

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 935

The moment Thomas spoke, James knew he was his grandfather.

The same grandfather who adored him since he was a child.

He knelt on the ground, staring at the bottomless pit in front of him, and sobbed uncontrollably.

Scenes from his childhood flooded back to him.

He remembered sitting on his grandfather's lap while his grandfather taught him ancient language and the fundamentals of Solean Medicine.

In the fire at the Cadens' ten years ago, he was helpless. He heard the Cadens howling and roaring in agony, but he could not do anything.

In the end, it was Thea who rushed in and saved him.

Ten years later, he was still helpless and witnessed his grandfather's fall into the bottomless pit with his own eyes.

"Damn it."

James stood up, veins bulging on his face, and stared unwaveringly at the black-robe figure on the rock across from him.

Maxine was concerned that James would lose control and grabbed him just in time.

"James, don't be reckless. Thea is still dangling there," she advised.

"James, I'll repeat myself. Tell me the secret of the Moonlit Flowers on Cliffside's Edge or Thea will fall from here. Her face will no longer be recognizable," the black-robed figure spoke again.

"How brazen."

a voice filled

around

An old man appeared.

"Grandpa!"

Maxine was beaming.

here,"

It was Tobias.

she informed him of the concerned that something bad

saw Tobias' arrival and casually flicked burst of energy formed on the tip of their finger, immediately striking and snapping the rope from which

Then, they fled quickly.

a

happening in front of him, James mouth was wide open, but on the other hand, flew over in quickly and caught Thea as she

the cliff's edge, stepped on it, and flew back then stood firm on composure and

toss, Tobias handed

in his arms and

and don't