Chapter 728

Andrius did not pay attention to Luna and walked to Belarus instead. "Grandpa Belarus, the western border needs me. I have to go."

Andrius looked at the kind old man and said softly, "You must take care of yourself!"

Belarus extended a withered arm and patted Andrius' shoulder heavily "Andrius, you've done well. I'm proud of you! Don't worry, I won't die yet!

"Take care of yourself when you reach the battlefield. I won't say more since you understand the battlefield better than I do.

"Remember, you must purge those scoundrels beyond our borders, bring glory to Florence, and usher in an era of peace and prosperity!

"We will be waiting in Sumeria for your triumphant return!

"Now, go!"

Belarus waved his hand and turned his back to Andrius. The moment he turned around, his tears fell down his cheeks.

Andrius nodded and turned to leave.

"Wolf King!"

"Wolf King!"

"Wolf King!"

The voices echoed through the sky, resonating in the air.

Even when the vehicle that Andrius got into drove away, the soldiers receded like a tide, and the helicopters whizzed away, the shouts continued to echo for a long time.

Whoosh...

Luna collapsed to the ground as she watched the steel giant disappear on the horizon.

“I was wrong... I missed him...”

Two lines of clear tears slid down her cheeks as she murmured to herself.

Self-blame, regret, realization, and bitterness. Various emotions overwhelmed her.

“Luna...” Halle sighed and went over to help her up.

“Halle!” Luna suddenly gripped Halle’s arms and stared at her intently, asking, “Did you already know about Andrius’ identity?”

“Yes.” Halle nodded.

“Why?!” Luna screamed hysterically at Halle. “Why didn’t you tell me earlier? Why...”

As she shouted, she seemed to lose all her strength and collapsed to the ground again

“Why?”

This time, Halle did not reach out to help Luna. Instead, she looked down at Luna from above and smiled coldly. “Why do you think? Andrius has always treated you sincerely. Whenever you or the Crestfalls countered trouble, he always dealt with it immediately “However, you’ve always had your eyes elsewhere. You take pride in yourself for continuously striving, but if it weren’t for Andrius, would you have what you have today?

“With your mind and your intelligence...”

Halle thought about the hardships that Andrius went through and suddenly felt like they were her own. Furthermore, Andrius' departure also affected her to some extent.

Thus, she scolded Luna without mercy, "I won't even mention the Grand Medicinal Competition, Dean Mitchell, or the Crestfalls in the capital..."

"Just Solomon Stormbrew alone could have killed you a thousand times over!"

Her words were harsh, leaving Luna unable to retort.

Halle continued, "Luna Crestfall, ask yourself this: how did Andrius treat you, and how did you treat him?"

"Useless son-in-law, brute, boor, arrogant, rapist... Hahaha..."

Halle burst into laughter as she spoke. Her laughter was full of disdain and endless mockery.

Yes, it was simply absurd to put those labels on the Wolf King!

Halle's words were like an eye-opener.

Luna was suddenly enlightened, but it was too late.

Time turned back, and scenes of the past replayed.

She remembered Andrius' countless kindness and consideration, but she had severed their connection with her own hands.

Plop...

Two tracks of tears fell.

Luna could not hold back anymore. She covered her face and sobbed silently.

Each teardrop fell to the ground and formed a clear pool like the holes in her heart.

Halle continued to watch Luna coldly and scolded, "Luna Crestfall, you are the one who drove him away. with your own hands!"

Then, she left.

As she turned the corner, she also began to cry silently.

She booked a flight on her phone to the western capital, Yatburg.

Her heart was completely focused on Andrius. Now, she had to search for him and chase after him. She would follow the call of her heart so that she did not have any regrets.

The Crestfalls fell into silence.

No one thought that Andrius was the Wolf King.

However, the truth stood before them, leaving no room for doubt.

It was no wonder the world outside speculated that Luna was the Wolf King's wife.

No wonder the Wolf King always helped whenever the Crestfalls faced difficulties.

It turned out that the Wolf King was right beside them. He was the son-in-law of the Crestfalls, Andrius Moonshade.

Chapter 728

Of course, he had to help them.

Unfortunately, they misunderstood Andrius' self-confidence as arrogance. They considered his calm and composed words to be unbelievable lies.

Andrius had always been contributing and helping them.

They had always been enjoying the benefits but belittling him. They disdained, disregarded, and insulted him.

In the end, they stubbornly chased him out of the house...
