Chapter 206 Call Her Right Now

Henry had just gotten off work and was really surprised to see them here. Why are they here?

In an instant, a lot of thoughts popped up in his mind. Can it be that Eugene wants to marry my daughter, so he came to ask for my blessing? Or is he simply here to please me?

But these thoughts were quickly rejected because the expressions of the two people opposite him looked extremely unpleasant. They really didn't look like they were here to have a chat and eat dinner together with him.

“President Nolan, Olivia, why are you here?”

Eugene looked at Amy frostily with a cold expression. “We're looking for her!”

Amy was stunned. “Looking for me? What for?”

Olivia took a step forward. “Call Anna. Call her right now!”

Amy furrowed her eyebrows. Her intuition told her that something bad had happened, so she vaguely replied, “Anna recently changed her phone number. I don't have her new number.”

Eugene's face darkened. “We're giving you a chance by talking to you nicely. Don't force us to get tough with you!”

Henry jumped in fright at this and hurriedly came over. “President Nolan, what happened?”

“Anna has kidnapped North!” Eugene said.

As soon as Henry heard these words, he almost passed out in shock. “What? Anna kidnapped Olivia’s son? But why did she kidnap him?”

Eugene glanced at him coolly. “I also want to know why.”

“Don’t worry. I’ll call her right now.” Henry fished out his phone to make the call.

But Eugene stopped him, pointed at Amy, and growled, “Let her call Anna!”

Amy too didn’t expect that her daughter would be so bold as to actually kidnap someone’s child. Seeing the two of them looking so ferocious, she felt worried about what would happen if they found Anna.

“That’s impossible. Anna wouldn’t have the guts. Did you get the wrong person?”

Olivia was on the verge of losing her patience. She shouted at Amy, “I told you to call her, so call her right now!”

Flustered by Olivia’s words, Amy’s eyes shifted in avoidance. “I really don’t know her phone number.”

Olivia wasn’t stupid. It was as clear as day that Amy was lying. The worry and anxiety from not being able to find North kept mounting in Olivia’s heart by the second. She was not in the mood to beat around the bush with Amy, so she stepped forward and grabbed her neck. “Why do you speak so much nonsense?”

Feeling suffocated, Amy’s hands grappled at her neck instinctively. “Let! Go! Of! Me!”

After all, Olivia had learned martial arts for several years, so her grip was strong and forceful. No matter how Amy struggled, she could not escape from Olivia’s grasp.

Henry instinctively stepped forward and wanted to help. “Olivia, what are you doing? How could you hurt her?”

Eugene came up to block him before saying coldly, “If something bad happens to North, I guarantee that all of you will pay for it several times over!”

Henry hastily replied, “N-No. Are you sure you’re not mistaken? How is it possible for Anna to have kidnapped the child?”

The corners of Eugene’s lips curved up mockingly. “You should ask Anna yourself when she comes back!”

Olivia stared at Amy, whose face was gradually turning pale. “Call her. Otherwise, when we find her, I’ll definitely kill her!”

Amy finally compromised and nodded vigorously.

Seeing that she had agreed, Olivia let go.

Amy immediately collapsed to the ground and started coughing desperately.

Olivia took a step back, picked up a fruit knife from the table, and pointed it at Amy. Her face was frigid as she stared at the latter angrily. “Call her!”

Amy stared at the knife in Olivia’s hand anxiously. “You—”

Olivia had lost her patience while she roared, “Now!”

Amy took her phone warily and called her daughter, praying in her heart that Anna would never answer. Considering how Olivia and Eugene were behaving, they would definitely kill her if they found her.

Chapter 207 Return Him or Never See Your Mother Again

Perhaps Anna had really heard Amy's prayers, as the phone rang for a long time without anyone answering it.

Amy's phone had no caller ringtone, so there was only a beeping connection sound. It made anyone who listened to it continuously feel irritable.

Olivia stared at Amy. She was sure that the latter was calling Anna, but why didn't that woman answer?

Could it be that she found out something?

Just when she felt disappointed and thought that this method didn't work, Anna's voice came over the phone. "Mom, what's the matter?"

"Anna..."

As soon as Amy called out, Eugene snatched her phone away.

Olivia was surprised. He was obviously farther away from Amy than she was, but he actually moved faster than her.

The moment Eugene got the phone, his voice fell, bearing uncontrollable anger.

