Chapter 311

Chapter 311

Jack's heart was beating frantically as suspense overwhelmed him. He had no idea what Kirk's words meant. They sounded like porting words.

Could it be that he wanted to assign him to a dangerous mission?

At the thought of this, the blood in Jack's body boiled with trepidation.

In his office, Jules stood frozen in shock. "You you're Evans Group's CEO now?"

Caroline smiled slightly. "That's right. I'll officially take over tomorrow, so I'm here to resign formally."

Jules applauded. "That's incredible! I heard that Layla asked Mr. Eddy to maximize her presence for this election. You didn't beat Layla in this election; you beat Mr. Eddy!"

He was really curious about how Caroline had persuaded those shareholders to support her.

Caroline said humbly, "You're exaggerating, Mr. Hawkins. At the end of the day, these are Evans Group's internal affairs, Well I came here to give my resignation letter and pack up my things."

"Are you in such a hurry that you must leave today?"

"Yes. As you know, Evans Group is a mess, so I want to take over as soon as possible."

Jules nodded understandingly. He opened Caroline's resignation letter and signed it. "Maybe we'll get to work together in the future."

"Of course," Caroline said with a smile. "Evans Group primarily works on clothing, and we work in the female consumer market. Maybe our paths will cross one day."

While talking, Jules had already handed the approved resignation letter to Caroline. He said, "I still have work to do, so I'll see you off later."

"You don't have to trouble yourself."

"I insist." Jules shook hands with Caroline before watching her leave the office.

Seeing how different Caroline was compared to when she had first joined the company, he couldn't help but sigh.

With how rapidly she was improving, he believed that she would become a legend in the business world.

When Caroline returned to the design department, many people saw the resignation letter in her hand.

"Caroline Cheryl approached her, her eyes turning red again.

Caroline said with a soft smile. "All good things must come to an end. Don't cry. We're still in the same city. I'm just a call away if you want to meet up."

"Really? Will I still get to see you?" Cheryl asked.

"Why not?" Vivian interjected, walking into the room on high heels.

"From now on, Caroline doesn't have to go to work anymore. You can see her whenever you want."

Caroline turned in the direction of the voice, but she saw Jack instead of Vivian.

Jack was about to say something, but Vivian's gloating drowned out his voice. "Am I right, Caroline?"

Caroline asked Jack, "What are you doing up here?"

Jack tried to speak, but Vivian blocked him, walking up to Caroline. "Why aren't you answering my question, Caroline?"

Caroline took a deep breath, resisting the urge to slap Vivian in the face. She retorted. "Talking to a retard just feels like a waste of my time."

Initially, Vivian was furious at her words, but she soon laughed. Caroline had wanted a job and family, but she ended up getting none of them. There was no reason for her to act proud right now.

Vivian said sarcastically, "You're smart, Caroline. So smart that you lost your job and even tried to fight with Layla to be LEO. You're truly a genlust

Several of Vivian's followers had already stood up.

When they heard her words, they echoed, "You're absolutely right, Viv. I heard that Mr. Eddy personally went to help Layla today. Haha, some people really don't know how to assess a situation. She's just making a fool of herself by stepping up like this."

"Exactly, that position was totally out of her league. There's no way a department head like her can become a CEO."

"I've seen some people be delusional, but I've never met someone as delusional as her."

Caroline remained silent.

"All right, that's enough." Vivian looked back at her subordinates.

She said,

"Caroline is already really sad from losing her job and the election to be the Evans Group's CEO, so don't rub salt in her wounds. Whoops, I was so busy talking to you that I forgot to visit Evans Group's new CEO."

Chapter 312

"You're really close with Layla Aren't you, Viv? You're even going to visit her soon." Caroline folded her arms, sneering at Vivian, who was surrounded by her envious followers.

When they heard her sneer, one of them immediately glared at her like a loyal dog protecting its owner

“What are you laughing at? Oh, I know. Are you jealous that Viv can visit Evans Group while you can’t even step foot there?”

Caroline almost laughed out loud at the person’s words. She didn’t have the energy to keep talking to these idiots. Instead, she asked, “What are you doing here, Mr. Jack?”

Jack finally had the chance to speak. “I”

“Caroline.” Vivian interrupted Jack.

She approached Caroline and said, “If you want to go to Evans Group, I can take you there.”

Caroline grimaced slightly. “Why do you need to do that in the first place?”

“Because they wouldn’t let you into the building.”

“I can just let myself in.” Caroline crossed her arms and looked down at Vivian.

Vivian’s smile froze, and she asked, “What did you say?”

“Evans Group is mine. I can just let myself in,” Caroline repeated herself with a raised brow.

Vivian’s expression shifted, but she scolded immediately. “You’ve lost your mind. Evans Group can’t be yours.”

“Why not? I’m a member of the Evans family, so why can’t I be the CEO?” Caroline laughed.

“Aren’t you and Layla good friends? Didn’t she tell you that I won the election?”

