clinton’s family that made her stop using her previous name. It’s just that her new name hasn’t been made public yet.”

After all, Mia was the founder of the Horizon Group, so everyone more or less knew something about her.

Joe looked down at the strange name on the card. Charlotte Clinton?

How many years had it been? Not only did Mia get involved with David, but she also changed her name and became the chairman of the Horizon Group.

How many things did she still have that he didn’t know?

He suddenly stood up and walked to Mia step by step.

Chapter 48 Joe Left

They were very close to each other. Mia struggled not to take half a step back. Instead, she calmly looked at Joe.

Both Mr. Lake and Mr. Lee looked at the two of them nervously and were afraid that Joe would do something out of anger.

Fortunately, Joe just chuckled and suddenly reached out his hand to Mia. “I’ll be in charge of this project from now on. As the person in charge of the Horizon Group, Miss White should also be in charge, right?”

Mia really wanted to refuse but knew that this project involved billions of dollars, so there must be no problems during their cooperation.

She had no choice but to put on a business smile. “Since Mr. Smith values this project so much, I’ll naturally cooperate with you.”

Only then did Joe say meaningfully, “That’s great. We have plenty of time in the future.”

“But Mr. Smith, since you’ve got my business card and knew my name, please call me Miss Clinton in the future,” Mia said in a distant tone.

Joe blinked. “We’ve been to the Horizon Group so many times, and it’s rare to see Miss White... Miss Clinton, why don’t you show me around the company.”

“No.”

Mia refused him without thinking. Ben and Anna were still playing with Frank in the company. She couldn’t let them meet.

Joe thought that Mia didn’t want to stay with him, so his face darkened. “Is this how Miss Clinton treats her guests?”

“I mean, it’s not convenient for you to visit the company when others are working. Why don’t you come to my office?” Mia knew that her obvious performance would definitely attract his attention, so she quickly added.

Joe and Mia had been married for three years. How could he not see that she was suddenly nervous?

But why did Mia, who dared to challenge him just now, have such an emotional change? Joe thought to himself. Just as he was about to respond, his cell phone suddenly rang.

“My stomach hurts, Joe!”

Joe frowned slightly when he heard Wendy’s petite voice on the other side.

He wanted to refuse her but heard Wendy’s scream and then hang up the phone.

“I still have something to do today. Why don’t I visit your company next time?” Joe said in a low voice.

Mia had never thanked Wendy for making trouble like she did today. She replied straightforwardly, “Mr. Smith, since you have something to do, you can go now. See you next time.”

It would be best if he never came again.

Joe took a deep look at her and left with a curled lip.

Mia breathed a sigh of relief and quickly contacted Frank to ask about his location.

Joe took Jack and Mr. Lee into the elevator. Without hiding anything, he said to Jack, “Go and investigate what happened to Mia in the past few years. Why did she suddenly change her surname and establish the Horizon Group.”

The Horizon Group had a lot of initial capital. Where did she get the money?

Joe only felt that Mia five years ago was as simple as a piece of white paper and could be understood at a glance. Five years later, she became mysterious and had a lot more unknown matters.

While they were taking the elevator, two young female employees came in.

They did not even notice the presence of Joe and started discussing excitedly. “Ben and Anna are so cute, especially Anna. She’s as soft as a rice ball! I really want to steal her from Miss Clinton”

Chapter 49 You Were Gifts from Heaven

Hearing the name Miss Clinton, Joe subconsciously turned his gaze to the two female employees. However, they seemed to have noticed Joe and nodded at him before quietly retreating to a corner.

When the elevator reached the eighth floor, they fled out of it quickly.

Joe withdrew his gaze indifferently.

After Mia confirmed that Joe had left, she contacted Frank. “Where are you?”

“We’re in the technical department. You’d better come and have a look.”

Mia didn’t know if it was her illusion but Frank’s voice seemed a little strange.

She rushed to the technical department. As soon as she entered the door, she saw a group of people around a computer pointing at it. Frank and Anna were standing behind the crowd with helpless faces.

Mia looked around and suddenly became nervous. “Where’s Ben?”

Anna ran over and hugged the leg of Mia, pointing to the group of people who surrounded him firmly, “He is there!”

Looking at the crowd, Mia was stunned for a moment. “What happened?”

“When Ben came here just now, he happened to see the staff of the technical department writing code, so he... made a few suggestions.” Frank looked a little subtle. It was funny to see a four-year-old child seriously instructing an employee of the technical department, but what he said was always right.

