

Impulsive Vow to an Enigmatic Husband (Cornelia Stewart) Chapter 751

Chapter 751

Cornelia said seriously. "You're as important to me as they are, no one's better than anyone else. Let's stop asking these kinds of questions, okay? Look at me, I'm smart, I never ask you who's more important to you, me or your grandma or Bri."

She didn't really want an answer, but Marcus gave her one anyway, "I don't know who's more important, but I do know I can't live without you."

Before knowing that Marcus was Jeremy and before realizing that Marcus was her husband, Cornelia had never heard Marcus speak such sweet words.

Sometimes, this indirect kind of sweet talk hit her harder than a straight up "I love you."

Cornelia nestled into his chest, listening to his strong, steady heartbeat, and whispered, "I get it."

She wanted to drop the subject, fearing if they keep talking about it, he might say something she can't handle.

But Marcus wasn't done. "You get it? You sure you don't have anything else to say?"

Cornelia yawned, "I'm tired, gonna grab some z's. We can chat when I wake up."

She had a lot to drink with Zack, and once she hit the bed, she was out like a light.

Marcus, however, couldn't sleep a wink. He just watched her; simply staring at her filled his empty heart with warmth.

Perhaps due to not getting enough sleep last night or the effects of drinking at noon, Cornelia's nap turned into a four hour sleep, and she didn't wake up until 6 pm.

When she woke up, Marcus was nowhere to be seen, she thought he had gone home, so she got up and walked out of the bedroom, hair all tousled.

She didn't expect to see him on the phone in the living room, his voice so low she couldn't hear a thing, but she could tell he wasn't happy.

She wanted to eavesdrop, but right then her phone rang. She hurried back to her room to pick up.

It was Ben, who never called her on his day off. Something must've happened

As soon as she picked up, Ben sounded anxious, "Cornelia, something has happened, have you heard?"

Cornelia instinctively glanced at Marcus through the door, "What happened?"

"You haven't watched the news?" Ben asked.

"I just woke up from a nap," Cornelia said.

"I heard someone leaked some private photos of you and an older man, claimed you tried to seduce your neighbor during the summer of your sophomore year, and got caught by his wife. There are not only photos, but also news coverage in Rosenberg. The whole internet is blowing up over this. Go check online," Ben said.

Cornelia immediately opened the news website she frequently browsed, but everything seemed normal, no sign of anything Ben mentioned, "Ben, where did you see this?"

"It's everywhere. They're even pushing the news notifications on the phone. The title is very catchy, and it even mentioned the Hartley Group, calling it the Hartley Group President's Assistant Scandal. In several of the company colleagues' groups I'm in, this news has also been forwarded like crazy."

Cornelia was in a few company groups as well, but they were eerily quiet, with no one chatting, she wasn't sure if it was because she was in them.

"Maybe they're not sharing the links in the groups I'm in because I'm there. You can forward them to me," Cornelia suggested.

"The photos are not pretty, you might not want to see them," Ben said.

Chapter 752

Cornelia said, "How can I know who's framing me if I don't see them?"

Ben retorted, "Can you confirm it just by looking at them?"

Comelia said, "Perhaps."

"We've been together for a year, and I know you're not that kind of person. But as for President Hartley, I can't be sure. You need to figure out a solution ASAP. If he gets wind of this, he might not give you a chance to explain, and he could just fire you on the spot. How will you handle that?" As Ben was speaking and searching for information, he suddenly went silent in the middle of his sentence.

A moment passed before Cornelia heard him again, "It's gone! It's all gone!"

Cornelia asked, "What's gone?"

Ben replied, "When I called you, the slanderous messages about you were still spreading. Just in the short time we've been on the phone, there's not a single piece about you on the internet. All the links my coworkers sent, they've all changed. It wasn't a broken link; it was a direct change of content."

At this, Cornelia peered through a crack in the door to see Marcus on the phone. She had a pretty good hunch that the sudden disappearance of the rumors about her had something to do with him.

Wasn't he supposed to be napping with her? When did he find out about the rumors spreading about her?

