

Chapter 1032 A Friend Came To Visit Him

Frank just arrived home and was exhausted. He certainly didn't expect Janet to call him at this time.

"I know about it," Frank replied, answering Janet's question. "Don't worry; that's a good thing."

"Brandon's mood has been fluctuating a lot today. I'm afraid that he might have other problems, so I called you for help," Janet whispered as she massaged her forehead. Although her tone was soft and gentle, it was obvious that she was concerned for Brandon's health.

Frank went silent for a moment before he said, "I can't say anything for sure, but the process of regaining memories is always accompanied by regaining the emotions that had been forgotten. Even though the memories can be recovered in a matter of minutes, it'd be difficult for a patient to emotionally accept the changes. You can ask Brandon to meet his former friends so he can slowly get used to it."

"His former friends?" Janet murmured to herself.

Frank chuckled. "Have you forgotten the playboy who's going to be a father soon? I think he's been having a hard time with the Harding family recently. Why don't you invite him over to see Brandon? That may also cheer him up a little bit."

After Janet talked to Frank, she sent a message to Laney immediately.

However, the Harding Group had been quite busy recently, so she and Garrett weren't free that day. They could only visit Brandon in the hospital the day after that.

As soon as Brandon started eating the breakfast that Janet brought the next morning, he saw her take a call and then run out in a hurry.

"Where are you going? Are you coming back later?" Brandon asked Janet while he was eating.

He didn't see her for hours when she took the trash out yesterday.

That made him suspicious of her actions.

Janet was a little taken aback by what he said, but she still turned to look at him and replied, "I'm going to pick up some friends. I'll come back soon."

When she came back, Garrett and Laney were following behind her.

Garrett didn't bring any gifts with him. He just carefully assisted Laney as he looked at her and said, "Hold on for a moment. I'll bring you a chair right away."

He soon dragged the chair to where Laney was, put a cushion on it, and helped her sit down.

"My belly is so big now. It's so hard for me to move about," Laney told Janet. ²

Janet touched Laney's round belly. Her tone was laced with admiration as she asked, "When is the baby due?"

"At the end of this month." Laney sighed. "I can finally give birth. This little one has been torturing me for months. I haven't had a good night sleep for the past few months."

Feeling the baby move, Janet smiled. "Tasha is also due at the end of this month. Hey! It's kicking! It seems like your baby is as active as you are." ³

Suddenly, a cold voice interrupted them, saying, "Could you two at least show some respect? I'm the patient here."

It was Brandon. A look of displeasure flashed across his eyes as he stared at them.

"Why don't we go to the coffee shop downstairs? These boys can take care of themselves," Janet said as she winked at Laney.

Laney instantly understood what Janet was implying, so she nodded and smiled. "Sure thing! That's exactly what I need. I saw the board on the way up and I want to try that new cakes in the coffee shop downstairs."

Brandon coughed. He didn't want Janet to leave. However, just when he was about to say something, Garrett stood in front of him, giving him a faint smile as he said, "I'll take care of you."

"You know how to take care of people?" Brandon glared at him.

"I'm going to be a father, you know? I'm sure I'm much more skilled at taking care of people than you," Garrett explained. "By the way, why are you hospitalized again?"

"It's a long story." Brandon rested his head on his arm.

"You'd better tell me, then," Garrett said as he adjusted his glasses. "Next time we meet, my baby will be born already."

"Why are you showing off?" Brandon sneered. "I heard you've been having a hard time recently. If you can't stay in the Harding Group, you can go back to the Larson Group at any time. Knowing your abilities, you can practically start from scratch and become the general manager in less than three years."

Garrett went silent for a moment before he took a deep breath and heaved a sigh. "You know what?"

"I won't argue with you since you're a patient now."

He then took out a piece of paper from the lining of his suit and said, "Take this."