“No way!”

Vivian went ballistic. “How can you be Evans Group’s CEO? Layla has Mr. Edy supporting her! Who do you think you are?”

Caroline smiled disdainfully at her words. She said, “It’s good you’re here, Mr. Jack. Help me pack my things.”

Jack froze for a moment before replying, "All right."

"Wait!" Vivian blocked Caroline's way.

She argued, "Are you leaving in such a hurry because you're afraid your lie will be exposed? I've already seen your resignation letter. You must have made a big mistake for Mr. Hawkins to fire you. I can't believe you're saying you're Evans Group's CEO. You're just shameless."

"Who's being shameless?" Jules had heard Vivian's voice from a distance and guessed she was probably fighting with Caroline.

He had come to have a look, and they were really lighting. He immediately frowned. "Vivian!"

However, Vivian looked at Jules as if he were her savior. "You're just on time. Mr. Hawkins. Let me ask you, why was Caroline fired from the company?"

"What on earth are you talking about? Caroline, I mean, Ms. Evans resigned on her own initiative."

Vivian trembled in shock. She said in disbelief, "That's Impossible, she ..."

...itely possible! Caroline is now the CEO of Evans Group, so all of you have to call her Ms. Evans from now on!"

...ne in the design department was shocked when they heard the news. It took them a while to recover from their shock. Then, they congratulated Caroline.

"You're amazing, Caroline!"

"Are you inheriting the family business?"

"I'm so jealous

Chapter 313

Vivian fell to the ground, looking thoroughly miserable. After a while, she got up and grabbed Caroline's hand. She yelled, "You must be lying! You can't be Evans Group's CEO!"

Caroline frowned in discomfort. "Let go of me!"

However, Vivian didn't let go. Her somewhat turbid eyes landed on Jack, and her eyes lit up with an idea.

She stumbled toward Jack. Jack was caught off guard by her actions, and she pushed him in front of Caroline before he could react.

Vivian was completely out of control at the moment. "He's your husband, right? Oh, I know. You worked so hard to become the CEO to support him, right?"

Then, she mocked Caroline, saying. "Your husband is a poor man who can only rely on you!"

Caroline rubbed her temples and said coldly. "Are you done messing around, Vivian?"

"What's wrong? Are you unwilling to admit it, even after you married him?"

Vivian had really gone insane. She was so furious that she couldn't find a way to upset Caroline. So she had no choice but to take advantage of the fact that her husband was an ordinary person.

Caroline was about to speak when her phone rang. She looked at the caller ID and saw that it was Quentin.

"Quentin?"

"I'm already downstairs." Quentin weighed the dossier in his hand.

He asked, "When are you free to come down?"

Caroline looked at the lunatic before her, knowing that nothing she said could persuade Vivian. "Can you bring them upstairs? I can't leave at the moment."

Quentin acknowledged her with a hum.

Caroline hung up the phone and looked at the insane Vivian. She said, "Who my husband is has nothing to do with you. Meanwhile She smirked, saying. "You may have to spend some time behind bars."

Vivian's body wobbled, and she asked, "What did you say?"

Caroline went to her office to get the evidence she had gotten of Vivian bribing the judges of the Rosebow Contest.

Quentin arrived upstairs as well. When he saw everyone in the design department standing around, he frowned and knocked on the door." Excuse me. Caroline Evans is here, right?"

Hearing Caroline's name, everyone turned around. When they saw a handsome man standing at the door, they were stunned momentarily before nodding.

Everyone's attention was on Quentin, but Vivian's eyes were on the dossier in his hand. To properly sort out his documents, Quentin had written "Jack Hobbs" on the dossier.

Vivian's blurry eyes brightened up again. She stumbled over to Quentin and snatched the dossier from his hands.

As if she had found a treasure, she laughed hysterically. "So this is Jack Caroline's husband's dossier."

Jack's expression shifted as he quickly looked at Quentin. Quentin still stood there, confused. He had no idea what was going on.

Everyone else, including Jules, was also drawn by Vivian's insane actions. Their minds were totally blank.

When Vivian tore off the seal of the dossier and pulled out the files inside, Caroline walked out of her office.

It was only then that Quentin reacted. "Wait! That dossier isn't for you! It's for Ms. Evans!"

However, it was already too late. Vivian had already taken out the lilies, looking smugly at Caroline, who was standing at her office door.” Caroline, let’s see who your husband really is!”

Everyone’s eyes widened, suspecting that they had misheard, and they looked at Jack excitedly. They hadn’t expected this ordinary driver to be the champion of a fighting championship.

“Caroline.” Everyone was still used to calling her by name..

“Your husband is amazing. He’s actually a fighting champion.”

“How romantic. A fighting champion like him willingly gave up his career for his wife just to drive her everywhere.”

“Wow, I didn’t expect a rough–looking guy like him to be so considerate.”

Jack’s face was already covered with cold sweat.

