Chapter 812

Professor C turned and walked out of the room, while The Emperor, Scar, and Tristan followed close behind. They headed further deeper underground.

It took them approximately ten minutes to walk through the winding underground passageway. Then, they arrived at an empty and desolate space.

There were many iron cages, in which there were many heinous creatures. Bulky and muscular, the creatures were two to three meters in height. Veins were popping out all over their faces, and their expressions were monstrous and hideous.

“Roar!!!”

Clank! Clank! Clank!

The moment they walked in, these creatures began to scream. Some smashed the cage with their fists, while others slammed their head against it.

However, the iron cages were made of fortified steel. No matter how powerful the Bionicles were, they could not break free.

Professor C pointed to the creatures inside the cages and said smilingly, “These are the research products. They possess tremendous strengths, but as their cells have undergone drastic modifications, they can only live for three years at most. The experiment isn’t perfect and requires further improvements, which is why I need more test subjects to examine the problems.’

” The Emperor nodded in satisfaction. “I understand. I’ll do my best to acquire more test subjects.”

Professor C said, “I’d prefer strong, muscular men. After all, women generally possess weaker physical capabilities, so they die easily.”

The Emperor thought about it and said, “After settling the score with James, I will send some from the Red Flame Army here. Not only are they disciplined warriors, but their physical capabilities are also equally impressive. The experiment results should be much better.”

Professor C was delighted. “That’s great!”

The Emperor looked at the Bionicles that were confined in the iron cages with anticipation. Now, allow me to witness the result of the experiments. By the way, will they lose control after you let them out of their cages?”

“Hahaha!”

Professor C laughed. “Don’t worry, they are under the control of my Gu.”

Saying that, he looked at the guards and instructed, “Open the cages.”

“Understood.”

They opened the cages. At that moment, the Bionicles rushed forward, stopped in front of Professor C, and knelt.

“Master...” With a pained expression, they spoke.

Professor C then ordered, “Crush the intruders!”

“Roar!!!” The Bionicles let loose a scream and charged toward the exit.

A grin crept up on Professor C’s face as he looked at the Emperor. “Let us watch the show, then. I will show you the true power of the Bionicles.”

The Emperor was looking forward to it. After researching for so long, it was time to see the results. Outside...

James made his way in with Blake and the Elite Eight with ease. Bodies were sprawled all over the place as they lay motionless on the ground.

“What’s that noise?”

At that moment, the earth shook.

They froze.

Upon seeing the creatures two to three meters in height charging toward them, the color drained from their faces.

“Th-The Undead Warriors?”

Blake and the Elite Eight said at the same time.
