Chapter 859

In the Cadens' courtyard.

A group of people scrutinized an unconscious James.

Tobias furrowed his brows and asked, "Who sent him here?"

The guard said, "They were wearing a mask, so we couldn't see their faces clearly. After leaving James in front of the gate, they simply left without a word."

At that moment, Maxine exclaimed in an alarmed voice. "Grandpa, I've just received news that the Johnstons are claiming that I went to the Jonnstons' headquarters along with men from the God-King Palace and took James away."

Tobias hissed in irritation, "Looks like someone is trying to pin this incident on the Cadens."

Maxine asked, "What should we do then? Should we save James?"

A conflicted look formed on Tobias' face. Then he responded flatly. "Although he's no longer a Caden since his grandfather betrayed the family, the fact remains that Caden blood still runs through his veins. In any case, we should take him in for now."

A few guards walked over to James and carried him into a room. Tobias inspected his injuries carefully.

Maxine leaned in to get a better look. "How is he, grandpa?"
