

I'm A Quadrillionaire Chapter 1624

Chapter 1624

Marlee also quietly breathed a sigh of relief next to him when she heard that.

Although she was very confident in her goods, she was also afraid. "What if the quality does not meet the Treasure Trove's requirements?"

Now that she heard what the inspector said, she could finally feel relieved.

"Okay You're not needed here anymore. You can leave now."

The inspector left.

"Miss Jung, please, let's talk!" Elmer bent down and made a gesture of invitation.

"Mr. Whitlock, you should go ahead," Marlee said, feeling flattered.

Mr. Whitlock had a high status in Treasure Trove, so she did not dare go ahead of him.

"Miss Jung, you don't have to be so courteous. Please!" Elmer insisted.

Marlee figured the man would not give up if she did not go, so she walked ahead with some doubts

At this moment, she was very puzzled.

In the room just now, Mr. Whitlock's attitude towards her was not like this.

His identity was evident, while Marlee was the most insignificant member of Treasure Trove's many guests

For Marlee, the transaction volume of 6 billion Star Dollars might affect the continuation of her family.

On the contrary, for a big trading company like Treasure Trove, it was not impressive at all.

Mr Whitlock's attitude in the room was expected.

However, he changed so suddenly after just a short while.

Marlee struggled to accept this.

“Is it because of David?”

Marlee thought about it and thought it was very possible!

David stayed in the room after she left.

David should have exposed his identity and she came with David.

That was why Mr Whitlock suddenly changed his attitude.

It seemed she was right.

David must belong to some powerful force.

The two returned to the room just now.

Both Alba and David are gone.

“Miss Jung, due to unforeseen circumstances, the price of the raw nuclear magnetic ores may change a little bit,” Elmer said first

“Mr Whitlock, we’ve agreed on the price of the raw nuclear magnetic ores just now and your inspector has also inspected them. He said that there is no problem, so why is there a change now? Is such a big trading company like Treasure Trove so dishonest?” Marlee asked immediately.

In reality, the price of the raw nuclear magnetic ores had far exceeded the ideal price in Marlee’s heart. She could accept a small decrease.

However, she figured that if she did not give a huge reaction, she was worried the other party might lower it by too much.

“Miss Jung, please calm down. The change I’m talking about is not to lower the purchase price, but rather, to increase it,” Elmer said with a smile.

‘Huh?’

Marlee was stunned for a moment.

Raise the price even further?

Really?”

This price was already far beyond her imagination, yet the other party actually said that it would go up even more.

Did he feel sorry for her because she crossed 180000 cosmic kilometers and experienced possible death to transport the goods here?

However, in an instant, Marlee dismissed the idea.

No matter how rich a trading company was, it would never give out money for no reason.

There must be some reason behind this.

'Could it be that Treasure Trove is currying favors with me in order to please David?

Marlee only thought of this possibility.

Otherwise, the other party had no reason to do this.

They were clearly giving her money.

It seemed that she had still underestimated David.

Even a big trading company like Treasure Trove wanted to please him, which showed his strong background.

At this moment, Marlee also wanted to know what identity David was hiding.

The three million kilograms of raw nuclear magnetic ores Marlee brought were originally worth 6 billion Star Dollars.

However, in the end, it increased by 4 billion and was sold at 10 billion Star Dollars.

She was unwilling to accept this favor at first.

Thus, she quietly contacted David.

Eventually, David asked Marlee to agree.

Since this was a good thing, she should just take it.

If it were not for the system's regulations and the fact that David would not get any lavish points if he donated money, David would have already found an excuse to send her a large sum of money.

The deal for raw nuclear magnetic ore was done and Marlee also received a remittance of 10 billion Star Dollars from Treasure Trove.

She used the money to pay everyone on the merchant ship five times the negotiated price.

Everyone was overjoyed.

Although this trip was thrilling and they had almost lost their lives, the benefits they received were also huge.

The reward they got just this time was as much as a hundred years' worth of their savings.

With this money, they could also purchase resources, continue to improve their strength, and prepare to break through Eternal Realm in the future.

These people had clear goals in mind, with only one of them being important.

That was to strive to break through to Eternal Realm to no longer be bound by life, old age, sickness, and death.

Even if the lifespan of Eternals was not endless and it might be restricted by the Eternal Catastrophe, this would only occur after an era, which was 129600 years later.

They could do many things in such a long time.

After paying these people, Marlee remitted all the remaining money to the Jung family.

She only kept a little for her living expenses.

