

Chapter 119

Henry laughed.

"No matter how influential he was back then, there's no way he would eclipse your current self."

"Alright now, stop kissing my *ss. Get the car. Let's meet Jake Graham and find out how much he knows about the Cadens' incident from ten years ago."

"Alright." Henry speedily made his way to the nearby parking lot.

Soon, he came back driving a black Lunar. Henry picked James and Scarlett up and drove to the People's Repair Shop in the suburbs.

They had ample time, so he drove slowly. It was almost nine o'clock when they arrived at the People's Repair Shop.

Outside a huge repair shop.

A black Lunar was parked here.

Henry, who was in the driver's seat, pointed at the repair shop.

"James, this is the headquarters of Jake Graham. Though it may look like a repair shop from the outside, it's armed to the teeth on the inside." James was indifferent.

"Let's get out of the car."

The trio got out of the car and entered the repair shop.

Before they could enter, a man dressed in ragged clothes and covered in oil walked out.

"Sorry, it's already late. Please come again tomorrow."

Henry replied, "We're here to see Jake. We've made an appointment."

"Hmm?"

Upon hearing this, the repairman glanced at the trio. Almost immediately, he nodded.

"Follow me." He brought them to the backyard of the repair shop and entered a room.

There was a secret door in the room.

As he opened the secret door, a secret passage revealed itself. A few men armed with sub-machine guns stood by the entrance of the secret passage. The repairman waved at them.

"They're here to see the Boss. They've made an appointment. Search them."

Two men walked over and prepared to search them.

"What's this?"

Henry stepped forward to shield James.

Coldly, he asked, "Do you not know who this is?"

The repairman replied coolly, "Rules are rules. If you don't want us to search you, then scram."

James pulled at Henry and gestured.

"When in Rome, do as the Romans do." Henry nodded.

The men by the entrance searched them.

They found a gun on Henry.

On the other hand, Scarlett handed her firearm over voluntarily.

Though James had no weapons, they confiscated a silver needle that they found on him.

"Get going."

After the search, the repairman spoke once more.

They followed closely behind him and entered the passage.

The passage was long and seemed to extend deep underground.

Along the way, they passed by fully-armed mercenaries.

Henry whispered, "Jake's influence extends far beyond Cansington into every big city. He's called the Boss by those in the triad world and is the King of the Underworld. Xander Lawrence, who you had killed, is nothing in Jake's eyes."

"Hmm."

James gently nodded. He did not care for a mere honcho of a turf.

If he felt like it, this place would be wiped off the map the moment he called the Blithe King.

Soon, they arrived at the deepest part of the passage.

James discovered that it was an underground casino teeming with people. He could not care less.

The repairman led them to a shut door and said, "The Boss is attending to his guests. Wait here."

James gently nodded.

"Alright."

They were already here, and a little waiting would not hurt.

If he does not get anything out of this meeting, then there would be no reason for this place to exist anymore.