“Anna, your mother is in my hands. You’d better send the child back to me safely; otherwise, I guarantee that you will never see your mother ever again!”

Olivia was slightly astonished when she heard what he said. His threats are so simple and straightforward!

Fortunately, he’s the one who answered the phone. If I said that, Anna would never believe it.

But Eugene is different; he gives off a domineering aura such that nobody would dare to provoke him, and no one would take his words for a joke.

Sure enough, Anna was silent for a long time.

“A-Are you... Eugene Nolan?”

Eugene replied solemnly, “Yes, it’s me. Release North now, and I will not pursue this matter further. Otherwise, you will definitely not be able to bear the consequences!”

“Ha!” Anna laughed. “I really don’t understand why all of you like Olivia so much! She’s just a woman who has slept with beggars before. Why do you treat her like a treasure? Do you not have any other women to choose from, President Nolan?”

“Shut up!” Eugene snapped.

Anna laughed madly over the phone. “Hahaha... Why? Did I touch a sore spot there? Didn’t you see the post on the Internet? The child you’re looking for is the b*stard child of that beggar and Olivia. You see—I’m actually helping you to get rid of this b*stard child so that you don’t have to worry about him anymore. You should thank me instead!”

Eugene exuded a frightening and violent aura. His voice was frigid as he growled, “If you harm him, you’re gonna get it!”

Anna playfully spoke, “Why are you so anxious? What’s wrong with getting rid of him, though? Don’t tell me that you really want to be that b*stard child’s father!”

Eugene sneered, his eyes filled with bloodthirsty intent. Without a further word, he grabbed the knife in Olivia’s hand and stabbed Amy on the shoulder.

“Ah!”

Amy’s earth-shattering howl shocked the woman on the other end of the phone, who fell silent for a long time.

Eugene’s expressionless poker face, coupled with his chilly tone, made him appear like a living Hades straight out of Hell itself.

“If you keep running your mouth, I’ll keep stabbing your mother! Let’s see if you can speak faster than I can stab!”

For a long time, Olivia remained stunned on the spot. She didn’t even realize that the knife in her hand had been taken away by him.

Anna’s voice was loud enough to be heard by everyone present. She couldn’t help but feel upset after hearing such provocations.

Moreover, Eugene, who didn’t know the truth, ended up being provoked too. But what Olivia didn’t know was that it wasn’t Anna’s provocation that angered him; it was Anna’s criticisms of Olivia that infuriated him!

Eugene was probably maddened enough to force her in such an extreme way.

Although desperate times called for desperate measures, this was beyond what a friend could do. Even her suitor wouldn’t be able to hurt others with a knife just to protect her!

After a moment of panic, Anna, who was on the other side of the phone, finally calmed down.

Super Wife's Three Babies chapter 208

Chapter 208 Really Couldn't Respect Him!

“You’d better not force me, Eugene. Don’t forget that the b*stard is still in my hands. If you dare to harm my mother, I’ll stab this kid!”

“Don’t you dare!” Eugene warned. “If you dare to hurt him, I’ll return the pain tenfold!”

“Haha!” Anna laughed maniacally. “Then you’d better not harm my mother as well. If not, you won’t be able to see this kid anymore. Now that I’ve lost everything, I wouldn’t mind losing one life for another!”

Eugene glanced at Kyle, who was still tracing the call. After Kyle gave him an ‘OK’ sign, he felt better as he continued trying to deal with Anna. “It’s not about exchanging a life for another; this is about your entire family! Are you that insane to disregard your parents’ lives?”

Anna replied, “Yes! I’m insane! You guys have forced me to the brinks of insanity! What’s so good about Olivia that she got all of you to help her out? All I did was post a status before you guys exposed me on the Internet and shut down my studio! I could accept that because I’m not as capable as you guys, but how dare you guys get so many beggars to... You guys have caused me to lose everything! Now that I have nothing, being dead or alive doesn’t matter to me anymore. Olivia cares a lot about this b*stard, doesn’t she? Well, I’ll bring this kid along with me, then. I’ll make Olivia suffer for the rest of her life!”

Eugene started to feel panic. He could try to negotiate against a sane person, but when facing an insane person... Eugene was really afraid that Anna might try to pull something crazy.

He passed the phone over to Olivia and motioned for her to say something.

Olivia took the phone and started yelling, “Anna Maxwell! If you dare to harm North, I’ll never let you off the hook!”

