

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1711

Chapter 1711

As he spoke, he looked at James and asked, "Did they mention a specific location?"

James shook his head and said, "Nope."

Sky scrutinized the map for some time before saying, "In that case, we should return for now and use a satellite map to search for the location. This shouldn't be too hard."

"Let me see James reached out.

Sky handed the map over to him.

However, James did not look at the map but instead stored it away, saying, "I'll keep the map in safe custody for now. We'll figure it out once we've returned."

Sky could not care less. Even if James learned of the dragon's whereabouts, he would not be able to slay the dragon by himself. Only by mobilizing every single martial artist from Sol could they stand a chance. After some time, a member of the Blood Race appeared with an apparatus for storing blood in his hands. James opened the equipment carefully and poured half of the dragon's blood into Sky's bottle. Then, he said with a smile, "Now that I've given you the dragon's blood, I no longer owe you anything."

Sky held the apparatus carefully in his hands. "D-Dragon's blood... A-At long last, I can finally cross into the ninth rank." His voice trembled with emotion.

James, on the other hand, only smiled faintly. Although he did not know the authenticity of the blood given to him by the Blood Race, what he gave to Sky was a fake.

"Alright now, please return to your room if there's nothing you require of me. I need some rest. I'm a little fatigued after the fierce battle during the day."

"Sure."

Sky did not linger for long. He could not wait to refine the dragon's blood.

The moment Sky left, James left his room with the real dragon's blood in hand and headed to Thomas' room.

Thomas was sitting in a lotus position in his room.

"Grandpa..." James greeted him.

Thomas opened his eyes slightly and asked, "What's wrong? Is something the matter?"

James hurriedly handed over the real dragon's blood to him, saying, "Grandpa, this is the dragon's blood given to me by the Blood Race. I will hand it over to you for safekeeping. Return to Sol and wait for me. Once I'm back, you can return the blood to me."

"Sure."

Thomas put the dragon's blood away.

James did not linger for long and turned to leave.

After he left, Thomas stood up and left the room. Then, he pulled out his phone and called a number." Retreat for now."

James hurriedly returned to his room. After returning there, he began putting on an act by scrutinizing his own blood.

Boom!

Soon, the door of his room was blasted open.

An enraged Sky walked in. "Do you take me for a fool, James?!"

James looked at him and asked in confusion, "What's wrong?"

"The dragon's blood is fake."

"Impossible!" James stood up and said, "This was given to me by the Blood Race. How can it be a fake?"

"I'm telling you the truth. Nothing happened after I consumed the entire bottle."

"Damn it!" James cursed. "We've been tricked."

"F*ck!" Sky cursed, and he exuded a terrifying aura. "Let's settle the score with them!"

James pulled him back in time and said, "Do you have a death wish? This is the Blood Race's territory, not to mention they have ninth-rank martial artists among them. Do you really think you stand a chance against them?"

Smash!

As he said that, he threw the bottle in his hand on the ground.

Sky asked, "What should we do now?"

James sighed. "Now that it has come to this, we have no other choice but to endure."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1712

Chapter 1712

James tried convincing him.

"My Fourteen Heavenly Swords can definitely wipe out a martial artist at the Ninth Stair. However, Harland Walchelin was able to block my attack with ease. Even the combined strength of every single martial artist from Sol might not stand a chance against him.

"Unlike you, I don't have a death wish."

Actually, James could stand a chance against a ninth-rank martial artist. He had mastered the Invincible Body Siddhi which allowed him to drastically boost his defensive capabilities. Even against a ninth-rank martial artist, he could still stand a chance. Now, however, he simply did not want Sky to create trouble for the Blood Race.

Sky was enraged. James was speaking the truth. He did not possess the strength to wipe out the Blood Race

"Damn it!" Sky clenched his fists, and a vein popped out in his neck as he cried out, "Mark my words! One day, I'll annihilate the Blood Race."

"Alright now, cheer up. We should return for now and verify the authenticity of the dragon's whereabouts that are marked on the map. If the location is accurate, we will go slay the dragon. Once we slay the dragon, we can obtain as much dragon's blood as we want."

Sky forcefully calmed himself down. That was the only available option they had.

Seeing that Sky had composed himself, James breathed a sigh of relief. He was worried that Sky would make a ruckus, thereby pulling him into the conflict.

He looked at Sky, wondering when exactly should he put an end to the ambitious and power-hungry Sky. "Thank you, James. I'm really sorry that I made you run an errand for nothing. Once we're back, we will verify the authenticity of the map's location. If the location is accurate, we will go slay the dragon." Sky looked at James apologetically.

James, on the other hand, only said while smiling. "No worries. It cost me just a little True Energy." "In that case, I will return to Sol for now. Stay here for as long as you like. Once you're back in Sol, I'll come for you."

