

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 1661 –

Chapter 1661

Alba chatted with David for a long time before she remembered why she came to visit David today.

She did not come all the way to see if David was fine or not.

Instead, she came to tell David in advance that they would be leaving for the headquarters of Treasure Trove tomorrow to participate in a large auction, so he needed to prepare soon.

“David, we’re leaving for the super-large trade zone due west of the Central Sacred Continent, which is also the headquarters of Treasure Trove tomorrow. You should prepare now,” Alba said.

“We’re leaving? Is the auction going to start soon?” David asked excitedly.

Things were a little urgent now.

He still needed 12 thousand lavish points to get to partial Saint.

Once he got there, he would not be scared of anyone as long as he did not meet a Saint like Nek.

He needed to spend at least 1.2 trillion at this auction to accomplish his goal. “It’s a relatively long journey. The auction will start as soon as we get there.”

“I have nothing to prepare, so you can just call me tomorrow, Miss Fellowes.”

“Okay! Then I won’t bother you anymore, goodbye!”

“Thank you, Miss Fellowes!”

After Alba left, David also walked out of the room.

He went to where Marlee lived and told her that he was going away for a while and would be back soon.

He asked Marlee to gain some knowledge about trading companies from Elmer.

Perhaps realizing that David had important matters to attend to, the little girl Peggy did not bother him this time.

Back in the room, David looked at the sealed wine jar on the table.

This jar of Exquisite Wine of Hundred Flowers and Fruits was reserved for Celia and the others. It could improve their physique and enhance their talents.

However, David did not have the time to go to the Iridescent Sect now.

He could only wait to see them after participating in the auction.

David had not decided whether to go to the Iridescent Sect to hand over the Exquisite Wine of Hundred Flowers and Fruits to Celia and the others first or only do so after he had sufficient strength.

After all, the reputable elders of the Iridescent Sect were an unknown factor.

If they sensed something within him, he might not be able to leave so easily.

In the past, the Iridescent Sect was Celeste's sect, and Celeste's status in the sect was nothing scoff at.

Therefore, David had been quite at ease over there.

cavern,

However, things were different now. Celeste has been imprisoned, and she was in the ice which would cause most disciples to turn pale at the mere mention of its name.

The reputable elders of the Iridescent Sect, including Celeste's teacher, had apparently abandoned her.

David did not want to visit the Iridescent Sect again before he had enough strength.

If he were to go back, he would do so only with the strength to crush the several reputable elders of the Iridescent Sect.

Not only to rescue Celeste, but also to take away Celia and others.

Compared to Celeste's suffering in the ice cavern, Celia and the others were much safer.

After all, they were the disciples of Nova, the head of the Iridescent Sect.

As long as the reputable elders did not show up, they would not be in danger.

The most important thing now was to improve his strength as soon as possible and rescue Celeste from the ice cavern.

Every day of delay meant another day of pain.

“Celeste, hold on a little longer. I will come to rescue you soon, just wait for me!” David thought silently in his heart.

A person’s strength was the most important thing whether it was on Earth, the Milky Way, or Star Kingdom. David had a deep understanding of this.

The next day, David, Alba, several of Alba’s maids, and a group of guards left on a merchant ship unique to Treasure Trove.

No space pirate would dare to rob a merchant ship marked by one of the top five trading companies even if it was outside the Central Sacred Continent unless they no longer wanted to continue staying in the Central Sacred Continent.

They would not dare to offend any of the top five trading companies.

Meanwhile, when it came to the small or medium trading companies, the space pirates would not go overboard after demanding a certain fee from them.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

I’m A Quadrillionaire chapter 1662 –

Chapter 1662

If someone like Marlee, who was from a small force from a remote area, encountered space pirates, she would be lucky to survive alive, let alone keep her cargo.

Even so, countless merchant ships set off from various remote corners of the Star Kingdom to the Central Sacred Continent every day.

It was not that they did not know the dangers along the way, but after arriving at the Central Sacred Continent, the profits they would obtain were too huge.

Generally, it would be more than ten times or even dozens of times the value of the goods.

It was enough for them to raise the strength of their family to a higher level.

As the saying went, 'There is no reward without risk.'

Therefore, even if they knew that it would not be an easy journey, and one slip-up might cost them their lives, countless people would still choose to go.

Star Kingdom was too big.

There were countless small galaxies like Green Apollo where the Jung family was located.

Some people liked stability while some people liked to take risks and gamble.

Treasure Trove's merchant ship traveled the entire distance without encountering any accidents.

In the blink of an eye, more than a week had passed.

They were halfway through their journey.

David had been staying in his room this entire time. He was still adapting to the physical changes brought about by his soaring strength.

Occasionally, Alba would visit him and chat with him.

Their topic always revolved around David and the master behind him.

David knew that Alba was still inquiring about his situation.

He would also make up some things along the way, either consciously or unconsciously.

In any case, David had to be firm and claim that a Sacred Saint was standing behind him.

He had to convince Alba to proceed with the next plan.

In reality, Alba already trusted David 90%.

Alba had not seen his masters with her own eyes, which resulted in this remaining 10%.

She would not believe David's words 100% unless she met David's master, the legendary Sacred Saint and the strongest fighter in Star Kingdom.

Only then would Alba fully believe it.

Even so, her 90% trust was enough for her to gamble on David.

Alba had no other choice if she wanted to change her destiny.

David was her last hope.

Once that man was out, she would have to marry him unconditionally unless she found a new Sacred Saint as a backer for the Fellowes family.

The most important thing was that even if Alba was married, the other party would still not spare her family.

He would slowly erode the Fellowes family's influence and finally achieve complete control, forcing the Fellowes family to forever provide them with a steady stream of cultivation resources.

The Fellowes family controlled one of the top five trading companies on the Central Sacred Continent, which was a huge slice of pie.

Over the years, the Fellowes family had been looking for ways to save themselves as the other party's appetite grew.

However, this opponent was a force with a Sacred Saint.

Who would dare to stand up to them?

There were only a few Sacred Saints in Star Kingdom, and everyone had their own affiliated forcés.

Therefore, no one would nonchalantly break this balance.

However, David's existence gave Alba hope.

A Sacred Saint hidden in the shadows.

As long as she seized this opportunity, the Fellowes family might be able to get out of their current predicament.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-