Meanwhile, Ben had the same thought.

To make all the news on the entire internet disappear in an instant, besides Marcus, Ben really couldn't think of anyone else who could do it.

"Cornelia, did President Hartley have your bad press deleted for you?"

If it was indeed Marcus who had the news removed, it was clear that Cornelia held a special place in his heart. If they were married, that would be one thing, but now they were both having affairs, and Ben didn't know what to say, "Cornelia, since everything's fine now, I won't keep you from your rest."

But before he could hang up, he heard Marcus' anxious voice through the receiver, "You look a bit pale, when did you wake up?"

Ben heard it all. It was clear they had been on the same bed. He didn't want to eavesdrop, but curiosity got the better of him, so he didn't hang up, waiting to hear what else Marcus would say.

He waited quietly, and just as he was about to hang up, Cornelia's tear-choked voice came through, "Were you just dealing with my problem?"

Then came Marcus' steady and firm voice, "Yes. It's all taken care of, don't worry. As long as I'm here, no one can mess with you."

Cornelia asked, "Why are you so good to me?"

Marcus replied, "You're my lawful wife, the spouse on my marriage certificate. If I'm not good to you, who should I be good to?"

Ben listened quietly.

It was like a thunderbolt. Had he misunderstood this whole time?!

He was with them every day and he had no idea Cornelia was the woman Marcus had married two years ago!

Chapter 753

No wonder when he used to think Cornelia had a thing for him, President Hartley would act all weird and stuff, even made him question his own looks.

No wonder nothing he ever said to the president had any effect, while he would listen to whatever Cornelia said.

No wonder the president would stay the whole night in Cornelia's room when she got wasted.

All the stuff that didn't make sense before, it all added up now.

Marcus was still the same Marcus that he knew, someone who was virtuous and had never engaged in promiscuous relationships outside

The two people on the other end of the line were still talking, but Ben didn't dare eavesdrop anymore. He quickly hung up, then slapped himself.

In the last few days, he had cursed them both countless times in his mind, thinking they were such jerks. Thankfully, he only cursed in his head, not out loud. Otherwise...

He quickly ran through the last year in his mind. He hadn't done anything over the line to Cornelia. Not only had he not bullied Cornelia in the past year, but he had also always protected her.

He felt so relieved!

Meanwhile.

Cornelia looked at Marcus with worry written all over his face. She had so much she wanted to say, but in the end, she only asked him one question, "Did you see those photos?"

Marcus nodded, "Yeah."

He was typically quick to jealousy, so why was he so calm now, as if he didn't care at all about those pictures, "Those are pictures of me in bed with other men. As my husband, why are you so calm after seeing those?"

Marcus, "Am I calm?"

He wasn't calm, not at all! He wished he could immediately rip those who tried to violate her and spread rumors to hurt her into pieces. But in front of her, he had to be calm. He wanted her to know this wasn't a big deal, and that he could handle it.

Cornelia suddenly let out a laugh, "You saw it. Haven't you ever doubted, maybe the truth is that I seduced someone else's husband and got caught by their wife?"

Marcus, "Are you that kind of person?"

Cornelia, "I'm asking you."

Marcus, "I've been with you for a year. Do you think I don't know what kind of person you are?"

Cornelia, "Then what kind of person am I in your eyes?"

Marcus, "You're ambitious, optimistic, and you shine wherever you go. You're always the center of attention."

Cornelia admitted she was ambitious and optimistic, but she didn't realize she was the center of attention wherever she went. Especially in the last year, after working with Marcus, she felt overshadowed by him everywhere she went. Hardly anyone even noticed her. She didn't expect him to think so highly of her.

Cornelia said again, "You saw them, and so did many others. You can delete all the pictures and rumors about me online, but you can't erase people's memories. If one day you publicly acknowledge me as your wife, I'm sure many people will bring this up again. Then, won't you feel embarrassed?"

"Cornelia!" Marcus called her name deeply, "First of all, you need to understand that you're the victim in this situation. You didn't do anything wrong."

