Chapter 1661 Hypocrite

Jessie thought this was an interesting script, especially the scene when she was used as a human cannonball to shoot down the approaching Demon Lord. He was about to turn her into ash, but when he saw her face, he pulled back his attack and was hurt badly by the recoil. He held her in his arms, and they both fell into the mortal world.

The story in the mortal world was interesting as well. Jessie's character nagged the Demon Lord like a mother, and it drove him mad. He tried to destroy her many times, but in the end, he couldn't.

Jessie kept chuckling at the scene. She wondered what kind of face Julian would make during those scenes.

He looked like a character that came from the age of myths, so scripts like these starring him would be a hit. However, this was the first time he took up a role like this. Even Jessie was looking forward to it, let alone Julian's fans. She started looking forward to the day of the shoot.

Just then, her phone rang. It was from Lexie. "Hey, Lexie."

"Oh my gosh! You're the female lead for Fallen Heaven?!" Lexie screamed excitedly.

"Sorry, but I can't help," Jessie refused.

"Are you still angry at me? I'm sorry. A lot of things happened back then, so I was in a bad mood. Please don't be angry at me."

"I have to sleep now, Miss Houston. Goodbye."

"Jessie? Jessie!" Lulu didn't want to hang up, but Jessie couldn't care less. She hung up anyway.

She continued reading the script. Everyone was watching her, especially the role she would play. She wouldn't let anyone down, nor would she give those haters a chance to mock her. I will play this role perfectly. I will challenge the impossible. However, not too long later, her phone rang again. It was another unfamiliar number. She hesitated for a moment, but she picked it up anyway.

Two weeks later, Queenie and Nigel were already back in Averno. It was a sunny morning. They first had breakfast at home, and Nigel went to work in the afternoon. He asked the Presgrave couple out for dinner at night. It had been a while since Queenie and Jessie met, so the sisters locked themselves up in their room and had a little girl's talk.

Jessie stared at the pictures of the island, looking forward to visiting it during her sister's wedding. Preparations were underway, and there was only a month left before the event. Queenie had to start the preparations on her side, like testing out gowns.

"We want you and Julian to be our bridesmaid and best man," Queenie said.

Jessie blushed, but more than that, she felt happy. And she looked forward to it as well.

“When she falls asleep tonight, come to the master bedroom,” Elliot pleaded hoarsely. The last time he had asked Anastasia, she said yes, but she fell asleep after putting Willow to sleep and missed the date as a result.

He was left hanging the whole night and spent the next day complaining to her nonstop. It was only after she went to work with him and spent two hours in the hotel next door that he finally let her off the hook.

“We’ll see.” She didn’t say yes that readily this time, just in case she stood him up again. He would pull the same stunt on her once more if that happened.

Elliot carried his daughter with a smile.

Nigel felt slightly hurt, for the little one was pretty forgetful.

“Nice to see you again, Nigel.” Anastasia came out of the room with a smile. Queenie’s eyes brightened, for she thought that Mrs. Presgrave was alluring. There was no denying that she was a stunning beauty.

Although Queenie had seen many beautiful women, Anastasia was still the most charming and graceful woman she had ever come across.

“Anastasia, let me introduce her to you. She’s Queenie.” Nigel then introduced Anastasia to Queenie. “She’s Elliot’s wife, who is also the president and chairperson of QR Jewelry Group.”

Queenie instantly had the urge to learn from her. She hoped that she would be as independent and capable as Anastasia one day.

“Anastasia designed them herself. Just accept her gift,” Elliot said with a smile.

At that instant, Queenie felt that the gift was profoundly meaningful, so she unwittingly clenched them tightly. “Thanks, Anastasia. I’ll be sure to treasure your gift.”

“I’m glad that you like it. Visit us frequently and have a chat with us. We can also go out for a cup of coffee or an afternoon tea,” Anastasia said gently.

Moved by the woman’s hospitality, Queenie nodded. “Alright, Anastasia. I still have a lot to learn from you.”

“Sure. If there’s anything you don’t understand, just reach out to me,” Anastasia replied with a smile.

After dinner ended, Elliot and his family members went to a nearby shopping mall while Nigel and Queenie went home to get some rest.

In the shopping mall, Elliot was walking around with his daughter in his arms, and they attracted a lot of attention. The little one loved being in a shopping mall. While in her father’s arms, she couldn’t stop looking around.

Chapter 1667 Arriving at the Filming Location

Just then, Jessie received a message on her phone. The moment she picked up her phone, her lips twisted into a smile as her eyes tinged with joy. It was Julian.

'Are you done with the photoshoot? Are you heading home?' he asked caringly.

'Yes, I'm done with it. I'm going home right now,' Jessie replied.

'Get some rest when you reach home. The opening ceremony will be held soon.'

'I will. You should get some rest as well,' Jessie replied considerately.

The opening ceremony would take place in three days, and she would be busy starring in the movie. Apart from acting, she looked forward to spending most of her time with Julian on set.

By then, they would be living in the same place. During their spare time, they could read their scripts together. They might also have to work together until the middle of the night. All in all, she could do many things with him.

Chapter 1688 Standing Up for Her

The fact that Julian and Jessie, the female lead of the new film, had checked into the same hotel soon became trending news.

Jessie's room was just beside Julian's. In fact, she was staying in a luxurious suite. She had brought three suitcases with her that were full of clothes, toiletries, and her favorite snacks of the finest quality that her mother had bought for her.

Her luggage was filled with her parents' love.

In the afternoon, they were going to have a meal together. The moment Jessie stepped out of her room, she came across Julian, who had two assistants and four bodyguards with him. His assistants, who were a man and a woman, had been responsible for taking care of his daily needs.

"Let's go downstairs together," Julian offered.

Jessie nodded and stepped into the elevator with him. A while later, the elevator stopped moving, and two actresses entered the next moment. They were familiar faces in showbiz. The reporters were still not done with the photo session when a breeze whisked through them and brought up some sand. Before Jessie could react, some sand had come into contact with her eyes. Although Julian's face was covered with sweat, he still pulled Jessie into his arms and brought her somewhere else before checking her eyes.

Jessie couldn't open her eyes, but it was nothing serious.

Julian gently blew some air at her eyes, not once concealing his concern for the woman even though they were surrounded by fans and reporters.

Lisa Powers gritted her teeth and clenched her fists. Why is Julian so concerned about this new actress?

Just then, a female supporter recognized her and exclaimed, "Oh, my gosh! Are you Lisa?"

"You've gotten the wrong person." At that, Lisa covered her face with her hand and turned around to leave.

She had to head to another film set. Since she wasn't selected as the female lead for this movie, she could only settle for another historical movie she didn't have high hopes for. Furthermore, she was paired with an actor who hadn't made a name for himself yet. Therefore, she loathed Julian for treating Jessie so well.

Both the kisser and the one being kissed were stumped.

Jessie hurriedly removed the towel from her eyes, only to blush when she finally realized who it was. Julian, on the other hand, continued to fish out Jessie's phone for her.

His face was merely inches away from her. He was so close that she could even feel his breath brushing against her face.

Finally, he successfully retrieved her phone. However, a red line formed on the back of his hand due to the force he exerted.

While taking the phone from him, Jessie looked at the slightly bruised hand with pain. "I'm sorry. Does it hurt?"

As the seats came with a massage function, there was a small gap between the seats. So, fishing out a fallen phone wasn't so hard.

"Don't worry about it. How are your eyes?" asked Julian as he scrutinized her eyes.
