

Read Married At First Sight Chapter 2759

Married At First Sight Chapter 2759-Duncan turned to look at Liberty and said, "Who do you think I am? I even slept on a bench in the park before. That was when I was rebellious in my youth."

Liberty knew that he was very rebellious when he was in his teens and 20s and followed some like-minded people to join the world. Later, after his grandma passed away from a serious illness, he changed his ways, returned to normal, worked hard to start a business, and established Lewis & Co.

More than ten years have passed since those days, and he rarely mentioned it in front of her because it reminded him of his grandma.

She heard that his grandma's favorite grandson was him. He was the youngest of the brothers. The emperor loved the eldest son, and the people loved the youngest son.

Sonny was initially afraid of the scar on his face. He thought about having surgery to repair it, but in the end, he didn't do it. He said that keeping the scar was a warning to himself because his rebellion led to his grandma's serious illness and death.

He felt sorry for Grandma.

"I don't choose a place to live. Besides, a room like this is very good."

Duncan admitted that he usually stayed in the presidential suite when he was on business trips.

He was single and had so much property. If he didn't enjoy it, what would he do to earn so much money?

Liberty asked, "Do you want to rest now?"

"I'll just sit on that couch."

Duncan pointed to the sofa next to the window.

Liberty pushed him and walked over. When she stopped, she tried to help him, but he refused and said, "I can stand up on my own. I can still walk two steps."

After doing rehabilitation every day and walking a few steps, his legs no longer hurt. But if he wanted to walk a little further, his legs would not be able to bear it, and he would suffer such heartbreaking pain that he could not stand steadily and fell to the ground.

His legs were bruised from the fall.

Wearing trousers every day, no one noticed him, so everyone would not feel sorry for him again.

He didn't need anyone's sympathy!

Liberty gave up helping him and let him stand up on his own.

He took a step forward, turned around, and slowly sat down on the sofa.

After he sat down, Liberty pushed the wheelchair aside and parked it against the wall.

Liberty said, "Would you like some fruit? The hotel will deliver a piece of fruit every day. They are all seasonal fruits, quite fresh."

Duncan said, "I'm so full that I can't eat fruit now."

Liberty walked towards him and said, "You are almost forty years old, and you still don't know how much you can eat? You deserve it if you overeat."

She sat down next to him and looked at his belly. "Is it hard? Otherwise, practice walking in the room so that you can digest it faster."

Duncan looked at her with a smile.

Although he was extremely full and slightly stuffed, he was not on the verge of gasping for air.

Liberty: "Why are you always looking at me like this?"

Duncan: "Liberty, I like to listen to your nagging. It is a kind of happiness to be nagged by you."

Normally, she would only nag Serenity.

What she cared about most was Serenity and Sonny. Sonny was still young, so she didn't need to nag her too much. She just loved nagging in front of Serenity, like an old mother.

To Serenity, she was both a sister and a mother.

The eldest sister was like a mother, which was fully reflected in her sisters.

Liberty: "Do you think I'm nagging you?"

Married At First Sight Chapter 2760-Duncan said, "I don't mind it; I just like hearing you talk about me."

Duncan held Liberty's hand and looked at her with burning eyes. Seeing her high spirits and confidence, he liked her more and more.

"Liberty."

Duncan's voice was hoarse, and his head came closer and closer, tentatively asking Liberty, "I want to kiss you; is that okay?"

Liberty's face suddenly turned red.

She was no longer a little girl; she has been married, divorced, and given birth to children, but when he asked her like this, she couldn't help but blush, with a shy look on her face, which made Duncan even more distracted.

He had been in love with her for a long time and had held her hand.

No further action was taken.

"Liberty, are you willing?"

Duncan grabbed her face and forced her to face him. The two of them looked at each other. As he got closer, the hot breath he breathed hit Liberty's face.

Her shyness inspired Duncan invisibly.

When he didn't get an answer from her, he gently touched her red lips. Seeing that she closed her eyes, he hugged her tightly. From gentle to domineering, they kissed lightly to deeply, lingering and entangled endlessly.

After the kiss, Liberty quickly pushed him away, stood up and walked away, pretending to do something, and said, "I will boil a kettle of water for you. You can drink warm water or make a cup of tea."

Her breathing was a little unstable when she spoke.

Duncan looked at her lovingly, followed her with his eyes, and responded to her in a warm voice: "Make me a cup of green tea. On the plane, I rested for a while. I don't need to rest anymore. Drink a cup of green tea to refresh myself. If you want to do something, I will go with you."

Liberty said, "I have done all the things in the morning. I planned to go and visit the family members of the Farrell family's dead bodyguard later. His family members are here. Anyway, if he doesn't help me drive, he won't die."

Even if it was Matriarch Farrell's conspiracy, without any evidence, it could only be said to be an accident for the time being.

Helping Liberty drive the car did indeed result in the death of the Farrell family's bodyguard, which in turn caused a car accident and killed everyone in the vehicle. Liberty went to visit the family members and offered incense to the deceased. If she did it, no one would tell her. At least it wouldn't chill the hearts of those in the Farrell family who were ready to move.

What Liberty had to do was not only to make them think that she was strong and capable but also to be humane in order to win over the clan members.

Duncan said, "I'll go with you. I'll also burn incense and visit the family."

If the bodyguard hadn't died in Liberty's place, what he might have seen when he came over now was Liberty's body.

Just thinking about that possibility made Duncan scared.

Fortunately, Liberty was fine.

Thanks to Kevin and Hayden coming uninvited, their appearance gave Liberty the conditions to avoid trouble.

Matriarch Farrell arranged for an accident to happen on the road. She only dared to target Liberty and did not dare to target Kevin. Although Matriarch

Farrell hated Kevin in her heart, Kevin was the third young master of the York family, so she was unwilling to have a head-on conflict with Kevin.

Not to mention Hayden, who was the head of the Queen family and whose status in Jensburg was comparable to Zachary in Wiltspoon.

The Farrell family had declined and was about to fall out of the ranks of Jensburg's wealthy families. How could they compete with the Queen family?

Liberty chose to take Hayden's car, which was relatively safe.

In this way, she avoided that disaster.

Liberty originally wanted to refuse Duncan's company, but when she thought about the day she came to Jensburg, she refused to follow him, and he had a quarrel with her, saying that she disliked him. After a long time of arguing, Liberty changed her mind.

She said, "If you don't feel tired, then come with me."

Duncan said, "I'm not tired. I sit in a wheelchair every day and rarely move around. How can I be tired no matter how tired I am?"

He was almost a useless person.