After saying that, Sky turned to leave.

James was tempted to ambush Sky on his way back and get rid of him once and for all. However, after some thought, he decided against it. He still needed to slay the dragon to save Thea's life. His strength alone would not be sufficient. If he got rid of Sky at such a critical moment, his chances of slaying the dragon would greatly diminish.

James took a deep breath.

After Sky left, James also said his goodbyes to the First Blood Emperor and left the Blood Race's headquarters.

A day later at Capital International Airport...

James walked out of the airport and called for a taxi.

Soon, he arrived at Thea's house. Since it was noon, no one was at home.

Thea, who was wearing pajamas, answered the door. Judging by her dazed expression, she was likely taking a nap when James rang the doorbell.

As soon as she saw James, she crossed her arms and said coldly, "You're back."

"Mhm." James nodded with a smile, saying. Things went smoothly this time. I obtained the dragon's blood and information on the dragon's whereabouts. I came to visit you the moment my plane landed. I'm at ease seeing that you're safe and sound."

"What are you here for?" Thea asked coldly.

Her cold expression stunned James

However, he did not think much about her unusual attitude toward him. He assumed that she was merely conflicted inside after losing her memory. However, he did not know that Tiara and Maxine had visited her

Now, Thea knew that James had an intimate relationship with Quincy before. She silently cursed James for being a playboy.

James said, smiling, "I'm here to visit you."

"There's no need for that," Thea said coldly.

Slam!

Thea slammed the door shut.

“I...”

James was at a loss.

Since Thea did not welcome him there, he had no other choice but to leave. In any case, he was at ease upon seeing that she was safe and sound. So, he turned to leave and headed to the military region to look for the Blithe King.

In the Blithe King's office in Cansington's military region...

The Blithe King welcomed James warmly, serving him tea. It made James rather uncomfortable.

“James, will you be free anytime soon?”

James looked at the Blithe King and stroked his chin, saying, “I think so... Why are you asking?”

“Well, you promised me you'd teach my son last year...”

The Blithe King looked at him in anticipation.

“I don't have time for this.” James sighed and said, “How about this? I'll give you Callan Maverick's number. You can give him a call and see if he's accepting any disciples.”

James shifted the responsibility to Callan. After all, he should not have much to do at the moment.

“That sounds great.” Upon hearing James mention the leader of the Gu Sect, the Blithe King laughed.

Then, James gave the Blithe King Callan's number and handed the map given to him by the Blood Race over to the Blithe King, saying, “I'd like you to use satellite technology to find the location marked on the map.”

“By the way, it should be in the middle of the Pacific Ocean.”

“Sure, leave everything to me.” The Blithe King took the map.

After requesting the Blithe King's assistance, James left. He returned to the Callahans' residence once more and knocked on the door.

Thea was the one who answered the door.

“You again?” Thea furrowed her eyebrows and said coldly, “James, why do you keep bothering me when you already have someone else you like?”

“Huh?” James was confused. “What do you mean?”

“What do I mean?” Wearing an ice-cold expression, Thea said, “What’s your relationship with Tiara and Maxine? What’s going on between you and Quincy? Why are you even here when you have so many women by your side?”

At that moment, James was at a loss for words. He thought about it and explained, “Thea, why don’t we talk inside?”

“Sure.”

Thea entered the house, while James followed close behind. She sat on the sofa and crossed her arms while glaring at James. She wanted to see what kind of excuse he would come up with.

James took a deep breath and said, “Let’s start with Quincy. Yes, I was in a relationship with her during my high school years. However, the furthest we ever went was holding hands. We never even kissed. After you and I were divorced, Quincy followed me all the way to the Southern Plains. She even took care of me while I was injured. However, I rejected her advances time and again.”

Thea was unmoved.

James continued, “As for Tiara... This came about due to an accident. I was being framed by someone. Both Tiara and I were drugged. That was how we ended up having sexual intercourse.”

Thea said, “You promised her that you’d marry her, didn’t you? Besides, Tiara told me that you two were together after we divorced. I only appeared out of nowhere and snatched you away after learning of your identity as the Dragon King.”

“I did promise her that, but we never had an official relationship.”

James was at a loss. Some things were rather difficult to explain.

“Let me ask you this, then. Did I or did I not look down on you and make your life a living hell in the past? Was it not my fault that we divorced? Was I not the one who shamelessly begged you to return to my side after learning of your identity?” Thea asked.

Maxine was the one who told her everything.

Thea had no memory of these events whatsoever. After learning of this, she believed herself to be a shameless woman—a woman who only coveted power and riches.

James was at a loss for words. He really had no idea what to say.