“Hah! You’ll never let me off the hook? Have you ever, though? Isn’t it you who forced me to become who I am today?”

Olivia started pacing around as she argued, “I’ve never tried to do anything to you. It was always you who’s had something against me!”

Anna gritted her teeth as she snapped, “Why did you even come back in the first place? What’s wrong with dying out there? Why did you have to fight with me? I can’t do anything to you, but to this kid... there’s still a lot that I can do! Hahaha!”

On the other side, Eugene supported Amy, who was injured, to head out as Henry ran out to catch up to them. “Where are you guys bringing her?”

Eugene stopped as he stared coldly at Henry. He really couldn’t respect this father!

“Olivia is your daughter while North is your grandson, so you’d better not think about informing Anna about anything. If something happens to North, you can expect to collect the mother and daughter’s bodies!”

Then, Eugene helped Amy to get into the car.

He also got Kyle to get a tape to seal her mouth.

Olivia had already hung up on the other hand. “Did you get their location?”

Eugene replied as he patted her shoulder to console her, “Yes. Get in. We are going over there now.”

Olivia immediately got into the car as they enroured toward the suburbans.

After about an hour of car journey, they finally reached the location.

The sky was already pitch black at this time. This place was an demolished area, so naturally, there weren’t any lights. They could only use their phone’s flashlight to figure this place out. The buildings here were old, and they looked like they might fall apart anytime.

Eugene held Olivia as they walked toward where the phone’s GPS was leading them to. Their hearts sank a little with every step that they took. If North was really brought here, he must be terrified. Upon that thought, they fastened their pace.

Amy was dragged along by Kyle while none of them tended to the stab wound on her shoulder. However, after a long time, the bleeding had already stopped.

Chapter 209 She was Insane

However, her wound still hurt with every step that she took as sweat continued forming around her forehead. Amy couldn't help but blame everything on Anna. She's insane! It's fine that she wants to bully Olivia, but dragging Eugene into this? Anna wasn't seeking death by doing this. Instead, she's dragging the entire family to die along with her!

They got up to the third floor using the staircase. There was still a complete room here with a door and windows. Eugene pulled Olivia backward before he brought his leg up and kicked the door. However, they were dumbfounded when they entered the room, for it was already empty.

However, there were eaten lunch boxes as well as ropes used for bonding and some dried bloodstains; all of this pointed to the fact that they were once here! Olivia's mind started buzzing before going completely blank. Then, she started searching around the room frantically.

Eugene was stunned as he stood rooted to the ground. They've left. Did they leave after realizing that we'd found out about their location, or did someone come to rescue them?

Eugene took his phone out and contacted Curtis. "Did you guys rescue the kid?"

Curtis' anxious voice rang out from the other end of the call. "President Nolan, we haven't found him yet. However, we've already gotten their location. They're now in a demolished building in the suburbs."

Eugene felt his heart sink. "We are here, but they're already gone!"

"What? You guys are there already? They're gone? Could it be that they've already relocated?"

Eugene was worried about that as well. "Let's regroup here for now!" Then, he took Amy's phone and tried to contact Anna again. However, this time, the phone was turned off.

At the same time, Olivia had already searched through the entire room. She looked like she was in a panic. “No. It looks like they went down willingly, and there were many of them. There are many footprints in the room and on the staircase—there should be at least six of them!”

Eugene immediately tried to console Olivia. “Don’t be anxious. Let’s head down and see if we can find any leads.”

Olivia asked, “What about her phone? Did the call go through?”

Eugene shook his head. “She turned off her phone!”

Immediately, Olivia dashed toward Amy, as if she had gone insane, as she grabbed onto Amy’s collar and demanded, “Tell me! Where is Anna? Where is she?!”

Amy’s collar tightened around her neck, and she was struggling to speak. “I really don’t know! I’ve been with you guys the entire time!”

Olivia was panicking. This felt so much worse than not being able to locate them. It was as if she had fallen into an endless hole, and, after spending so much effort to climb up, she fell back into the hole again. The fear of the unknown was magnified in the dark night. She was losing her rationality as she tried to think clearly. Could it be that Henry had contacted Anna and informed her to get away? If it weren’t so, how could it be so coincidental?

Olivia took her phone and immediately contacted Henry before asking in a bone-chilling tone, “Did you contact Anna and told her to get away?”