Caroline smiled half-heartedly at everyone’s compliments and explained, “You have the wrong idea. Mr. Jack isn’t my husband.”

Everyone was stunned, and their eyes landed on Vivian. “But Vivian”

Her claims had sounded well-founded.

When Vivian heard Caroline’s words, she calmed down a lot. She mocked, “That makes sense. There’s no way a fighting champion can be your husband.”

At the mention of this, she smiled meaningfully. “You probably paid this guy to drive to and from work. After all your poor husband can’t afford it. Unfortunately, not many people here pay attention to fighting championships, so none of us recognize him. Hana, you wasted your money on him...”

Caroline was amazed at Vivian's ridiculous leaps of logic.

She was about to speak, but Quentin said, "I can't stand this anymore. He's clearly driving her around because he has a crush on her, got it?"

As soon as these words were spoken, Jack looked at Quentin, dumbfounded.

What the hell? Why would he have a crush on his boss' wife? He didn't want to die!

Quentin squatted on the ground to search for a document.

Then, he handed one of the papers to Caroline and explained, "Jack used to be from Easton, then he went abroad. Before he did, he met you and fell in love with you.

"However, because you and Eddy were engaged, he had no choice but to go abroad."

He paused before saying, "Later, when he found out you had broken off the engagement with Eddy, he rushed back to Easton. But unfortunately, it was still too late. When he returned, he found out that you were married — Quentin scratched his head.

Why did he feel a sense of familiarity the more he talked?

But he didn't think too much of it and continued, "So, he had no choice but to lie that he's a driver the company had appointed, just to see you every day," and Jack were speechless.

Along while, Jules struggled to speak, "W— what a touching story about unrequited love! Jack, you're a wonderful person

Jack grimaced at his words.

Caroline hadn't expected things to turn out this way. She had never known that someone had feelings for her in secret. She would be ing

If she said she wasn't touched.

She said sadly. "I'm sorry, Mr. Jack. I can't accept your feelings. I think we're Jack gritted his teeth. He finally understood what Kirk meant just now. He didn't want to send him on a thrilling mission. Instead, he wanted him to be his scapegoat.

"Don't worry, Ms: Evans. I've completely let go of my feelings for you."

"It's the greatest honor for her husband when even his rival in love is acknowledging his worth."

"I really want to know who Caroline's husband is!"

Caroline relaxed after hearing Jack's words.

Thinking about it carefully. Jack had never acted excessively or shown any emotions around her. He had probably already given up on her.

She smiled. "That's good."

However, now wasn't the time to deal with Jack. Caroline turned to look at Vivian, who was sitting on the ground, dazed.

Vivian scratched at a desk with one hand, laughing and murmuring.

"Even a fighting champion has a crush on her Haha! Why? Why do so many people like Caroline, while no one likes me? Just why?"

Caroline had seen this behavior on TV—someone going insane after getting provoked.

She knelt in front of Vivian. Looking straight into her eyes, she showed Vivian the evidence that she had bribed the judges of the Rosebow Contest.

*These are the transaction records of your payment to the judges of the Rosebow Contest.”

She leaned into Vivian’s ear and whispered. “Although the Rosebow Contest is an overseas competition and there’s no jurisdiction domestically, this evidence proves that you knew you’d be participating with your designs.”

She paused. Facing Vivian’s confused gaze, she continued, “You knew that your work was in the competition long before the results were out.

“In other words, you knew that Susan sent your designs to the organizing committee with my email. You had dumped the blame on Susan before, but you can’t run away this time.”

Vivian lost her grip on her desk, and she fell heavily to the ground with a thud. Her face was pale.

Half an hour later, the police arrived and took Vivian away.

Caroline approached Jules and apologized, saying, “I’m really sorry, Mr. Hawkins. I planned to wait until you found a new design director before calling the police about this. But ”

That being said, there was no trace of guilt in her tone.

Jules said understandingly, “I should be thanking you. Seeing how insane she became, It would have been bad for Thorne Corp if word about this got out. I didn’t expect her to turn out like this, just out of jealousy.”

Caroline didn’t say anything in response and led Jack to clean up her office. She didn’t have a lot of things there, so she finished packing soon.

Just as she was about to leave. Cheryl opened the door and walked into the office. She looked at Caroline shyly, hesitant to speak.

Ca

ted at Jack and ordered, "You should leave first, Mr. Jack."

"Allnig Jack went downstairs, carrying a box.

When he got downstairs, he saw Charles standing next to the car. Jack looked at him silently.

Charles hurriedly approached Jack when he saw him. He said, "Good Job, Jack."

Jack narrowed his eyes when he saw how hard Charles was trying to keep himself from laughing. "You already knew about this?"

Charles cracked in an instant and burst out laughing. "No, I just found out."

After laughing, he kindly comforted him. "You should be happy, Jack. You're the only person who has survived our boss' wrath despite having a crush on the madam. You can brag about this any time you want."

Jack thought happily. "Oh, it's all thanks to him that I can live my days happily."
