Married At First Sight Chapter 3583

Married At First Sight Chapter 3583 – Serenity smiled and said, “Kids are like that. As they grow, their curiosity grows too. If you wear something bright, they’ll just stare. Taking care of them can be exhausting, but when they hug you and sweetly call you ‘Mom,’ it’s all worth it.”

Jane hugged Enzo, who was about to climb the table again. “Absolutely. After a long day at work, holding my two little ones melts away all the fatigue.”

She bent down and kissed Enzo’s cheek.

Enzo smiled at his mother, then hugged her neck and nuzzled her face.

Serenity watched, feeling a bit envious.

“Seren, don’t be jealous. In a few months, your baby will arrive, and you’ll feel just as happy.”

Serenity replied, “I just hope he won’t be too mischievous.”

Jane laughed. “Most kids are a little naughty these days. Zachary is so mature and calm. I bet his child will be the same. You’re pretty steady too, unlike me. I was a handful as a child. Ben’s more grounded, and our daughter takes after him. Our son, on the other hand, is just like me—full of energy.”

Serenity touched her belly, feeling a sudden kick. She smiled. “I think my little one might be quite active too. The kicks are getting stronger.”

Jane nodded. “As the months go by, the movements will get stronger. When I was pregnant, it felt like my twins were wrestling inside me. Toward the end, I was worried they’d kick right through!”

Serenity chuckled.

“It’s still chilly this morning. We’ve been out long enough. Let’s go back inside for breakfast. I need to feed the kids before I eat.”

“Let’s check if Titus and Sonny are up.”

Serenity agreed, and they both stood up.

Jane carried Enzo, and they walked back to the house together.

Enzo, now calm in his mother's arms, smiled or babbled whenever Serenity played with him, as if he understood her.

Inside, they found Ben carrying Avah downstairs, with Sonny and Titus following.

The boys were awake too.

"Avah woke up again?" Serenity asked.

Ben nodded. "She barely slept after I brought her back. I made her some formula."

Avah happily drank the milk Ben made, unlike Enzo, who only wanted his mother to feed him.

Ben had to laugh—was Enzo worried his dad would poison the milk?

Only when Jane wasn't home would Enzo let someone else feed him.

The nanny came out with freshly prepared formula. Smiling at Jane, she said, "The young master guessed you'd bring Enzo back, so he asked me to get this ready. It's just made."

She handed the bottle to Jane.

Jane took the bottle, and Enzo, now hungry, grabbed it eagerly with both hands.

"You must be starving," Jane said as she sat down to feed him.

Enzo drank while holding onto his mother's clothes with one hand and kicking his legs. Even while eating, he couldn't stay still.

"Aunt," Sonny called to Serenity.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3584 – Titus also greeted Serenity before sitting with Sonny to watch Enzo drink his milk. Sonny, playing with his feet, giggled when Enzo playfully kicked him.

Enzo wasn't very strong, so Sonny didn't mind the kicks.

After feeding the kids, Jane handed them to the nanny, who put them in the stroller and took them out for a walk. This way, they wouldn't cry when Ben and Jane went out later.

Jane and Serenity wanted to take the children to the park but decided to leave the twins behind. The twins were too young, and the park was too crowded to ensure their safety.

FC Manor was lively, while Wildridge Manor remained quiet.

The York family had no young children yet.

The youngest, Rowan, hadn't started his winter break. His vacation wouldn't start until closer to the New Year, and he was busy preparing for his college entrance exams.

Even if Rowan came home for winter break, as a teenager, he couldn't bring the same energy as little kids.

They needed a new generation.

Bianca drove her rented car up the mountain road until she reached the gates of Wildridge Manor. She stopped and honked the horn.

The security guard saw Bianca and opened the gate for her.

Bianca parked in the open-air lot, which was a bit of a walk from the main house. She liked taking in the scenery, so she didn't mind.

Camryn had invited her over.

Camryn had been staying at the villa for a couple of days and was bored, so she asked Bianca to join her.

Bianca had planned to leave Wiltspoon for Jensburg but postponed her trip to visit Camryn instead.

She loved Wildridge Manor. The scenery was stunning, even more so than the place where her master lived.

The villa staff greeted Bianca warmly.

Bianca admired how well the staff remembered her, even those she hadn't met before. They must have been told who she was by the butler.

"Is the fourth young master home?" she asked one of the maids.

The maid replied, "I don't work for the second young lady, so I'm not sure. Unless there's a special occasion, the young masters usually aren't home. I doubt he's here. If you need to see him, Miss Bianca, you could ask the second young lady to call him."

The maid assumed Bianca didn't have Evan's contact information, since she usually spent time with the young ladies.

Bianca smiled. “No, it’s okay. I just wanted to know if Evan was home. It’s not a big deal.”

Evan always seemed to disapprove of her.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3585

Married At First Sight Chapter 3585 – Bianca was also cherished by her family and treated well by her siblings. No one ever gave her a hard time—except Evan. He always looked at her with a stern expression, as if she owed him millions. She knew why he was polite in front of the elders but cold otherwise. He believed Grandma York wanted to match them, and he didn’t want to be associated with her. Even though she once liked him, his attitude forced her to move on.

Yet, they kept crossing paths. The maid, noticing Bianca’s mood, asked, “Did the fourth young master bully you?”

Bianca quickly responded, “No, he wouldn’t dare.”

She wasn’t someone to be easily bullied.

The maid reassured her, saying, “If he did, just tell the old lady or even the second young lady. They always seek justice.”

Bianca thought to herself that it was unlikely. The York family was known for being protective. They might find excuses for their own even if they were in the wrong unless it involved something illegal. The York family strictly prohibited illegal actions, and anyone who crossed that line would be expelled.

Bianca clarified, “It’s just a misunderstanding. The fourth young master and I simply don’t like each other, so it’s easier when he’s not around.”

Recently, Grandma York had asked Evan to take her back to the hotel, and he had stared at her intensely, making her uneasy.

The maid, still concerned, said, “If it’s a misunderstanding, just explain it to him. The young masters are reasonable and generous.”

Bianca silently disagreed. Evan was different; he held grudges. He once took something of hers, promising to return it, but he never did. However, he didn’t know her true identity then, so there was no chance to return it.

Bianca asked, “Is your second young lady up?”

“Yes, she’s already had breakfast. Miss Bianca, have you eaten?”

“I ate at the hotel. Their buffet breakfast is delicious,” Bianca replied.

The York Corporation hotels had skilled chefs, making their food popular even among non-guests.