Henry’s voice rang from the phone. “No, I didn’t!”

Olivia’s eyes were reddish as tears threatened to pour out. “If you hadn’t informed her, how did Anna manage to escape? Henry... y-you’re really cruel...” Olivia’s last sentence was laced with so much pain and helplessness.

Eugene felt like someone was slashing his heart as he watched the woman in front of him shake while holding the phone. Immediately, he went over to her and pulled her into his embrace before he snatched her phone over and hung up.

“It could not have been your father. He wouldn’t dare to pull that off since Amy is in our hands now. I’ve already warned him about it!”

Olivia was horrified. “That insane woman wouldn’t really want to bring North to the depths of hell along with her, would she?”

Eugene patted Olivia’s back lightly before he consoled her, “She won’t. No one wants to die. Don’t scare yourself like that.”

Chapter 210 The Tyre Tracks

“But there’s blood in the room.”

Olivia could not comfort herself as negative thoughts flooded her mind. She began to imagine a few hundred different scenarios of her child in danger. She could hardly hold on any further. She admitted to herself that she wanted Eugene to oppose her thoughts. It would be the best if he was able to convince her, as if she would believe everything that he said. Unknowingly, she had already started depending on him.

“The blood in the room might not belong to North. The color is much darker. A child’s blood usually isn’t that dark.” Eugene was just spurring nonsense with a straight face.

Olivia couldn’t care less about his words. She merely hummed in agreement, but she was not reassured at all.

Meanwhile, a few people walked downstairs and looked around the tyre tracks with the flashlights on their phones. They realized that apart from Olivia and their cars, there were a few tyre tracks from other cars nearby. The tracks looked fresh, and there were a lot of trails left behind. The least number of cars that were involved would be two cars with around five to six people. From afar, a car headlight flashed. When they walked near it, they realized that Curtis and the rest had arrived.

“President Nolan,” Curtis said as he passed a flashlight to them. With that, it had become more convenient for them to walk around in the dark. Eugene took it and appraised the surroundings. There were no surveillance cameras at all, so it was way more difficult to look for people here. “The blood in the room hasn’t dried yet, so they must have left less than 20 minutes ago. Check the cars that exited here immediately,” Eugene ordered Curtis.

Curtis did not dare to say anything unnecessary, so he quickly replied, “Yes, sir!”

Standing at the same spot, Olivia remained silent. Usually, she would hand everything to North if they needed to investigate some matters, so right now, she had no idea where to start. The anxiousness within her had made her lose all analytical capabilities. She was already brave enough as she managed to stop herself from crying. Just a moment ago, she was on the verge of breaking down and sobbing out loud already. She didn’t know how she could survive if North had really met with an accident.

Eugene had seen through her fragility under her tough appearance and held her into his arms again. With a gentle voice, he said, “Don’t worry. North is smart. I believe that he’s figured out a way to escape.”

Leaning in his arms with his gentle voice ringing in her ears, Olivia could not hold herself anymore. Tears streamed down her face as she exclaimed, “He is still so young! Why didn’t she take it out on me? Why did she target a child?”

Eugene consoled her, “Come on. It doesn’t mean that Anna has brought him away. Didn’t you see that two more cars came by here? Perhaps they were here to save North. Don’t scare yourself first. Let’s get into the car to track them down!”

After wiping her tears off, Olivia followed Eugene into the car.

“Follow these fresh tyre tracks,” he ordered, to which Kyle replied in agreement. The car slowly drove out of the demolished building to a straight, wide road in front.

After Eugene got out of the car, he immediately walked to a small restaurant nearby that had surveillance cameras installed nearby. He tried speaking to the restaurant owner, though he didn’t seem willing to comply as he didn’t want to get into trouble. Eugene quickly gave him some money, and it was only then that he agreed to show them the footage. Instantly, he caught sight of the few cars that drove away from the buildings. Luckily, the footage was clear enough for him to see the car plates. Hence, he took down the number of the car plates for Curtis to look it up.

In no time, Curtis replied, “We’ve found and confirmed the information of the three car owners. I’ll send our men over immediately. However, the weird thing is that I can’t even find who the owners of the two cars are.”

Upon hearing that, Eugene frowned deeply. “You can’t find them?”

Curtis replied, “No, I can’t get anything. It’s all blank.”

At this point, Olivia said, “This is quite simple. North is able to hide our information so that others can’t find us as well.”
