

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 2626

Chapter 2626

Patricia seemed to have noticed something had happened between her son and Leah. What's more, her son was being bewitched by a woman she did not like, so her face was dark.

“Zephir doesn't even want to come home now. He just wants to stay outside. I really don't understand what's so good about that woman.”

Alexander said, “Alright, alright. This is his own choice. He's a grown adult. We can't help him make decisions now.

Patricia sighed. “I thought Leah was going to become my daughter-in-law...”

Benjamin chuckled and said, “It's fine. It isn't going to affect our relationship anyway.”

At Yaramoor, at Blue Valley Manor...

Daisie walked to the flower garden with her big belly and watered the roses in the courtyard, hoping that they would bloom beautifully in the spring.

Nollace approached her and took the watering can from her. “Didn't I say you should rest more?”

She pursed her lips and said, “I either sit or eat and sleep every day. I feel like I'm going to become a mushroom soon.”

Nollace chuckled and helped her to water the plant. “Just bear with it for a little longer. You can do whatever you want after the babies are born.”

“You make it sound like it's so easy. Why don't you go ahead and give birth to a baby?”

Nollace wrapped his arm around her shoulders and replied, “Well, I'd gladly do that if I could.”

Daisie caressed her stomach and asked, “Do you think the twins are boys or girls?”

Nollace put down the watering can, squatted in front of her, and listened. After a short while, he said, “I heard it.”

She asked curiously, “What did you hear?”

Chuckling, Nollace replied, “I heard the sound of a naughty boy and a little princess.”

Daisie frowned. “Are you sure?”

Nollace slowly stood up and carried Daisie into the house. “Since we don’t know their gender, we might as well say one of them is a boy, and the other is a girl.”

Daisie sat on the couch, and then she saw that there was a text message on her phone.

She picked it up and realized that Leah had texted her about half an hour ago.

[Daisie, I’ve already cut off my friendship with Zephir.]

Daisie was stunned, and she hastily replied.

[What happened?]

Leah was sitting in a restaurant when she received Daisie’s reply. She picked her phone up and hesitated for a moment before replying to her.

[Honestly, I’ve liked him for a very long time, but I’m really disappointed now. I thought he didn’t know what I thought about him, but I didn’t expect him not only to know but also to play me like an idiot. I’m tired.]

Daisie was stunned.

She had not been talking to Zephir ever since she left the crew because of the incident. She felt that Zephir had changed. He did not seem like the person she used to know.

After that, she heard that he had gotten a new girlfriend, and then she did not hear anything about him anymore.

Her eyelashes fluttered as she replied.

D: [Have you never told him about it?]

L: [Why should I tell him about how I feel since I already knew it'd never work out between us? He can turn a blind eye to my feelings even though he knows about them, so it won't change anything even if I tell him about my feelings.]

L: [Anyway, it doesn't matter anymore since it's an unrequited love. Maybe some people aren't meant for each other. This should be the will of God. I've already moved on.]

She was not the kind of woman who would still linger on after being rejected by other people. Although she felt a little bit sad, things happened, and there were always times when people were blinded by their emotions.

The waiter served the food after she chatted with Daisy for a while. She put her phone away, took a deep breath, and began eating her food. She had decided to move on.

At the end of the year, she would make a new plan for her life!

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 2627

Chapter 2627

A man approached Leah and asked, "Are you Ms. Younge?"

Leah raised her head. She thought the man her father introduced was not coming anymore. She was going to leave after she finished everything, but to her dismay, he came in the end.

She smiled. "Yeah, it's me. Please have a seat."

The man sat down and looked at the food on the table.

Leah continued to smile and said, “I’m sorry. It’s the third day of the new year. I thought you were not coming anymore since it has already been half an hour”

The man was rendered speechless. After all, Leah implied he was half an hour late.

“I was caught up by something. Anyway, Ms. Younge, I heard you worked as an interpreter while abroad?”

Without putting down her fork, Leah replied, “Yeah. I’m still considering whether I should go back or not after this.”

Maintaining a smile on his face, he asked, “You’re planning to go back there?”

“It depends on my situation,” said Leah. After that, she raised her head to look at the man and continued. ” If we’re getting married, I might stay here or overseas, depending on my job. Can you accept it, Mr. Isaiah?”

Isaiah was stunned.

