

The Almighty Dragon General

Chapter 739

□ □ □

Chapter 739

“I’ll keep that in mind!”

James smiled brightly.

“Mere parasite venom isn’t going to bring me down! Sooner or later, I will return to the courthouse to pick up the Blade of Justice and beliead those who have sinned!” “Haha. I’ll be waiting for your glorious return to claim it once again!

However, I’m afraid you might not have the chance. I’ve heard that Cansington is incredibly chaotic right now, and since you’ve offended a lot of people, many of them want you dead. You’ll be in danger if you go back there. I suggest you stay in the Capital. At least no one dares to touch you here.” The Emperor showed a sardonic smile. It made him look gloomy and creepy.

“Let’s head back, Quincy.” Jamnes did not say anything more.

“Alright.”

Quincy pushed James back to the nearby parking lot and drove back to the hotel. Soon, they returned to the hotel.

After returning to the hotel, James felt his stomach grumbling again. He rubbed his abdomen and said embarrassedly, "I'm a little hungry. Could you order something for me?" He did not want to trouble Quincy anymore. These days, Quincy had been following him, taking care of him, and protecting him. James knew Quincy's feelings toward him.

The more he did so, the more embarrassed he felt. He did not know how to repay her.

However, his body did not allow him to be stubborn. His body was weak, and it was best he stayed in bed.

He would have died from exhaustion if he had to do everything himself.

"I'll ring the hotel staff to deliver some food." Quincy picked up the phone and called the hotel receptionist.

"By the way, help me buy a plane ticket. I'm heading back to Cansington," James instructed.

"Alright."

After Quincy had ordered the food, she began booking tickets online. She muttered, "There's nothing much to do in the Capital.

I'd better go back to Cansington with you. At least I have a house there."

She peeped at James while speaking. “James, where do you plan to stay in Cansington? You can come to my house if you don’t have anywhere to stay. I live alone in a newly bought villa.” “How can I trouble you?” James was embarrassed. He scratched his head and said, “I’ve already troubled you a lot these few days. After returning to Cansington, I don’t want to continue burdening you.”

“But, you don’t have a place to stay in Cansington. Don’t tell me you’re planning to return to the Callahans?” Quincy stared at James.

Hearing this, James went silent.

‘Go back? Is it possible to go back?’

In the past, he was one of the Five Commanders of Sol, the War God, and the behind-the scene boss of the Transgenerational

Group. He intended to come clean to Thea and have a sensational wedding with her after taking care of everything

However, he was a nobody right now. He knew the Callahans very well. With his current status, even if they accepted him again, the Callahans would never agree to it.

James shook his head to discard his jumbled thoughts. He did not respond to the question, but Quincy knew what he was thinking.

Quincy said with a smile, "Thea is a good woman. You two simply had a lot of misunderstandings in the past. Since the misunderstanding has been resolved, I'm sure Thea will agree if you suggest remarrying." "Remarry? Is that even possible?"

James murmured. He shook his head and said, "Forget it. Let's not talk about that."

James had no interest in relationships anymore. His priority was to find out more about the venom in his body and detoxify it.

Besides, he was not the only one who was poisoned. Thea too suffered from the parasitic Venom. If it were not for him, Thea would never have to suffer. He felt guilty toward her.

The room fell into a brief silence.

Suddenly, there was a knock on the door.

Quincy stood up and said, "The food must be here." She walked over and opened the food. Expectedly, it was the hotel's food delivery. The two sat at the table inside the room, both eating with thoughts on their mind. They ate their meals in silence until suddenly, both of them raised their heads simultaneously.

Their eyes locked. Quincy's pretty face blushed red instantly, and she hurriedly said, "D-Do you want more? Should I order another set for you?"

□ □ □