

The surrounding personnel had already been cleared in advance, so that the two sides started the arms deal in broad daylight.

Neither of the two sides spoke. The person in charge of the escort opened the containers of the three cars and asked the three Americans to go up and check them one by one.

After confirming that they were correct, the three jumped out of the container, and one of them waved at the freighter, and the freighter immediately passed a small loader and put down an iron box weighing 600 kilograms.

The person in charge of escorting the car immediately stepped forward, opened the iron box, and found that it was full of golden gold bars, so he winked at the people around him, and several people immediately came over with equipment, took out the gold bars one by one, examined them, weighed them, and then Put it in several packages that you carry.

The iron box contained 500 kilograms of gold. All the gold bars were re-melted before departure and made of flat molds. There was not even a steel seal on the body, so naturally no clues could be found.

After confirming that the 500 kilograms of gold did not have any shortfall, the person in charge came to the three Americans with a smile, and said with a smile, "There is no problem with the 500 kilograms. One point, I will not refund the price difference."

An American said, "No refund, do business with us, you don't need to refund the price difference if the gold price rises, and we will make up the price difference for you if the gold price falls."

The man laughed. "To be honest, I like doing business with your Blackwater company. It's simple, efficient, and fun." One of the Americans said coldly, "Remember, if you tell anyone the name of the Blackwater company, we will I will never let you go."

"No problem!" The man laughed, and then said with a smile, "I still have a lot of NATO weapons from Western Europe, if you are interested, I can quote you a price."

The American frowned and asked, "When did you start stocking up on NATO weapons?"

"Haha!" The man smiled and said, "Go to Ukraine when you have time, the weapons from NATO are almost out of stock, and the weapons donated by NATO member states , More than half of it went to the black market, just talk about what you want, there is nothing I can't get!"

The leading American nodded, and said lightly, "I will contact you again if necessary, and we have to prepare to go."

The man hurriedly said, "Okay, I will contact you again if necessary, happy cooperation!"

Soon, the gantry crane took the three The container was loaded onto the ship.

After the three confirmed that they were correct, they also waited for the freighter, and then the freighter set sail overnight and headed for the Suez Canal.

The route of this freighter was from Turkey to South Africa via the Suez Canal, but no one knew that three of the thousands of containers it carried were going to disembark halfway.