

Read Married at First Sight Chapter 2689

Married at First Sight Chapter 2689-Trenton refused and said, "Second sister, I can't help you with this. I can't change what my eldest sister did. The money I spend now is all given to me by her. Even if I want her to support me, how can I change her decision?"

Even if Trenton could convince Camryn to unfreeze Carrie's bank card, he would not do it.

The original intention of Trenton and Camryn was to prevent Carrie from spending money and ruining the family fortune. Trenton also wanted to force Carrie to be self-reliant and carve out a blue sky for herself.

Otherwise, Camryn would control Carrie for the rest of her life. After all, she was his half-sister, so Trenton still hoped that Carrie would be well.

"Since you know that she is so arrogant and unreasonable, you should join forces with me to deal with her instead of listening to her coaxing. It was her idea to go to your parents and ask them to transfer the property to your name. She taught you to do this, right? Did you use me as your excuse?"

Trenton, she just wants to monopolize all the Newman family's property. To put it nicely, she is worried that I will lose all the property. How could I lose all the property? If it is lost, what will I spend? Our family has so much business, as long as I got everything back, and the money came rolling in, enough for us to spend three lifetimes."

"Second sister." Trenton retorted, "Our family is not as rich as you think. Part of the property belongs to the eldest sister. A few of my parents' businesses were closed down a long time ago because they were illegal. Not lawful businesses; they were fined as well."

Carrie said, "Trenton, don't think that I don't understand anything. I know that our family is very rich. Our parents are taking care of the business, and the wealth created naturally belongs to our family.

I won't talk nonsense to you; I just want to ask you, Can you help me unlock my frozen bank card immediately?"

Carrie knew very well that Trenton would not have the same heart as her. Trenton was Camryn's most devoted follower, and Camryn had fed him ecstasy. She was too lazy to talk nonsense to Trenton and only asked him to do this favor for her.

She had spent all the cash she had on hand.

If her bank card is not unfrozen and she runs out of cash, she would have trouble eating.

She didn't know where to find a job, and she didn't have any skills, so she didn't know what kind of job to find. She heard from her cousins that it was also difficult to find a job. They couldn't find a good job and could only do hard labor and earn thousands of dollars a month, which was exhausting.

They had work experience but couldn't find a good job. How could she, a rookie, find a good job?

Seeing that Trenton didn't speak, Carrie took a few deep breaths, told herself not to be angry, and then said, "Trenton, you won't help me, but I need to live and eat. You can give me your bank card. You also have money. Even if I take away your bank card and you're short on money, you can ask your elder sister for it. She will not refuse to give you money."

Trenton took out his mobile phone and said, "I can transfer $5,000 to you. This will be used as your monthly basic living expenses. You can find a job as soon as possible."

Carrie: "$5,000; you send the beggar away; I am your second sister, your biological sister! Give me $5,000 a day, which is barely enough."

Trenton didn't listen to her and directly transferred $5,000 to her on WhatsApp, saying, "I will give you three months to find a job. During these three months, I will give you $2,000 every month."

Second, sister, you only care about money to live. If you don't have any money, don't look for me anymore. Second sister, don't think about your parents' property anymore. I will be in charge of the Newman family from now on."

After Trenton finished speaking, he turned around and headed back to the villa.

Married at First Sight Chapter 2690-Trenton didn't belong at Camryn's house. But he had the final say over his and Carrie's home!

Carrie quickly accepted $5,000.

Seeing that Trenton was gone, she chased after him and pulled him away. "Trenton, send me a little more money. Send me $1,000 or $1,500. $5,000 is really not enough. Go to your eldest sister and steal the property certificate and spare key, and then give it to me."

She remembered that her mother bought several apartments for her.

When she was studying, she did not live on campus. Her mother bought a house near the school.

Later, after she stopped going to school, her mother rented out the house. Her mother did not tell her how much the monthly rent was.

But she knew it was a house bought for her.

As long as she got back the real estate certificate and keys, she could put the house up for sale and make a lot of money.

The houses she owned were all in school districts, and one of them could be bought for millions.

Carrie added, "Why did Camryn take away my real estate certificate? It was property in my name, and she also took it away."

The real estate deed was in the safe in her parents' room. Last time, Camryn tricked her into opening the door to her parents' room and unlocking the safe. Naturally, Camryn took away the valuables and part of the cash in the safe.

Trenton shook off Carrie's hand and said, "When I went to see my mother, my mother told me repeatedly that even the property in your name cannot be handed over to you. Let me tell you, the property in your name and the property certificate are not yours alone; there is also mom's name. Without Mom's autograph, you can't sell the house by yourself. Second sister, please stop thinking about the house."

Carrie was speechless.

When Carrie was in school, her mother bought a house for her to live in. It was normal for her mother's name to be on the property certificate.

Trenton went back to the villa again.

Carrie wanted to catch up again, but when she saw Camryn appear at the door of the villa, she gave up. She stamped her feet angrily and shouted at the siblings: "Camryn, Trenton, I won't let it go. Remember what you did to me today. Let's wait and see. One day, I will get it back a hundred times a thousand times and make you kneel down and beg for my forgiveness."

After scolding, she left angrily.

During the lawsuit, she couldn't get any money because the property was still in her parents' names. If her parents were still alive, she had no way to ask Camryn to give it to her.

The property required her mother's signature before it could be sold, so selling the house for money was no longer possible.

How was she going to get money?

Mrs. Janzen couldn't be contacted, and there was no chance of getting money from Mrs. Janzen.

Mrs. Janzen would give her money, which depended on her performance. She couldn't even handle Camryn, let alone take revenge on Serenity.

Carrie suddenly felt useless.

"Eldest sister."

Trenton walked towards Camryn, and before she could speak, he explained: "The second sister asked me for money, and I only gave her $5000 for living expenses, not more."