She believed that after the Jung family got this huge sum of money, they could continue to live well no matter how much the surrounding forces suppressed them.

Logically speaking, Marlee should go home and return to the Jung family in Green Apollo after doing all this.

However, she did not want to go back now.

Since the Jung family did not like her and her daughter, why should they go back and suffer?

Back then, Marlee was pregnant and had no choice but to return to the Jung family.

After all, it was inconvenient for a pregnant woman to wander outside.

Although she had been treated unfairly by the Jung family during these years, Marlee did not hold any grudges in her heart. Instead, with a grateful heart, she repaid kindness with kindness.

As a peak Infinity Ranker, she had actually done a lot for the Jung family.

This time, she even risked her life to deliver the raw nuclear magnetic ores to the Central Sacred Continent for her family.

This was the last chance for the Jung family.

Now that she was here, Marlee really did not want her daughter Peggy to live in that environment and get bullied by the kids around her

If this continued, it would affect her future character.

So Marlee decided to wait until Peggy grew up before returning to the Jung family

However, it was not easy to live in the Central Sacred Continent.

A peak Infinity Ranker like her was one of the top figures in her hometown Green Apollo

On the contrary, she was nothing in the Central Sacred Continent.

Anyone could crush her.

If Marlee wanted to live here, she only had one option and it was to follow David closely.

Only in this way could she easily survive in the Central Sacred Continent

How she would go about this also depended on what David said.

Next, both David and Marlee were treated like VIPs in Treasure Trove.

They would eat the best food and stay in the best rooms.

Early the next morning, David got up and opened the door to see two young beauties standing there.

One held a basin of water while another held towels and toiletries

The moment David opened the door, one of the beauties said respectfully, "Master David, you're awake. We are here to help you to wash up."

David was not surprised by this.

Many rich and powerful people would enjoy these kinds of services.

"You can put them on the table, I'll do it myself," David said.

He was still not used to being waited upon.

"Master David, let us help you! If you refuse, we will be punished," the two beauties said in a panic.

Their job was to serve the VIPs of Treasure Trove.

If the guests were not satisfied, they would be punished by Treasure Trove.

"That's fine. Come in first." David did not want to make things difficult for the two beauties either

It was not easy for anyone struggling at the bottom.

When he was on Earth, he was a part-time food delivery man.

Hence, he had thoroughly experienced the hardships of being at the bottom.

"Thank you for understanding, Master David."

The two beauties walked into the room and began to help David to wash up

Although he did not like it, David still endured the discomfort and let the two beauties move him around.

After everything was done, one of them pointed to a button on the wall of the room and said, "Master David, if you need anything, you can call us at any time. When you press that button, we will rush over as soon as possible. We will be the ones serving you throughout your stay here."

"Thank you," David said politely

"Master David, you don't need to be so polite with us. This is our job. If there's nothing else, then we will leave first."

"I'm fine now! You guys should get back to work."

After the two beauties left, David wanted to go out to see if he could spend some money first.

After all, this was a large trade zone of the Central Sacred Continent.

There were countless merchants buying and selling goods here.

He had to wait a few days before leaving anyway.

Therefore, he decided to spend as much as he could and accumulate lavish points.

He still had not spent a penny of his one quadrillion Star Dollars!

David was anxious as he looked at the money in the system.

Everyone else was anxious because they had no money, but he was anxious because of the money

The moment he walked out of the room, a person came to meet him. It was none other than Marlee

"Marlee, where are you going?" David greeted Marlee first.

Marlee walked up to David and said, "David, I'm here to see you and I want to talk to you about something."

"Do you need something from me?"

"Yes."

"Then... Shall we talk here, or shall we go back to my room?"

"Let's go to your room!"

“Okay, Marlee, come with me!”

David returned to his room with Marlee.

Marlee was the last one to enter the room. After that, she closed the door

David poured her a cup of tea.

The two beauties brewed the tea just now.

The two sat at the table. David did not speak nor urge Marlee.

Marlee took a sip of tea, wondering how she should say what was on her mind.

The reason why she came to find David was to ask him what his plan for the future was and if he needed anything from her

Marlee thought about this for a very long time last night.

She knew if she wanted to live in the Central Sacred Continent and raise her daughter Peggy well, she could only count on David.

Otherwise, if she only relied on her own strength, she would face problems staying here, not to mention she also had her daughter by her side.

If David did not need her, then Marlee could only return to the Jung family with her daughter Peggy. Although her daughter's character might be affected in that environment, it was at least safe.