Chapter 754

“We shouldn’t feel ashamed just because you’re the victim. The idea of blaming the victim is the most absurd thing I’ve ever heard. The ones who should be shamed, blamed, and punished by law are those abusers.”

Comelia looked at him, listening to his deep voice. It felt like she was back to a year ago when she was sexually harassed at work. He told her the same thing then.

She wasn’t wrong, but the one who harassed her was.

This society was often incredibly unfair to women. For instance, when a girl was secretly photographed and the pictures were uploaded online, the ones who should be blamed were those taking and spreading the photos. But instead, people online blamed the girl for dressing too provocatively, saying that if she wore pants instead of a skirt, no one would take her picture.

Comelia took a deep breath and buried her head in his chest, “Why didn’t you hug me? Do you know how scared I was just now?”

He probably had no idea how scared she was. She was afraid he would be like Roman, judging her as a loose woman and decide to divorce her.

Marcus caught her as she leaned into him, holding her tight, “I’m sorry!”

Comelia wiggled in his arms, “Stop saying sorry!”

“Hey, what are you two up to? Surely you haven’t been hugging all afternoon?” Zack, just waking up and still a bit groggy, was heading to the kitchen to get some water. As he passed Cornelia’s room, he saw them hugging through the slightly ajar door, and he felt a pang of jealousy, “You could at least shut the door if you’re gonna cuddle, why’d you let me see?”

Cornelia lifted her head from Marcus’ chest, “You’re awake? Your head still hurts? Are you hungry? What do you want for dinner?”

Noticing the redness around Comelia’s eyes, Zack immediately became worried, “Did you cry? Did Marcus bully you?”

Cornelia replied, “I’ve told you so many times, he’s been really good to me, and wouldn’t bully me, why don’t you believe me?”

Zack didn't answer.

It wasn't that he didn't believe. He did. But seeing them together always gave him a complicated feeling. Like a father watching his son-in-law, growing more and more dissatisfied.

Just then, Marcus' private phone suddenly rang. He pulled out his phone and saw it was Granny Luisa calling, then smiled at Cornelia, "It's Granny, she's probably rushing us to come home."

Cornelia said, "Tell Granny we're going to have dinner with Zack before we go back."

Today was Zack's birthday, and Cornelia would never let Zack eat dinner alone, or else he would complain about it for the rest of his life. However, when Marcus answered the phone, his expression immediately changed. He paused, then said to Cornelia, "Your grandmother, suddenly falls ill, she's in the hospital, we need to go now."

Two hours earlier.

The Hartley family's old mansion welcomed two long-lost guests. The guests were Roman and his mother, Sabrina.

Granny Luisa had always been very kind, especially to friends she hadn't seen in a long time. When she heard that they were coming. Granny Luisa had food and drinks prepared, and she personally went to the gate to welcome them.

Upon seeing Granny Luisa, Sabrina immediately gave her a big hug, "Madam, I've missed you so much!"

Granny Luisa replied with a smile, "I've missed you too. Is this Roman? It's been so many years, the boy's all grown up now. What does he do for a living?"

Roman Padilla replied politely, “Granny Luisa, I’ve just come back from overseas studies and now work at our up-and-coming tech company, Moongazer Tech, in Riverton. We recently partnered with the Hartley Group, and I even met President Hartley yesterday.”

Indeed, a company capable of collaborating with the Hartley Group must be exceptional. This young person could work at such an outstanding company without relying on their family, which brought great joy and comfort to Granny Luisa. “The child has grown up and made something of himself,” she said.

Sabrina chimed in, “He’s doing alright, but he’s got a long way to go compared to Marc.”

Hearing her grandson being praised, Granny Luisa didn’t hold back, “My Marc is exceptional. Very few people can hold a candle to him.” “Sure, sure...” Sabrina supported Granny Luisa, and they slowly made their way to the main building. “Granny Luisa, are you planning to settle down in Riverton this time, or just stay a few days before heading back to Southern Peak?”

