Chapter 1641 Class Begins

Jessie picked a spot and sat down. Everyone in the class looked at her upon her arrival. Some recognized who she was, and they broke out into hushed discussion.

“Hey, isn’t she a stuntwoman? Why is she here?”

“Yeah. Is it even necessary for her to take this class? Not like she’s gonna be on camera.”

“She’s probably switching lanes. Got tired of the stuntwoman job, perhaps.”

“She should stay in her lane, though. Not everyone is talented enough to be an actress,” one arrogant woman sneered.

The lecture hall was quiet, and Jessie heard everything despite their whispering. She took her notebook out and ignored the gossip.

“Hey. What’s your name?” a girl asked.

The girl beside Jessie turned around, her eyes filled with envy. “So, your friend is Julian? Are you guys dating?”

“No. We’re just friends.” Jessie smiled. She raised her head and was met with Xandra’s icy glare. She blamed Jessie for the embarrassment she suffered earlier.

Jessie shot her a look as well. She never did anything to her, and she wouldn’t let Xandra bully her, either.

After class was over, the professor asked Jessie to come with her. Xandra approached them happily. “Professor Larson, I have a few questions I’d like to ask. Can I come as well?”

“Of course.” The professor nodded.

“Hey, that’s a limited-edition bag.”

Xandra and her sycophants were brimming with jealousy. So, not only is her backer powerful, but they’re rich too.

Jessie didn’t ask Queenie to pick her up. Instead, she wanted to get a ride home. Before that, she wanted to look around the place as the scenery of Averno University was exceptionally beautiful. Halfway through her stroll, her phone rang. She wondered who it was, but when she saw the caller’s name, she froze. Julian. She quickly picked it up. “Hello, Mr. Gilmore.”

“Ignore the news.” An attractive voice came from the other end of the line.

“No, I’m fine. But this is going to affect your reputation, though.” She was worried about him. She was fine with what the Internet thought about her, but she didn’t want Julian’s reputation to be affected.

“Your reputation is equally important,” he answered calmly.

Jessie nodded. She was really nervous. Coming here meant her life would take a new turn. The path ahead would be laden with challenges.

He took her to the thirty-eighth floor and entered an office before he handed her over to one of the managers around. “Brief her about the contract.”

“Of course, Master Julian.” The manager smiled. She called him Master.

Julian then turned to Jessie and said, “Just go through the process. You’ll be getting everything an A-lister gets.”

“Huh?” Her eyes went wide with shock. I get what an A-lister gets too? But I don’t even have any work produced yet. The pressure was mounting as she was worried that she might let him down.

“Come with me, Miss Silverstein,” the manager said.

Jessie followed the manager. She printed out the contract and gently told Jessie where to sign being 1.4 million dollars. She felt her heart thumping furiously. How am I supposed to make that kind her snacks and coffee. She asked Jessie

Jessie came to the restroom. There was barely anyone in the cubicles, so she picked the innermost one. Not long after she went inside, a few ladies came in as they chatted along. The biggest news of the day was Julian’s scandal with a no-name stuntwoman. They hadn’t received any orders to keep the news down, so they thought Julian must be letting the news make the rounds.

“Who is that stuntwoman? Why does Master Julian care about her so much? She even gets everything an A-lister gets.”

“Are you sure about that?”

“Yeah. I printed the contract myself and even took a look at it. She’s getting an A-lister’s resources, alright.”

“I wonder how he managed to convince President Gilmore to sign this. We would never have signed on someone with no acting chops otherwise.”

Hmm, my friend’s mother met up with Brenda before. I think I can get Brenda’s phone number from her.

Lina made the call and promised her friend she would give her a spot on her private jet the next time she went on a vacation. Her friend readily agreed to the favor because of that.

Lina got a number a while later. She looked at it, feeling smug. I bet Queenie wouldn’t expect an interrogation from the Mansons. Let’s change that, shall we?

Brenda returned home at six. The moment she got out of her car, her phone kept ringing. She wondered who it was. And six messages at the same time?

She checked the messages out, and what she saw shocked her to the core. The woman in the photos was Queenie, and the images were explicit. That woman was resting her chin on the arm of a man, and Brenda could see the man’s hair in the corner of the photo. He also stuck his tongue out. Just the sight of this made her feel uncomfortable.

Nigel hunkered down, and Queenie quickly leaped onto his back. He easily lifted her. Strolling across the plains under the sunset was a romantic feeling.

She wrapped her arms around his neck and leaned on his back, a sweet smile curling her lips.

“I’ll take you home first. I need to settle something tonight,” he said.

“We aren’t having dinner together?”

“This might take a while. Spend some time with Jessie.”

Lina had forgotten all about what she had sent Brenda. It was just a simple message, and she didn't care what would happen. If the images managed to ruin the engagement, she thought she would have a chance at Nigel. She was binge-watching some shows online, but then her screen turned black all of a sudden. "What happened?" She was shocked. Did my computer die?

Right then, a message slowly showed up on her screen. 'Lina Perez, you have gone too far.'

Brenda harrumphed, "Next time you do this, I won't let you off that easily." She angrily hung up, heaved a sigh, and deleted all the photos Lina sent her.

Lina plopped back onto her bed, looking defeated. And then, her phone rang, but it was an unfamiliar number. "Who is this?"

"You slept with my husband?! I'm gonna kill you, Lina Perez!" a woman hissed.

Lina's hand trembled, and she shouted at her computer screen, "You lied to me! Who in the world are you?!"

She couldn't believe this was something done by someone who wanted to date her son. She went upstairs and knocked on Nigel's door. Right “Just don’t want anyone else to see this. The Internet is a dangerous place. Just come over and show me yourself tomorrow,” Nigel said gently.

Aww, he’s so sweet. She could never get tired of looking at him. “My dad and mom should arrive at ten tomorrow morning,” he informed.

She nodded in acknowledgment. “Alright, I’ll wake up early and get myself dressed up.”

Queenie looked at the time and noticed it was already 10.30PM. However, she still wanted to stay up. “Aww, let’s talk a bit more.”
