Chapter 784

Newton slowly apprised James of the situation in Cansington.

“Also...”

Newton said, “Recently, a new pharmaceutical group called Centennial Corporation was established in Cansington.”

“Huh? Centennial Corporation? Who’s behind them?”

James cocked his eyebrow.

Newton shook his head. “I don’t know. They’re currently rising in popularity for launching several new medicines that have garnered unanimous praise from consumers. Moreover, they’ve gained quite a following on Medical Street.

They have countless well-known doctors supporting them, including Jonathan who lost to you in the last medical conference.”

Hearing that made James realize something.

‘If I’m not wrong, the boss behind Centennial Corporation is the Emperor since Jonathan is his accomplice,’ James voiced his speculation out loud.

“Centennial Corporation? A hundred years? Is this a reference to their plan a hundred years ago?” James murmured darkly.

He knew the Emperor was trying to conquer the world with Gu. It was a scheme that was pioneered a hundred years ago but had failed.

“I see. Get me some of their new medicine so I can have a closer look.”

“Okay.” Newton nodded.

James turned to Serena and instructed, “Get me a wheelchair.”

“Huh?”

Serena was perplexed.

“Why do you need a wheelchair, James?”

Serena looked at James doubtfully. ‘He looks fine, so why does he need a wheelchair?’

“Just get me a wheelchair.”

Serena did not inquire further.

The two stood up and left.

James stretched his hands and rubbed his face. Then, he took a deep breath.

He took out his phone and called Quincy, “Are you free?”

“Huh? Yeah, I’m free. What’s the matter?” Quincy’s surprised voice came from the other end of the phone.

She never expected him to look for her so soon. “Come to the hospital. I need to discuss something with you.”

Quincy had been lying in bed the whole day and did not have the motivation to get out. After receiving the call from James, she suddenly felt full of energy. She quickly rolled out of bed, washed her face, changed her clothes, and put on some makeup. In an instant, she transformed into a gorgeous and sexy woman.

After getting ready, she drove to the military hospital. When she reached it, she did not go to the inpatient ward.

After arriving outside the hospital, she gave James a call.

James left the inpatient ward and headed out to meet Quincy.

Outside the hospital...

Seeing James approaching, Quincy tucked her hair behind her ear and flashed him a bright smile. “What do you need me to do?”

“You’re the perfect candidate.”

James sat down on a bench.

Quincy sat down beside him, still confused at what he meant. "I don't get it."

James said, "You're very talented and have great business acumen. I need you to help me establish a pharmaceutical company."

"Huh? What?"

Quincy was taken aback by his request. "You want to establish a pharmaceutical company?"

"Mhm."

James nodded and said, "I've learned that a new pharmaceutical company named Centennial Corporation suddenly popped up in Cansington recently. I suspect the Emperor is behind it, but I don't know what his goal is. Apart from that, I need a lot of money right now, enough to go against an entire nation.

Cansington is the capital of medicine, and establishing a pharmaceutical company would be the easiest way to accrue capital.

You're the most suitable person for the job."

Hearing this, Quincy frowned.

"James, establishing a company costs a lot of money. Where am I going to get that amount of money?"

"Give me some time, I'll sort something out." James rubbed his temples pensively.

He looked at Quincy and said with a bitter smile, “I was hoping you’d turn me down.” His words struck Quincy like a bolt of lightning. She asked with a smile, “Why?” James sighed. “I don’t want to trouble you anymore. I had hoped you’d refuse my request, but at the same time, I really need you because I don’t have anyone else I trust for this job. No one has the same capabilities you do.”