Granny Luisa replied, “Southern Peak is cooler in the summer than Riverton, so I planned to stay there for a more comfortable living, but I have some important matters to attend to recently, so I need to stay in Riverton for a while and won’t go back to Southern Peak for now.”

Sabrina said, “It’s hard for me to visit you in Southern Peak. Now that you’re staying in Riverton, I can come to chat with you more often when I have time. Wonderful!”

“But I might not have time for chit-chats in the near future, I have some important matters to attend to.” Granny Luisa happily said, “Marc has been married for two years now, they’ve been very busy and haven’t had time to consider about having kids. I want them to live here so we can keep an eye on them, hoping to see their child sooner.”

Sabrina added, “Yeah, Marc has been married for so long, and they should have a child by now. They didn’t hold a wedding reception, so we haven’t met his wife. We don’t even know what she looks like. I guess if we bumped into her on the street, we probably wouldn’t even recognize her.”

Roman, walking ahead, carefully opened the door for the two elders and took over the conversation, "President Hartley is quite handsome, I bet his wife must be a stunner too."

"Nelly is not only stunning but also smart, considerate, and very competent." Granny Luisa was very happy when talking about Cornelia, she wanted to show off how exceptional Cornelia was to others.

She slowly took out her phone, found a photo of Cornelia she took last night, "Here, take a look, this is Nelly, gorgeous isn't she?"

In the photo, Cornelia was dressed in homewear. Simple outfit, but her beauty was more than just "pretty".

Sabrina craned her neck to look at the phone; even before seeing the girl in the photo clearly, she started keep praising, "She's stunning! Not only is her appearance stunning, but she also has a great temperament. Only such a beautiful girl is worthy of Marc."

"Marc is indeed lucky to have married Nelly." Granny Luisa was naturally happy to hear the compliments about Cornelia, she then showed the photo to Roman, "Kid, take a look at Nelly too, remember to show her respect if you run into her one day."

Roman recognized Cornelia in the photo at a glance, but he still leaned in a bit closer, "Granny Luisa, is this girl in the photo President Hartley's assistant Cornelia?"

Granny Luisa nodded without any doubt, "That's right. But don't get it twisted, Cornelia climbed up to the position of the president's assistant all by herself. Marc didn't pull any strings for her."

Chapter 756

Sabrina said, "This is the Hartley family's own business. Even if Marc's trying to make things easier for his wife, what's the big deal? Who's gonna have the guts to question that?"

Roman gave Sabrina a gentle nudge and started, "Granny Luisa, there's something about Cornelia that I'm not sure if I should tell you."

Granny Luisa asked, "What is it?"

Roman took out his phone, scrolled to a photo, and handed it to Granny Luisa. "This happened this afternoon and it's blowing up online. Pretty sure everyone in the country knows by now."

When Granny Luisa recognized the girl in the photo was Cornelia, she was shaking with anger, "Who dared to photoshop these pictures? Who dared to smear Nelly's name? When I find out who's behind this, they're gonna pay."

Roman asked, "Granny Luisa, is there any chance the photo isn't photoshopped, but real?"

Granny Luisa snapped, "What are you implying? You think you know Cornelia better than me? Nelly's character is impeccable. I'll have Marc find out who made these photos. I'll find the culprit behind this and make them pay."

Roman paused, acting like he was in a tough spot, "Granny Luisa, there are some things I didn't want to bring up, but now that I know, I think I should let you in on it. This girl, Cornelia, she used to be my girlfriend."

Sabrina exclaimed, "What did you just say? You can't just toss around words like that."

Granny Luisa coldly glared at Roman, "Spill it. What's the deal?"

Roman said, "You probably know I went to University of Riverton. Cornelia also graduated from there. During my junior year, she was in her sophomore year. That year, I pursued her, and she became my girlfriend."

"I never would have thought that when she went home for summer, she seduced a married man, and got caught by his wife. The whole thing blew up, even reaching our university. She was almost expelled. When I found out, I broke things off. I couldn't be with a girl with such reckless behavior."

Smack-

A slipper flew from the distance and hit Roman right on the forehead.