Leah continued. “Of course, if you want to, I hope we can get married as soon as possible. Although our property after marriage is shared, I hope we can take care of our own finances ourselves. In other words, you take care of your money, and I take care of mine.

“As for the baby, I don’t want to have a baby so soon. I hope we can wait for a few years after my job situation has stabilized. When we have a baby, I want to hire a nanny so that I can focus on my career.”

“Wait a moment...” Isaiah chimed in. “This is the first time we meet each other, so don’t you think it’s a bit too soon to talk about marriage?”

Leah asked, “Isn’t that what this blind date is about? If we like each other, we can go and get our marriage license right away.”

Isaiah scoffed, and his voice changed. “Ms. Younge, are you worried that you can’t get married? The reason I came for a blind date is that I hope I can find someone who has a mutual interest with me. At least we should test for a while first and see if we're meant for each other or not. I don't think there's anyone who can stand it if you talk about marriage right off the bat."

"If you can't take it, you can leave. I didn't ask you to stay," said Leah.

Isaiah rose to his feet and said, "What a strange woman."

He stormed away after sitting for less than five minutes. Leah popped another piece of meat into her mouth and took another sip of soup. After that, she put the cash on the table and left.

She rushed over when the elevator was about to close and shouted, "Hold the door!"

The door opened again, and she saw three people upon entering the elevator. Other than Waylon, there was one woman standing beside him, and the third person was none other than Morrison.

Morrison raised his hand to block his face and turned his head to the side. He did not expect to run into Leah here at all.

Waylon chuckled and said, "What a coincidence, Leah."

"Yeah, what a coincidence," Leah replied with a smile. She entered the elevator and asked, "Are you guys here for a meal?"

"Yeah, we just finished our meal," replied Waylon. After that, he wrapped his arm around Cameron and continued. "This is my wife. Her name is Cameron."

Cameron smiled and greeted her. "Hi."

Then, she glanced at Morrison and mouthed, "Is she Ms. Younge?"

Leah also looked at Morrison.

Waylon smiled meaningfully. "He's my friend. You can call him Morrison."

Leah nodded. "I see. So, your name is Morrison."

Morrison gnashed his teeth and said, “Hah, it seems like Bassburgh is such a small city.”

Before going their separate ways the last time, he had said that they would never see each other again, but reality gave him a huge slap across his face.

Cameron leaned closer to Waylon and asked, “What’s wrong with them?”

Waylon chuckled. “Well, just as what you think it is.”

When they arrived at the first floor, all of them came out of the elevator. Morrison was walking behind Leah, and the more he thought about it, the more he felt something was wrong. He turned his head around and asked, “You didn’t put a GPS on me, did you?”

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 2628

Chapter 2628

Leah was stunned and shook her head.

“So, how can you explain this? I’m sure there is more than one restaurant in Bassburgh, right?”

Leah shrugged. “But there aren’t many high-end restaurants in Bassburgh either.”

Morrison chortled and asked, “Then can’t you pick another restaurant with a lower ranking?”

“Well, it doesn’t matter since I already know your name now.” Leah smiled. After that, she turned around and left.

Morrison clicked his tongue, feeling he had been taken advantage of.

Waylon drove the car over and locked the door after Cameron got in. Morrison went to the passenger seat and knocked on the window when he couldn’t open the door.

“What are you doing?”

Waylon looked at him and smiled. “We still have another date left, so you’re on your own now.”

“What? You-”

Without waiting for him to finish his sentence, Waylon stepped on the accelerator and drove the car away.

Morrison looked at the car that was disappearing from his vision and snorted exasperatingly. ‘He didn’t think I was a nuisance earlier, and now he thinks I am? Hmph! Men, they’re all the same.’”

Morrison stood with his hands on his waist and watched as Leah entered her car. While she was putting on her seatbelt, the door to the passenger seat was opened, and Morrison entered her car.

She was stunned for a moment as she looked at Morrison in surprise. “I thought you already left with them?”

“They have other plans, so I’m not going to be the killjoy to spoil their fun.”

Leah nodded and started the car.

While they were on the road, Morrison did not expect Leah to drive so fast. He grabbed tightly at the handle and said, “Can you slow down a bit? I don’t really want to die here.”

Leah replied, “I’m driving at a normal speed.”

