

Read Married at First Sight Chapter 2671

Married at First Sight Chapter 2671-Fortress Hotel.

Located in the presidential suite on the top floor

Liberty and Hayden were sitting on the sofa in the living room, while Kevin went to pour water for the two women and cut a plate of fruit.

“Sister Liberty, why don’t you come and live in my house? I stay at my house alone. The house is big and has many rooms. We’ll both have company if you move in.”

Hayden invited Liberty to live in her private villa.

Liberty turned her head to look at her and said with a smile, “Miss Queen, if I live in your house, the entertainment reporters in Jensburg will report that your relationship with the third young master york has broken down. They may also say that the third young master york is being sentimental, and what you like is woman.”

Hayden choked.

She was dressing up as a man. If Liberty moved into her house, it would easily cause misunderstandings and unnecessary trouble.

When Liberty first came to Jensburg, she didn’t even have a firm footing. Too many people hated her and treated her badly.

Hayden had too many admirers, and those admirers couldn’t beat Kevin, but they thought they could beat Liberty.

“Miss Queen, your relationship with the third young Master York is getting more and more stable. When the time is right, you can actually confess to the outside world that you are a woman, so that others will not always accuse you of being gay. You are obviously normal people.”

After Hayden was silent, she said, “I don’t have to explain anything to the outside world. If one day Kevin and I get married, I will wear a wedding dress. At that time, everyone will understand.”

Liberty smiled and said, “Maybe others think you are a man disguised as a woman and think you are the one.”

Hayden: “...”

Liberty said, “I’m usually not a meddlesome person who tries to persuade others to get married or divorced. My marriage was a mess, and I got divorced. When he domestically abused me, I chased him down several streets with a kitchen knife. His face was bruised, and his nose was swollen.

Sometimes, when I think about it, I don't know what marriage has brought to us women. We marry alone into the man's family, work hard with him, run a home together, bear children for him, and take care of our parents-in-law. We still don't understand. Even being scolded is useless; all I know is to spend money.

However, there are still good men in the world. I dare not say whether other men are good or not. The third young master York is very good. Their family tradition is good, and good family tradition produces good men."

Hayden said, "Sister Liberty, I know and understand. Don't think about the past. Let's look forward. Sister Liberty, you and Mr. Lewis are getting along great now, and Mr. Lewis is also getting along great with Sonny. I believe Sonny is more like Mr. Lewis than his own dad."

Mentioning Duncan, who had an awkward moment when she flew to Jensburg, Liberty smiled and said, "Mr. Lewis is excellent. He said that he likes Sonny because of Sonny's love for me and that the attention will only grow."

She and Duncan still had Sonny's blessing.

Sonny: It feels like I have found a stepfather for myself.

Hayden: "Sister Liberty, do you have my mobile phone number? If you need help with anything in Jensburg, just call me."

"Yes, Seren told me." Liberty smiled and said, "Miss. Queen, don't worry, I won't be polite to you. When I need help, don't even think about running away. I will definitely trouble you."

Kevin came over with two glasses of water. After putting down the water glasses, he went to bring two plates of cut fruits. Then he sat down next to Hayden.

He said, "Sister Liberty, eat some fruit."

"Thanks."

Liberty thanked Kevin. Instead of eating the fruit, she picked up the cup of warm water and took a few sips.

Her phone rang from time to time with new messages.

No need to ask; she knew it was from Duncan.

She put down the water glass and said to Hayden and Kevin, “Miss Queen, you are quite busy; how about you go and do your work first, and I will go back to the room to rest for a while? I will treat you to breakfast tomorrow.”

Hayden said, “Sister Liberty, you came from so far away; how could I ask you to treat me to breakfast? I’ll take care of you. I am the host. I’ll come over early tomorrow morning, and we’ll have breakfast together.”

After thinking about it, Hayden changed her mind again and said, “How about you go to my house to eat? Tomorrow, Sunday, I have a day off. I can get up and make breakfast so that you can have a taste of my cooking skills.”

She had a heavy workload, and when Kevin didn’t disrupt her life, she was also a workaholic. She worked overtime at the company on Saturdays and only allowed herself to rest on Sundays.