*Granny Rebecca had just entered the living room when she heard someone b

Granny Rebecca was getting more and more ticked off. Her shoes were off, a nd she was about to chuck a vase at Roman. Thank God, Sabrina was quick to react. “That vase m ust be worth a fortune, don't just smash it. One hit and it could cost hundreds of thousands.”

For Sabrina, it seemed that the valuable vase was more important than her own son.

After all, it was not cool to smash someone else's stuff. Granny Rebecca put t he vase down and continued to give Roman hell, “You were the one who brok up with her before, but now that you see Nelly is doing well, you want to ruin her marriage. What the hell are you trying to do”

“So you’re Comelia’s grandma We didn’t meet back then, didn’t expect to meet under these circumstances Roman said calmly, “It is not for me to say whether or not your granddaughter has done the unseemly things she has done. I just read about them online. But since you’re here, you should know the truth about what happened back then better than anyone. Can you tell Granny Luisa if Cornelia really seduced someone’s husband or not?”

Rebecca, who had been a teacher for decades and had seen all kinds of students, was so pissed off that she was about to blow her top. “Talk nonsense again, I swear I’ll rip your mouth off.”

“Even if you rip my mouth off, it won’t help because I didn’t spread these rumors.” Roman, observing Granny Luisa’s expression, continued, “The internet never forgets. It’s not like people will forget everything over time.

“The person who exposed your granddaughter’s photos today, not only exposed the explicit photos of her seducing others, but also. screenshots of Rosenberg’s reports back then. The evidence is clear. They’re not just making up rumors...”

“You” Granny Rebecca was so mad that she was about to explode. She wanted to say something, but it seemed like something was stuck in her throat, making her chest hurt and she couldn’t speak.

Granny Luisa quickly helped Granny Rebecca sit down, “Rebecca, calm down.”

Sabrina was playing the good guy again, “Oh, Granny Luisa, you really have to check this out. You have to find out the truth. What kind of family is the Hartley family? Don’t be fooled by these bad people.”

Granny Luisa gave Sabrina a cold look.

Sabrina was a bit scared of that look, and she said with a guilty conscience, “If you find out the truth, and it’s not like what the internet says, you have to clear the Stewart girl’s name.”

Granny Luisa looked at the two of them and probably understood their real intentions for visiting her today. She reached out to Roman, "Give me your phone, I want to see if this photo is really Cornelia."

Without hesitation, Roman handed over his phone with both hands, "Granny Luisa, please take a good look."

Granny Luisa took the phone and immediately threw it into a nearby fish tank, "Oh, I'm so sorry! The phone accidentally fell into the water. How much is your phone? I'll pay you, you can buy another one."

People of their social class wouldn't care about a phone, and what they really cared about was the information in the phone. Roman was mad, but he didn't dare to show it, "Granny Luisa, you don't have to pay, I can fish out the phone, it should still work."

Granny Luisa said, "I'm really sorry. My little goldfish is not in good health and cannot bear any external disturbances.", "Alright, I'll buy a new one later." Roman frowned, not daring to complain. After all, the Padilla family still needed Granny Luisa's help.

"See the guests out! Before the Padilla family mother and son could settle down, Granny Luisa had already asked them to leave.

The Padilla family had helped the Hartleys years ago. Granny Luisa remembered the instructions of the elders, and had been helping the Padilla family for decades.

Chapter 758

First off, she provided them with jobs and projects, but the people from the Padillas didn't make good use of it, they screwed up everything. Then, she decided to just wire them money every month.

She was loaded, so no matter how much the Padillas needed, she had it covered. She often turned a blind eye to their greedy antics, still treating them like friends.

Every time the Padillas came to her, whether for money or anything else, she was always ready to give.

But she never saw it coming, this time when they came to her, they wanted to smear the reputation of her beloved Cornelia. They didn't get a warm welcome, of course.

"Granny Luisa, what's this..." Sabrina noticed Granny Luisa's firm attitude and realized that she shouldn't have listened to her son and come here today.

Not only did they gain nothing from this visit, but they also upset Granny Luisa. Now they were wondering if Granny Luisa would still send them money next month.