“You’re driving at 80 mph/hour while overtaking cars! Hey, slow down!”

Morrison’s heart was in his throat. When Leah stopped the car at the side of Bassburgh River, Morrison looked outside through the river and asked, “Where is this place?”

“Under the bridge. I thought you lived here?”

Morrison was rendered speechless.

If he had heart disease, he would be dead now.

Morrison gritted his teeth and said, "Since when did I tell you that I live under the bridge?"

Leah turned her head to look at him and said, "You didn't tell me where you live after you got into the car? So where do you want me to take you?"

Morrison was rendered speechless again.

Leah was right. He had not told her where he lived.

He took a deep breath and nodded. "Century Hotel. Please turn around, thank you."

Leah turned the car around and sent him to Century Hotel. When Morrison got out of the car, he gave Leah his contact number and said, "Don't call me unless it's absolutely necessary."

After that, he entered the hotel.

Leah picked up the name card from the seat and chuckled.

'He's rather adorable.'

At the Goldmann mansion...

When Nicholas returned, he cleaned the garden while Maisie and Nolan cleaned the windows. After everything was done, the entire mansion looked new.

your

Nicholas slowly rose to his feet and said, "Nolan, it has been a few years since we visited mother's grave. Why don't you and Maisie accompany me over there today?"

Nolan nodded. "Okay."

At 1:30 p.m., they drove off to the cemetery.

The cemetery was situated at the foot of the hill. It was a very quiet place, and an open field was in front of it.

Nicholas brought them to a tombstone. The picture on the tombstone was Natasha's photo before she was dead. She had a beautiful smile, and her face looked gentle. She indeed did not fail her name as the most beautiful woman in the entertainment industry.

"It has been a few years since I last came to visit you," Nicholas said as he took away the wilted flower in front of the tombstone. "It's another new year, so I brought our son and daughter-in-law to come and see you. Our grandsons and granddaughter have all grown up and formed their own families. Time really flies in the blink of an eye."

Chapter 2629

Nolan put the stuff in his hands down and said, "Dad, let's clean Mom's tombstone first. Look at all these blades of grass."

Nicholas nodded. He wore gloves and started cleaning the weeds and grass around the tombstone. Maisie also helped them.

It took them about half an hour to clean up the weeds around the tombstone. Nicholas put a new bouquet of white roses and a basket of fruits that she liked to eat before she died in front of the tombstone.

Nolan and Maisie decided to leave some private time for Nicholas. Both of them came out of the cemetery and looked into the distance.

"Dad has been thinking about Mom all these years after she passed away. They must've loved each other very much."

Nolan hugged Maisie in his arms. "They had a great relationship for as long as I can remember. As my grandfather said, my father's weakness was my mother, and he lost to a woman just like my great-grandfather."

Maisie chuckled. "Well, he still willingly lost to a woman after he had woken up."

"You're right," replied Nolan.

After he finished speaking, Nolan looked at her and asked, “Maisie, what if I die before you? What would you do?”

Her eyelashes fluttered, and she grinned. “I’ll find another man to keep me company then.”

He frowned. “That’s it?”

She looked at Nolan and raised her eyebrows, “You’ll be about 80 to 90 years old by the time you die. I’ll be an old woman as well. I’ll only be able to play for a few more years before I’ll have to go down to look for you.”

He chuckled and said, “You’re right.”

Holding his hand, Maisie said, “We can’t live forever. Our kids have all grown up, and we even have grandchildren already. There’s no need to worry about so much. We should just let life take its course.”

Nolan held her hand, and they hugged each other.

The next day, at a gym...

“How could you leave me alone yesterday? Wayne, are you still my friend? How could you do that to me?” Morrison scolded Waylon for leaving him alone yesterday while holding a barbell with one arm.

Waylon was making breakfast. He put his phone on the loudspeaker as he said, “What’s the matter? Do you have any problem with that?”

“Hah, no, I don’t have any problem with that. After all, one is bound to be the third wheel when there are three people.”

“Cameron and I will be going to Stoslo in another two days.”

When Morrison heard what Waylon said, he put the barbell down. “What? I only came here not long ago, and you guys are leaving already?”

Waylon chuckled. “You can come with us if you want.”

Morrison stood up and walked up to the window with one of his arms on his waist. “There are still a lot of things I want to do here!”