Anna also nodded heavily. “Later, Ben went to write codes by himself! Those uncles all surrounded him and ‘invaded’ him!!”

Mia didn’t expect such a reason and couldn’t help laughing.

It was only then that the person in charge of the technical department discovered the existence of Mia.

Seeing Mia, the usual shy and reserved person rushed up excitedly for the first time. “Is this the child you brought? He is so talented! You must insist on cultivating him. The national technology will rely on him in the future!”

Mia coughed softly. “Don’t flatter him too much...”

“How could it be a flatter?” The person in charge of the technical department looked at her with disappointment. “He just started from DevOps’ perspective

The person who used to talk very little now explained a technical problem for nearly ten minutes. It was Frank who came over and took him away that made Mia recover from countless professional terms.

At this time, Ben finished his demonstration and ran to Mia with a cold face.

Everyone in the technical department looked at him with a smile, took out snacks one by one, and handed them to Ben.

Seeing this scene, Mia didn’t know whether to laugh or cry. Was this a favor from the technical staff?

On the way back to the office, Anna was fed a lot of snacks by the ladies in the secretary's office. The little girl was so excited that her face turned red. She said, "Mom, your company is really fun. I want to come here every day."

Behind her, Ben also straightened up silently.

Mia bent down and pointed at her nose. "You want something to eat, don't you? You're going to kindergarten in a few days, so you can only come here occasionally."

"Ah?" Anna snorted in disappointment. This was the second time she had heard the name kindergarten." What's fun about it? Is it funnier than your company?"

"Of course, there will be many teachers and students there. You will definitely like it." Mia tried her best to fool them.

Anna pondered for a moment before nodding reluctantly. "Alright."

Seeing that Ben had gotten some dirt on his face from somewhere, Mia quickly cleaned him up with a wet tissue. When the distance between them was narrowed, Ben suddenly asked, "Is he here today?"

Chapter 50 The Kind Ben

Mia paused and subconsciously clenched the wet towel in her hand.

She and Ben looked at each other. Looking at his clear eyes, she didn't want to lie. "Yes."

Mia admitted with difficulty and thought that the children would blame her for being selfish and take away their right to see their biological father for her own desires, but they didn't.

Ben just put her soft little hand on Mia's face and said, "Mom, you were not happy to see that person. I will find a perfect husband for you and won't let you be sad again."

Mia froze on the spot and had never expected that Ben would say such a thing to her.

"Don't you blame me?" She thought for a moment and asked, "Maybe you could have met him."

Ben shook his head without hesitation. "I don't want to see him."

At this moment, Mia didn't know how to describe her feelings, could only look at Ben with complicated emotions, and touch his head.

Anna strolled over while eating the jelly. "What are you doing? Why do you look unhappy? Is it because Ben is too dirty?"

Mia burst into laughter and kissed Anna and Ben on their faces. "You are the best gifts from God."

When Joe arrived at the door of the hospital ward, Wendy took the initiative to greet him. "Joe!"

Her face was ruddy and full of smiles. There was no trace of the pity and misery she just had on the phone.

Joe slowly darkened his face. "Is this what you meant by feeling unwell?"

Wendy's smile froze. She tried to hold on to Joe again, but he dodged.

"I'm just..." Wendy looked at him with red-rimmed eyes. "You haven't come to see me for the past few days. I'm scared of living alone in the hospital..."

She lowered her head weakly and said in a choked voice.

Seeing Wendy like this, Joe knew that he should say something to comfort her, but now he didn't want to say a word.

Wendy seemed to have realized that Joe was really angry and quickly wrapped her arms around his waist. "I'm sorry, I just miss you so much. Not only me but also the baby in my belly..."

The usual effective methods were useless this time.

Joe only gave her a meaningful look. "If you're bored, I can invite someone to chat with you."

Wendy froze on the spot.

She had been thinking about how to appease Joe, but what he said next sent a chill down her spine.

“Eight years ago, you received a call from Mia on John’s birthday. She clearly told you that she was seriously injured, but you told me that it was just a minor injury to her. Do you remember?”.

Wendy staggered and almost fell to the ground. Fortunately, Joe caught her in time.

Wendy looked at him in shock. “Is that so? I don’t seem to remember at all.”

Looking at Wendy, who was acting dumb, Joe did not say anything. His eyes fell on her lower abdomen.