

My Baby's Daddy Chapter 1757

Eva's car flipped over and rolled twice before coming to a stop. She was hanging from her seat, unconscious. Her hair tumbled down to the car's base while blood trickled down her forehead that was slammed into the steering wheel.

The man hopped out of his car and approached Eva, a knife in his hand. He hadn't been ordered to kill Eva. Instead, he was told to knock her out and slash her face. Indeed, he had received orders to disfigure her.

Eva had no idea danger was closing in and that her beauty was in jeopardy. Fortunately, her guardian angels were looking out for her. A firetruck zipped by just in time. They had just returned from a firefighting mission and ran into this unfortunate event.

A few firemen hopped off the truck, and the criminal tucked his knife away. He then put on a look of worry. "Quick, save her!"

The bonnet of Eva's car had oil leaking through it, and smoke billowed in the air. First, the firemen rescued Eva from the car, then they put out the smoke. Eva was then taken to the nearest hospital.

his car and made a call. "I failed. I could've done her face up. A forehead wound won't

I'm in trouble

the money. We agreed to that, remember?

almost killed someone the cash ready. Come and take it," Lucy hissed. She wouldn't pay full price unless the job was off to meet Lucy. At the same time, meeting spot where a red sports car stood. Before he got out of the car, he whipped out a split it into three parts. Lucy opened up her trunk, and the sight of cash caused the criminal to be crazy.

Stupidly