Chapter 809

Tiara had suffered unimaginable pain.

After having her head slammed against the ground repeatedly, she lost consciousness.

The Emperor looked at Tiara who had fainted and ordered, "Treat her injuries. Don't let her die."

He did not want Tiara to die so soon.

After all, he did not know what James had up his sleeves.

Although James was now crippled, he still was a formidable foe that struck fear in the Emperor's heart. That was why he believed that keeping Tiara alive would be beneficial to him.

At an opportune moment, he could use this woman to threaten James.

"Understood."

Scar nodded. Then, he ordered, "Bring her to the doctor."

At the same time, James was making his way here.

At first, he drove by himself. However, after a while, Blake and May got into his car as he needed someone familiar with the research laboratory to explain the situation to him.

May drove, while James and Blake were in the backseat.

Blake explained, “The research laboratory is underground. There’s only a single entrance, which is guarded by about a hundred men. Although they aren’t wearing the military uniform, it’s plainly obvious that they’re the Red Flame Army.”

James asked, “What about the interior?”

Blake handed James the internal structure diagram of the research laboratory.

James then scrutinized it.

Meanwhile, Blake continued, “There are many security measures inside the research laboratory. To get into the core area, you need the palmprints of the main person in charge. As for the final passage, you will need the palmprints of two persons in charge and the key of the main researcher. There are about a hundred research personnel inside the lab, with approximately five hundred men guarding them. Although we couldn’t find out about their background, they are all highly skilled. They should be mercenaries.”

Blake explained.

In order to steal the research data, they spent half a month figuring out the situation inside. “Not only that, it’s possible that there are Undead Warriors inside the laboratory.”
“Got it.”

James nodded. Then, he closed his eyes and rested. They drove at a great speed, so a journey that would normally require more than an hour only took James and the others thirty minutes.

They stopped their cars on a road near Mount Ashgrave.

Blake said, “Any further and we’ll enter the enemy’s watch range.”

James nodded, “We’ll get off here then.”

All of them – even James – were wearing bulletproof vests.

Even though James had managed to cultivate True Energy which fortified the cellular structure of his body, it had yet to reach the point of blocking bullets.

All of them were carrying heavy weapons and had prepared enough ammo to last through the night.

May asked, “What’s the plan, James?”

On the way here, James had thought of a plan. They would launch an assault head-on and annihilate all enemy forces. Then, they would bomb the research laboratory into ruins to intimidate the Emperor.

However, the Red Flame Army guarding the entrance was a problem.

The Blithe King had begged James to spare them if possible, after all.

After thinking for a moment, James said, “Leave the Red Flame Army guarding the entrance to me. Once I’ve dealt with them, we will make our way in and slaughter everyone. If Tiara’s still alive, saving her will be our priority. If she’s dead, we wipe the research laboratory off the map. Also...”

James paused for a moment. Then, he continued, “Blake, notify the Dark Castle and order them to be on standby. If anything bad happens to Thea, we will wipe out each and every one of the Emperor’s research laboratories within Sol. We will ruin his plans and send him into panic mode. Once he panics, we will seize the opportunity to capture him.”

Although James was here to save Tiara’s life, he knew that her abductors were cold-blooded and ruthless.

Tiara’s likelihood of surviving was minuscule.

“Mhm.” Blake nodded. Then, he pulled his phone out, logged into a mysterious website, and sent a bunch of codes.

Once he completed it, he said, “I have notified them of this. However, security is tight at the border.

Infiltrating Sol is no easy feat.

You have to think of a way to help me out here.”
