

Seeing that when Charlie threatened to slap him, he even stretched out his hand to gesture around his face, Hong Changqing really wanted to tear him into pieces, because he had never suffered such humiliation in his life.

However, when he thought that he still had important matters in Aurous Hill, and that he would go to the police station when he went out, even if there was a huge hatred in his heart, he could only suppress it desperately at this moment.

Seeing that his face was livid and his whole body was like a pressure cooker about to explode, Charlie sneered and sarcastically said, "What's the matter? Don't you dare to give me the pulse? I see you old bastard, yesterday you cheated and won the miracle doctor! Otherwise, Why don't you dare to give me the pulse?"

Charlie originally suspected that this Hong Changqing had set up a trick for Dr. Simmons, but seeing that he turned out to be an eight-star warrior today, he confirmed his guess even more.

An eight-star martial artist must spend most of his time practicing martial arts every day. Even if such a person has the talent to become a top Chinese doctor, he absolutely does not have the time and opportunity to become a top Chinese doctor.

In this world, there are many top scientists who can win the Nobel Prize, and there are also art masters who can study a certain musical instrument or a certain painting to perfection, and there are also many athletes who can practice like sports to become world champions.

However, who has heard of a Nobel Prize winner who can become the world's top pianist and Olympic champion at the same time?

Human energy is always limited. Since Hong Changqing is an eight-star martial artist, it is doomed that he does not have much time and energy to become a leader in other fields.

At this moment, seeing Charlie being aggressive all the time, Hong Changqing felt a little nervous in his heart.

Although he is a Daoist celestial master, he can be considered a great figure, but for so many years, his main energy has been devoted to practicing martial arts, and his secondary energy has been used to study the refining of some low-level Daoist elixir, and he has not gone deep into it at all. Have studied Chinese medicine.

However, it's not that he doesn't know anything about medical skills. After all, the Taoist school is good at medical skills, so he is still better than most Chinese doctors with limited levels, but compared with Dr. Simmons, a master of Chinese medicine, there is still a big gap.

When he fell in love with Dr. Simmons's Jishi Hall, and at the same time wanted to occupy the magpie's nest and step on Dr. Simmons to quickly gain a foothold in Aurous Hill, he thought of digging a hole for Dr. Simmons.

It is precisely because his own medical skills are not as good as Dr. Simmons's, so he deliberately found a few nurses, and then took the opportunity to compete with Dr. Simmons in medical skills. All the female patients who came to see the doctor yesterday were arranged by him. As long as Dr. Simmons agrees in the competition with him, no matter who Dr. Simmons chooses to be the benchmark of the competition, he is doomed to lose.

But at that time, I had been leading Dr. Simmons by the nose, and using the witnesses on the scene to put pressure on Dr. Simmons, Dr. Simmons didn't think about it at all.

But charlie is not Dr. Simmons.

Dr. Simmons may feel that everything is fine because he chose the benchmark for the competition from a few patients.

But charlie felt that this sounded a little tricky.