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1714

Strictly speaking, that was what had transpired. However, James was also somewhat responsible for the fiasco during the divorce. After all, Thea would not have divorced him if he had revealed his identity earlier.

“Thea, I’m the one at fault here. You have nothing to do with this. Back then, I chose to conceal my identity because I was surrounded by enemies on all sides. Divorcing you was the only way to guarantee your safety. I didn’t want my enemies to abduct you.

“After we divorced, I was the one who came back for you. All this while, you have been a kind-hearted woman. It was I who let you down.”

James felt guilty.

“But who should I trust?” At that moment, Thea was at a loss. She did not know who she should believe in. Upon being reminded of the blood Lord Omniscient gave her, she suddenly exclaimed, “Oh, yeah!” “What’s wrong?” James hurriedly asked.

Thea said, “After you left, someone who came searching for me told me that he could help me restore my memory. He even gave me some blood. Hold on, I’ll bring it here.”

Once she said that, she turned to leave.

Soon, she was back. In her hands was the bottle of fresh blood Lord Omniscient gave her.

“A strange man appeared out of nowhere and gave it to me. He told me that my strength and memory will be restored once I consume the blood. However, he warned me that I may not have long to live.”

James scrutinized the bottle but could not find anything unusual. He asked, “Who gave it to you?”

“I don’t know who he was.”

“What did he look like?”

After thinking for a moment, Thea said, "He was a thirty-year-old-looking man wearing a white robe. He had long hair that was both black and white."

Thea briefly described Lord Omniscient's appearance. The moment she uttered those words, James immediately understood.

Thea continued, "He even said he knew me from before. However, I have no memory of him whatsoever."

"Mhm." James nodded and said, "He's the Omniscient Deity from the Jade Sect of Mount Jade. Before you lost your memory, you met him a couple of times."

Thea asked, "Should I consume the blood then?"

"No," James said, "There's no need to rush things. I've already gotten my hands on the dragon's whereabouts. Once I slay the dragon, I will return with its blood to save your life."

"Oh."

Thea did not say much. At that moment, an awkward silence filled the room.

"You have to believe in me, Thea. I only have you in my heart and mind. I've never fooled around with any other women. Ever since you saved me from the sea of fire, you're the only one I love. You were the one who gave me life. I..."

James tried to break the awkward silence.

"Enough." Thea interrupted James' words and said, "None of this matters anymore. I won't be able to verify your claims anyway. We'll discuss this once I've restored my memory."

James nodded and said, "I'll do my best to slay the dragon."

Thea said, "We'll see."

James gave his assurance. "I'll do my best."

At that moment, his phone rang. Pulling out his phone, he realized that it was the Blithe King who called.

He immediately answered the call, asking, "What's wrong?"

The Blithe King's voice came from the phone, "The results are out."

"Alright, I'll be there in an instant."

James hung up the phone and looked at Thea, saying, "I have to head over to the Blithe King's place to resolve a matter. I'll be back soon."

"Get going, then."

Thea could not care less.

Without another word, James turned to leave.

Chapter 1715

As he left, Thea stood up and followed him to the door. Her expression turned grim while she watched his retreating figure. 'Is he speaking the truth? Can I believe in his words?'

Thea was at a loss.

She rubbed her temples. 'Argh... You should have just died, Thea! Why did you have to lose your memory?'

Thea was dismayed. If possible, she would rather die than forget her loved one.

Still, a smile crept up on her face as she murmured, "But James is actually a pretty nice guy."

At the same time, James was on his way to the military region.

At the Blithe King's office...

The Blithe King spun the globe in his hand and marked a tiny red dot at a specific spot, saying, "This is the approximate location. A more detailed map is currently being produced. Please wait here for a moment."

"Mhm." James nodded.

With current technological levels, finding the location of Dragon Abyss was a piece of cake.

After approximately twenty minutes, a brand-new, detailed map was produced.

Holding the brand-new map in his hand, he compared it with the map given to him by the Blood Race. Their similarity was close to ninety-eight percent.

After comparing the two, James said, "This should be the place. Thank you, my friend."

“There’s no need to be so formal between us. Besides, you helped me out big time. Once he heard that you were the referrer, Callan immediately agreed to my request. Since he’s currently in Cansington, I’ve already sent my son there.”

The Blithe King was wearing a bright smile. James had helped his son find one of the most powerful individuals in the world as his master.

“In that case, I’ll be taking my leave.”

James did not linger for long and turned to leave.

After he left, he returned to the Callahans’ residence.

This time, it was David who answered the door.

“You’re back, James.” David greeted him with a smile.

“Mhm.”

James nodded and asked, “Where’s Thea?”

“She’s out.”