Granny Luisa, we'll take our leave then. We'll visit you another day." Roman was as cool as a cucumber, bidding Granny Luisa goodbye as if nothing happened.*

Cornelia was a knockout, so it was no surprise Marcus Hartley would protect her. But what really threw him off was that Granny Luisa was also so protective of Cornelia.

Cornelia's past scandal was a big deal. Anyone who cared to ask would know about it. But Granny Luisa just wouldn't believe it. He wondered if she was getting confused in her old age.

The Padilla mother and son had just left when Granny Rebecca suddenly started shaking, her mouth opening to spit out a mouthful of blood, scaring Granny Luisa half to death. "Rebecca, don't worry about Nelly. Marc will handle it."

Granny Rebecca clutched Granny Luisa's sleeve tightly, "Luisa, Nelly didn't do any of those shameful things. You have to believe her. You have to explain to Marc, Nelly has always been a good girl, and she wouldn't do such things..."

Granny Luisa patted

Granny Rebecca's back, soothing her, "Rebecca, save your breath. Even if you didn't say it, I'd still believe Nelly. Marc isn't brainless. He will figure out the truth. Trust me, He will believe in Nelly too."

"Please, you must believe in Nelly, you must..." Granny Rebecca muttered her last words before her eyes closed, and she passed out.

The past

event had caused significant harm and impact on Cornelia, and Granny Rebecca had been feeling very guilty about it. She always thought that if she hadn't gone home visit that day, maybe none of those things would've happened, and Cornelia wouldn't have ended up homeless at such a young age.

So when these people brought up the past today, she got really pissed.

In her heart, Nelly was clearly the best girl in the world. She never did anything wrong, why should she suffer from these rumors and slanders.

In desperation, Granny Luisa shouted, "Call the doctor, quick..."

Chapter 759

After leaving the Hartley family's courtyard, Sabrina sat in the car, looking worriedly at Roman in the driver's seat, "Son, was our behavior today not worth it?"

Roman chuckled coldly, "Well, it's too early to say whether we've gained or lost. Maybe the old lady of the Hartley family is just sticking to her own opinion. She may not believe us, but there must be some doubts in her heart. As long as we've planted seeds of doubt in her mind, who knows what will happen in the long run?"

Sabrina was still worried, "Granny from the Hartley family has always been good to us. I've known her for over twenty years. Every time I visit her, she's always friendly. The thing I want, no matter how expensive it is, as long as I ask her for it, she will give it to me. But this time she asked us to leave. I'm afraid she won't give money to us anymore."

Roman retorted discontentedly, "She only gives us twenty or thirty thousand a month. That's not nearly enough for us. If she doesn't give us money in the future, someone else will, don't worry."

Sabrina said, "It is indeed a bit less, sometimes I want to buy a decent bag but don't have money. But you know, having this twenty or thirty thousand is better than nothing. Apart from Granny Luisa, who would be willing to give us tens of thousands every month?"

For many families, twenty or thirty thousand was more than they can earn in a year. Yet, Granny Luisa gave the Padillas two to three thousand every month, and they still found it insufficient.

"Don't worry, as long as I'm here, you won't be short of money," Roman didn't specify who would give them money. It was not the right time to tell her.

Sabrina said, "You had me meet Granny Luisa today and you slandered Cornelia in front of her. It doesn't benefit the Padilla family at all, why did you do that?"

Roman asked, "Do you want to hear the truth?"

Sabrina replied, "Of course! What, you think I want you to spin tales?"

Roman smiled, his smile sinister and twisted. "Because I regret it! I regret breaking up with her! If I hadn't listened to those rumors and broken up with her, she would be my woman now, not Marcus."

Sabrina said, "It's just a woman. You can find any type of woman with your current status. It's not worth being so obsessed over a woman from the past."

Roman replied, "A woman from the past? The one I can't get is the one I can't forget. Because she's the woman I never truly had, I couldn't help but miss her all these years."