“Then you can stay here.”

“But I don’t know anyone else other than you. Who else can I ask to bring me around the city? Your great- grandfather? Do you think I’m out of my mind?”

Waylon took a look at his phone and replied, “What about Leah? You know each other, right?”

“Leah?” Morrison took a deep breath and said, “I’d be really out of my mind if I went to look for that woman.”

“Alright. I’m busy, so you’re on your own now.” Waylon hung up the call. He turned his head around and saw that Cameron was leaning against the wall with a glass of milk in her hand. It seemed like she had been listening to their conversation for a long time.

He put his phone down and chuckled. “What’s the matter?”

Cameron took a sip from the milk and walked into the kitchen. “Since when did you start to work part- time as a matchmaker, huh?”

Waylon turned off the fire and put the steak on the plate. “I’m not a matchmaker. I just feel that they could make a good couple, so I decided to give him a little push. But I can do nothing if he doesn’t cherish the opportunity.”

Chapter 2630

Cameron chuckled and asked, “Did Ms. Younge attend the same school as you?”

“Yeah, all of us attended the same school.” Waylon placed the steak nicely on the plate before taking it to the table. “What’s the matter? Are you jealous of her? She was just my classmate.”

“I’m not. I’m just curious.”

Cameron came out of the kitchen and put the glass of milk on the table. She pulled the chair and sat down. "I don't even contact my classmates. It seems to me that you guys have a lot of classmates."

Waylon sat down as well and asked, "Why?"

Cameron said, "Because I attended military school in Southern Eurasia. All of my classmates were men. My father knew someone from the school, so they gave me an independent dorm.

"When I first arrived there, all of them looked down on me and bullied me in secret because they all thought I was a sissy with some background. I wasn't someone who would let others bully me, so I took revenge on them and beat them all up every time after the physical training session.

"Since then, no one dared to badmouth me. They became very scared of me, and I haven't seen them since I graduated."

Waylon frowned after listening to Cameron. However, he could also understand her since she used to have a group of men around her in the past.

He chuckled and said, "If we have a son in the future, it'll be good if he inherits your personality, but I hope our daughter won't become like you."

Cameron grabbed him by his collar and asked, "What do you mean by that? Are you looking down on me?"

He laughed and lowered his head to kiss her. "I'm not. Isn't it good if our son inherits your personality and our daughter inherits mine?"

Cameron thought for a while and felt Waylon was right. If their son looked like her in the future, then no one would be able to bully him. As for their daughter, if she looked like Waylon...

Cameron looked at Waylon and thought, 'Oh my, wouldn't she be very good-looking?'

She was looking forward to how good and beautiful her future daughter would look.

Waylon brought Cameron to Stoslo.

Cameron put on a blindfold and slept after getting on the plane. She rarely took a plane because she would get airsick. She only ordered some snacks and drinks throughout the entire flight.

Seeing how uncomfortable she was, Waylon put her head on his shoulder and said, "It looks like we'll have to take the water route on the way back. And we can go to the East Islands as well."

It took only two hours from Stoslo to the East Islands by cruise.

Cameron took off her blindfold and cried, "If I had known that the plane would take so long, I should have gone back to the East Islands first."

Waylon kissed her forehead and said, "Alright. You should get some rest. If you still feel uncomfortable, I'll ask the flight attendant to get you some air-sickness medicine."

Cameron buried herself in his chest.

This was the first time Waylon saw Cameron in such a weakened state. He stroked her hair and lulled her to sleep.

Meanwhile...

Leah attended her high school classmate's wedding that was held at the beach today.

When she arrived at the venue, a few of her classmates greeted her. "It has been a long time, Leah."

"I heard that you've become an interpreter."

Leah replied with a smile, "Yeah, but I'm on a break right now, and I'm still considering whether I should keep working in this industry or not."

Her classmate replied, "I think you should. Working as an interpreter is good. At the very least, it's a secure job."

At the same time, Zephir and Roxy arrived. They all looked at them when they heard the commotion.

One of the female classmates said, "Is that Zephir's girlfriend?"

"I think so. She looks quite a lot like Daisy, don't you think?"

All of them were surprised, and Leah was the only one who kept silent.

When one of them asked Leah to see if she knew something, she just laughed. "I have no idea either."