“Huh? Who did she go with?”

“Oh.”

James walked in and took a seat on the sofa. He had learned of the dragon’s whereabouts. However, he had to head over to Dragon Abyss to see for himself. If a dragon truly resided there, he would gather the Solean martial artists to slay the dragon.

“Here’s the case, James. Hinmar Bay just opened recently, and I have my eyes on a villa. It costs approximately a billion dollars. Would you like to be my sponsor?”

David looked at James in anticipation.

“Huh?”

As James was busy contemplating something else, he could not hear what David was saying. After recollecting himself, he looked at him and asked, “Pardon?”

David asked, “I have my eyes on a villa. Since I’m slightly short of money, would you be willing to lend me some?”

"I don't have money on me." James outright rejected David's request and said, "The Callahans raked in a rather huge profit for the previous financial year. Why don't you ask them for some? As I have something else to attend to, I'll be taking my leave."

James stood up and turned to leave.

"Wait, don't leave!" David cried out.

However, James paid no heed to him.

After he left the Callahans' residence, a black Bentley stopped in front of him. Thomas got off the car and said, "Hop in."

"Sure."

James got into the car.

Thomas asked, "Did you receive any information on the dragon's whereabouts?"

James nodded and said, "The Blood Race gave me a map. However, I'm still not sure if there's truly a dragon there."

The Almighty Dragon General Chapter 1716

Chapter 1716

James was given a map by the Blood Race. He even requested the Blithe King to produce a brand-new detailed map. However, he was unsure if there truly was a dragon residing there. He would have to head there and find out for himself.

"By the way..." He looked at Thomas and asked, "Grandpa, did you bring the dragon's blood I entrusted to you?"

"Mhm." Thomas nodded and handed the dragon's blood to him, saying, "I have it with me."

James took it and said, "I'll bring it back for research and see if I can save Thea's life."

Wearing a grim expression, Thomas said, "If I guess correctly, the map should be real. What do you plan to do next?"

James replied, "I plan to go have a look."

Thomas thought about it and said, "How about this? You'll go scout the area, whereas I will gather the Solean martial artists to slay the dragon."

“Sure.” James knew how powerful a dragon was. The martial artists from a millennium ago failed. Back then, there were multiple ninth-rank martial artists. Now, they did not even have a single one. It would be a treacherous journey. After some thinking, he asked, “Are you confident that we can defeat the dragon, Grandpa?”

Wearing a solemn expression, Thomas shook his head slightly and said, “To be frank, I’m not confident at all. However, things are different now. This is the modern age, an age of high technology. No matter how powerful the dragon is, there’s no way it can resist even the relentless bombardment of high technology weapons.”

“Alright, then.”

Since things had come to this, this was their only available option.

After briefly discussing matters, James got off the car.

Thomas, on the other hand, ordered the driver to leave.

James remained at the same spot and watched his grandfather leave. Just as he wanted to find Callan, a man walked over to him.

Upon seeing Sky, James furrowed his eyebrows.

He wanted to find an opportunity and eliminate Sky. However, his assistance was still required to slay the dragon.

“What did Thomas say to you?” Sky glanced at James before looking at the retreating Bentley.

James said, “We briefly discussed how best to slay the dragon.”

“What about the map?” Sky looked at James and asked, “Is everything resolved?”

“Mhm.” James nodded and said, “I now know the exact location of Dragon Abyss. However, we still can’t be sure if a dragon truly resides there. So, I plan to head over there and have a look. Would you like to tag along?”

In James’ opinion, now was not the time for Sky to die. Sky was at the peak of the Ninth Stair and infinitely close to reaching the ninth rank. James required his assistance to slay the dragon. So, he planned to mend his relationship with him to lull him into a false sense of security before annihilating him once and for all.

Sky said, “I came here precisely for this. When do we depart?”

“Tomorrow.”

“Alright, I’ll be here tomorrow.”

Then, he turned to leave.

James did not expect that he would bump into Thomas and Sky. He remained where he stood and contemplated. Then, he headed to the military region and looked for the Blithe King.

“Why are you back, James? Is something wrong with the map?” The Blithe King welcomed James passionately.

“No.” James said, “I plan to go overseas. However, going by boat would take far too long. Could you arrange a helicopter for me?”

“No problem at all. It’s a piece of cake,” the Blithe King said smilingly, then asked, “When do you need the helicopter to be ready?”

“Tonight would be great. I’m leaving tomorrow early in the morning.”

“Alright, I’ll make the necessary arrangements immediately.”

After making his request to the Blithe King, James left and returned to the Callahans’ residence.

For some unknown reason, Thea kept avoiding him.

James had no choice but to obtain the dragon’s blood and restore her memory for now.