"Ironically, the first job I got when I returned to Riverton brought me face to face with her. I tried to invite her to dinner, but she turned me down. Today, I visited her home and found her with Marcus. She told me Marcus is her husband. I understand that unless Marcus lets her go, I'll never have another chance with her. So, I'd rather destroy her than let her fall into another man's hands."

Sabrina said, "She now has the powerful backing of the Hartley Group and that fearsome Marcus. For the sake of our family and your future, you'd better not get involved with that woman anymore."

Roman sneered, "You think I'm the only one watching her? There are already many people paying attention to her. Every move she makes is being watched

"Marcus has made many enemies, and there are countless people who wish him dead. Maybe one day, his life will be taken away by someone else, and then he'll no longer have the right to fight me for Cornelia."

Sabrina asked, "Is the one who wants to deal with him Brennen?"

Roman replied, "Since ancient times, the battle between father and son has always been the most captivating show. I wonder who will have the upper hand in this play, the father or the son."

Sabrina said, "Marcus sent Brennen to prison before he was even eighteen. If Brennen couldn't even handle a not-yet-eighteen-year-old Marcus, what can he do to the now so powerful Marcus? Does he think he can win just based on his accumulation of strength during these two years after being released from prison?"

Roman replied, "Let's wait and see."

When Cornelia and Marcus arrived at the hospital, Granny Rebecca was still being rescued.

Granny Luisa was wiping away her tears as she said to Cornelia, "Nelly, I'm sorry! I didn't take good care of your grandma. She got scared and couldn't catch her breath. She almost passed away."

Chapter 760

It was all due to getting too worked up!

Comelia latched onto the key point, "Granny, don't panic, this has nothing to do with you. Can you tell me why my grandma got so worked up in the first place?"

Granny Luisa gave a detailed account of what happened at the old house today. After listening, Cornelia was silent for a few minutes. before suddenly standing up, "Marcus, can I borrow Ayden for a while?"

The name she called wasn't President Hartley, nor was it Jeremy, but Marcus, which indicated just how agitated she was.

Marcus, "What are you planning to do?"

Cornelia, "You just need to lend me Ayden, don't ask any more questions. Also, you need to take good care of my grandma while I'm gone. I'll be back later."

Collecting evidence, finding the rumormonger, and dealing with those who wanted to harm Cornelia... Marcus had already arranged for people to handle these matters. They should have results by eight o'clock tonight..

He had everything perfectly arranged, so Cornelia didn't need to take matters into her own hands. But whatever she wanted to do, Marcus would always support her, "Okay."

Zack, who had come with them, voiced his concern, "Nelly, what are you planning to do? Take me with you. I'm a man, I can help if there's a fight or something."

Cornelia, "You stay put here. Don't go anywhere. If grandma wakes up, make sure to notify me immediately."

After giving her instructions, Cornelia turned to Marcus, "Im heading to the parking lot, have Ayden meet me there."

Marcus, "Okay."

Cornelia hurriedly made her way to the parking lot, but surprisingly, Ayden arrived even faster. He was already waiting by her car. "Ma'am, what do you need me to do?" Ayden wasn't much for talking, but he was always in the know. To day, he even changed how he addressed Cornelia.

Cornelia, "Drive. We're going to the Padilla family to kick some ass."

Ayden, "Okay"

Ayden sped through the city streets, weaving through one road after another. When they were still a few hundred meters away from the Padilla family's residence, Cornelia asked him, "How many people can you take down on your own? If everyone from the Padilla family is there, do you think you can take down Roman?"

Ayden, "Either they go down, or I do."

Cornelia gave his shoulder a reassuring pat, "Don't worry, I just need you to back me up, scare them a little. You might not even have to throw a punch."

However, Cornelia underestimated Ayden's strength. Upon arriving at the Padilla family's place, Ayden took down Roman with just two punches and a shoulder throw.

Compared to Zack's weak punches, Ayden's were far more powerful. With just two punches, Roman lost two teeth. After a shoulder throw, he probably broke a couple of ribs.

After settling the fight, Ayden ushered Cornelia forward, "Ma'am, the person you're looking for is right here. It's your move now."
